COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday 5¼@5½ per cent. for the best names. Saturday 5¼ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Dyers Getting Careless.

Dress goods selling agents are rather fearful of the day when the demand for other shades besides navy blue becomes popular. The number of complaints on other shades is greater than usual, showing that dyers have become careless in their work. While these complaints have been made at the local selling offices, they have not as a rule been sent on to the mills. The reason for this is that buyers under present conditions will take fabrics even if they do show some "shading." When the color demand becomes a trifle more disturbed and the demand for goods is not as brisk as it is at present, selling representatives see trouble ahead on the score of imperfectly dyed materials.

Seconds Higher Than Firsts.

The demand for dress goods has reached a point where advances have forced the price of "seconds" beyond the mark asked for "firsts" a little over two months ago. In an instance quoted in the market yesterday "seconds" of a certain material are selling at $3.15. These "seconds" consist of goods with imperfections due mostly to shading and holes. The price ten weeks ago for this fabric, as it would pass the examiner with a rating of "perfect," was $3.

May Work Double Shift.

One of the most progressive mills making men's wear fabrics is understood to be laying plans for the operation of a double shift. This organization a short time ago put in a forty-hour-a-week schedule. Much time and study has been devoted to the problem of housing the employes, with the result, it is said, that there are many desirable reasons why weavers should prefer to work for this company. When the number of employes reaches a certain figure it is understood a night and day force will be put to work, enabling the mill to get an eighty-hour-a-week production.

Ex-Soldiers Favor Pointed Toes.

The idea that the soldiers returning to civilian life would not go back to the narrow toes, because they became accustomed to broad shoes while in the service, seems to be a mistaken one. The shoe manufacturers report that the pointed, long vamp, so-called English style, has been very much in demand. It is predicted that dark brown shoes will be very popular during the coming Fall. There seems to be a gradual decrease in the popularity of the dark red hues, although shoes of this color in the more distinctive shades are selling very well. For next Spring the lighter shades of tan are expected to prove the best numbers.

High-Priced Pile Fabrics.

The prophecy that, when the price of a pile fabric clashes with that of a fair quality fur, the latter is preferred, does not seem to be borne out in the operations of the cloak manufacturers for Fall. Pile fabrics in the most expensive makes are proving so popular with the buyers that it is estimated the supply is going to fall far short of the demand. The pile fabric makers believe that the most important reason for this successful competition of their product with fur is that the imitation has reached a stage where it is difficult to tell the difference between it and the real thing. Another reason ascribed is the better wearing quality of the artificial fur.

Gray Goods Sales Limited.

So far as printcloths and other staples were concerned, second hands again dominated the selling in the local gray goods market yesterday, such as it was. They sold some 38½-inch 64-60s at 13½ cents for June and July delivery, and they also disposed of 39-inch 68-72s at [illegible] for shipment in September and October. In the line of sheetings, second hands let out some 37-inch 48-square four-yard goods at 15¼ cents. Fine-yarn clothings and specialties sold in a limited way, with both first and second hands letting the goods out at full prices.

Burlap Demand Still Good.

Considering the fact that this is normally the dullest time of the year in the burlap trade, the call for goods that is now being received in this market is considered somewhat unusual. The continued scarcity of merchandise, however, makes it far from easy to do business. The market was firm yesterday on the basis of 10¾ cents for 8-ounce 40-inch goods and 13 cents for 10½-ounce "40s," and both of these quotations were said to be under the cost of the cloths at Calcutta. Advices from Dundee report that market very high and firm, and say that deliveries are very hard to get.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Following the exceptional activity of last week, yesterday's realty market seemed comparatively dull, being reminiscent of the days of the war in its general quiet. Most of the transactions reported were by operators, although investors and tenants appeared as figures in the sales of business buildings and dwellings.

"Protect Your Family"
Rent Insurance Is the Apartment Seeker's Protection
Practically every substantial apartment house tenant in New York carries insurance of one sort or another—either life, health, burglary, accident, or liability—perhaps all of them. Recent sad experience has proved that not one of these is now more essential than Rent Insurance. The only questions are: What is rent insurance? and who is selling it? The Queensboro Corporation are doing so under a new, simple and direct method.
Our Collective Ownership Plan insures apartment tenants against all future increase of rentals and provides for substantial dividend on the small amount of cash invested.
We Have Apartments For Oct. 1st Occupancy which we offer to sell on our Collective Ownership plan. They are already erected, are modern and will bear strict investigation. We are selling them for less than they can be reproduced to-day. They will appeal to a discriminating class of tenants, capable of paying a rental ranging from $50 to $60 per month.
At Jackson Heights
where one of the city's most progressive and satisfying apartment house sections has been erected on a foundation the keystone of which is Community Interest developed to a point not even approached in any other section of New York. Come to Jackson Heights at your first opportunity and see the apartments for yourself. To visit Jackson Heights by most convenient route take subway to Grand Central, transfer to Queensboro Subway (Corona Line) to 25th St. Station.

TRY FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTANCY,
OCTOBER, 1919.
AND FOR SENIOR ACCOUNTANCY,
OCTOBER, 1920.
October 15 to November 15 is the period during which one-fourth of the year's business changes, readjustments, and building of staffs are made.
If you have a faculty for figures and the crude stuff for the making of an accountant there is just about time between now and October 15th this year for you, thru suitable intensive training—during your spare hours at home—to qualify for a Junior Accountancy position that will pay at least $35 a week.
And ample time to qualify, before October, 1920, for position of Senior Accountant, Auditor, or Income Tax Expert, at a salary of at least $75 a week—with possibilities of more than twice that amount.
It is only a question of raw ability and industry, a resolute purpose to devote five spare home hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business-training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent Certified Public Accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.
We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the start that has put them over the top, and have their records to point to with just pride. We can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth your while to investigate.

To Settle Question of Law Affecting Transfer of Investments.

Surrogate M. S. Schuls of the Bronx reserved decision yesterday on a question of the construction of the transfer tax law as affecting participation certificates issued by title companies, which has a bearing on investments valued at $100,000,000 in real estate mortgages.

The suit was brought by State Controller Travis to recover a 5 per cent. penalty under Section 221-B of the transfer tax law, providing a tax on the transfer of investments which cannot be shown to be exempt from the inheritance tax. The defendant is J. George Urstadt of 2,726 Creston Avenue, the Bronx, who inherited participation certificates for $6,000. Although the sum at stake in the individual suit is small, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company joined Mr. Urstadt in defending because of the probable effect of the decision in similar cases in the future.

PLAN UNION ATTACK ON STEEL INDUSTRY

Labor Leaders Decide to Start Work of Organization Immediately.

RUSH DEBATE ON LEAGUE

Federation Orders Report on Action Taken at Paris to be Made Tomorrow.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—A committee of twenty-four Presidents of international labor unions, headed by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, tonight in conference decided to launch immediately extraordinary efforts to organize the great steel-producing regions of the country, especially the Pittsburgh district, and to fight there for "right of free assemblage, free speech, and a free press."

Mr. Gompers said that workers in the packing industry had achieved their ends recently, and he was convinced organization of the steel industry could be completed just as quickly. He warned the union leaders that the "iron and steel men are powerful and have wealth beyond the ken of men," and that the contest was likely to be sharp.

"Already we have obtained the eight-hour day in the steel industry, but let me tell you that was not handed to us on a silver platter," he said. "I may say, also, that you needn't really fear going to jail. I was sentenced twice to jail, and the Judge wanted me to go. But I did not go, and the man who sentenced me is no longer a Judge. There is no power in the United States that can prevent this campaign, and so long as we are on the right road I am willing to go the limit with you. We will bring about the emancipation of the steel workers."

Mr. Gompers declined to serve as chairman of the committee which will have charge of the work, and Jesse Fitzpatrick of Chicago, who directed the organization of workers in the packing industry, was selected.

The proposed Covenant of the League of Nations and the International Labor Charter will be the first real storm centre of the convention.

Andrew Furuseth, president of the International Seaman's Union, moved today that the Committee on International Labor Legislation be instructed to report on the League of Nations and the International Labor Charter Wednesday morning, and that the convention set that time as a special order for action on the report. The motion was carried unanimously.

Mr. Furuseth explained his motion by saying the statement had been made that there would be little time for the convention to discuss questions of importance now pending. The committee's report, he said, was of as great importance as anything that would come before the convention. His action heartened opponents of the League of Nations who had feared the subject would not come up until toward the close of the convention, when little time would be available for debate.

Of the 211 resolutions before the convention, hardly two score have been acted on since the sessions opened a week ago. Virtually all the resolutions over which there is a sharp difference of opinion are still in the hands of committees.

Delegates who have given time to the study of the proposed covenant of the League of Nations and the International Labor Charter do not seem to be enthusiastic over them. Those who favor the documents say they are a step in the right direction, and perhaps the best that are possible of attainment at the present time.

The opponents include several factions. First there are those who resent the insertion of the word "merely" in the International Labor Charter when references is made to labor not being a commodity.

As proposed in Paris by Samuel Gompers, Chairman of the Committee on International Labor Legislation, the clause read that labor was "not a commodity." While Mr. Gompers was on the ocean the word "merely" was prefaced to the clause, giving it a meaning directly contrary, it is contended, to the original intention. It is expected that Mr. Gompers, who favors adoption of the resolution on the League and on the labor covenant, will have something to say on how the word "merely" was added.

Delegates who stand behind the resolutions calling for the independence of Ireland are opposed to the League of Nations on the ground that it leaves Ireland without hope for the future. Socialists oppose the League of Nations on the ground that it is a "league of capitalistic Governments and not of people." A considerable element, which controls a large block of votes, is reported to be "in doubt."

Mr. Gompers and his lieutenants are expected to plead that nothing be done to embarrass President Wilson in his negotiations. The counter argument will be that nothing would better be calculated to save the President from embarrassment than action by American labor to convince those responsible for the changes in the labor covenant that American labor insists on the fulfillment of the promises made by the diplomats at Paris to Mr. Gompers.

The convention decided to support the teachers of Washington, D. C., in their fight for a wage scale of $1,000 a year for grade teachers and $1,200 for high school teachers as a minimum. The resolution was introduced by Charles D. Stillman of the American Federation of Teachers.

Great interest was shown tonight in the statement made by Professor John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, in an address before the National Tuberculosis Association, that until sickness prevention is made a source of financial profit to business men there will be no effective health program on a sufficiently large scale. He said that health insurance was not a philanthropy, but a business proposition.

Wilfred Humphries, the former lieutenant of Raymond Robins in Russia, will speak on the Bolsheviki and the Russian Soviets tomorrow night in a hall engaged for the occasion. Delegates who desire ammunition for use when the question of the recognition of Soviet Russia comes up for debate will obtain information from John Reed, who arrived today. His wife, Louise Bryant, who testified before the Overman committee, will arrive tomorrow.

P. H. McCarthy of San Francisco, Chairman of a committee which was sent to Washington by the convention, announced at this morning's session that Postmaster General Burleson's order granting the right of collective bargaining to electrical and telephone workers, the signing of which on Saturday averted a nation-wide strike, applies to all other employes under the Post Office Department, including telegraph operators and postal employes.

This declaration brought on a sharp debate. F. P. Gaynor of the letter carriers asked if Mr. Burleson's orders applied exclusively to telephone employes. He said he could see no reason why postal employes should not have the same rights as had been granted employes of the telephone system. Mr. McCarthy said that necessarily the principles of the Burleson order must apply to every other organization under his department.

Doubt of Burleson's Sincerity.

John Lewis, Vice President of the Mine Workers, asked what effect the Postmaster General's action would have upon the strike of commercial telegraphers. Mr. McCarthy said that while the telegram strike was not discussed with Mr. Burleson, the committee was convinced that the questions involved in it would have to be dealt with in accordance with the order. Delegate Lewis said he wanted to know whether the Postmaster General had made concessions to the electrical and telephone workers at the expense of telegraphers and other postal employes. He said he was inclined to doubt the good faith of Mr. Burleson.

Thomas Flaherty of the Postal employes said he had his suspicion regarding "the sudden conversion of the Postmaster General to the principle of collective bargaining." He reminded the convention that Mr. Burleson re-

Condemns Columbus, Ga., Shooting.

One resolution adopted during the day condemned the recent shooting of seven persons at Columbus, Ga., which was described as being a cowardly act by mill owners to stem the tide of organization sweeping over the textile districts of the South. The Federation officers were directed to give all possible aid to the United Textile Workers of tion of the persons guilty of this crime."

Another resolution directed the Executive Council of the Federation to co-operate with representatives affiliated with the organization of Federal civil service employes in obtaining upward revision of salaries. It was declared in the preamble that inadequate wage standards were impairing the efficiency of Government institutions.

Government bureaus of "unnecessary" dealing with "necessaries of life," [illegible] by the Department of Labor with the best and most accurate data at hand to have shown that increases in rates were not commensurate with the high cost of living. The resolution said the discrepancies as to the cost of living "ignores the economies from the wages now the best conditions and that present wage levels do not equal increased living costs as stated in Government reports." The resolution says the boot and shoe investigation showed that the "low labor cost in production [illegible] machinery, is not affected by even substantial wage increases."

Condemnation of the Post Office Department's policy of conducting speed efficiency tests among employes was contained in another resolution adopted unanimously. The Executive Council was directed to make every effort to have all speed tests abolished, and other unreasonable standards of personal efficiency."

Ammonia Drenches Engineer.

When Tank's Head Blows Off.

About forty stevedores were at work in the hold of the Ward liner Guantanamo, lying at Pier 17, foot of Joralemon street, Brooklyn, yesterday shifting the cargo of oil and sugar so that the steamship could get away on time today. Suddenly the head of an ammonia tank, part of the steamships refrigerating plant, blew off and fumes went through the hold.

Seven of the men were drenched by ammonia and temporarily blinded. The others, holding their hands over eyes and mouth, were able to flee up the hatchway to the deck. The seven blinded men, suffering intense pain, managed to grope their way to an air-tight chamber at one end of the hold. They closed the door and then realized that the lock was on the outside and that they were trapped.

The men who had reached the deck ran to the docks and sought help. A welding gang at work on a barge near by was enlisted. The welders dropped a small hole in the deck and compressed air was sent down to the prisoners, then on the verge of suffocation. An alarm of fire was turned in.

During the long cold night over mid-ocean these bottles provided hot stimulating coffee for the two heroic fliers, Alcock and Brown.

Alcock chose the same kind of a vacuum bottle that has been used by all the transatlantic fliers, British and American.

Over 40,000 of these unbreakable vacuum bottles have been used on picnic parties, in the Army and Navy, by motorists, sportsmen, travelers and explorers, as well as in the home everywhere.

On your motoring trips and outings this summer and in your home throughout the year, use a Stanley Vacuum Bottle to keep liquids hot or cold. It will prove a new pleasure and a new economy and it will not break.

R-34 DUE HERE SUNDAY ON OCEAN TRIP FROM BRITAIN

MAY FLY OVER NEW YORK

LONDON WELCOMES ALCOCK

Soldiers Carry Vimy Pilot and His American Navigator on Shoulders Amid Waving Flags.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The giant British dirigible R-34 will start from England some time Friday and reach Mineola, L. I., Sunday, according to present plans as known to British officials here.

Brig. Gen. L. A. O. Charlton of the British Air Service, stationed here, has notified the authorities in London that the field at Mineola will be ready to receive the transatlantic flier on that date. The United States Navy is in charge of the work at Mineola.

Army and navy aircraft will be sent to sea to welcome the British flier and escort her to the mooring place. Seaplanes, airplanes, and dirigibles alike will be included in the American squadron, according to plans announced here.

Special radio communications bearing upon weather conditions are now being sent out for the pilots of the R-34 to use in planning their voyage, and the system will be greatly extended as soon as the start is made. Stations at Bar Harbor, Me.; Boston, Newport, R. I.; New York, and Cape May, N. J., will send out regular signals to assist in guiding the air voyagers after they start. At Roosevelt Field, Long Island, another radio station will be set up for the purpose of communicating between the ship and landing crews while manoeuvring for a landing is going on.

Considerable concern is felt over the safety of the vessel at this stage, since the giant gas bag is subject to many dangers on nearing the ground. An army detail of 1,000 men will guard the grounds during all the period when the ship is tied there.

MINEOLA, N. Y., June 17.—Active preparations for the reception of the giant British dirigible R-34, which is expected here Sunday, were begun today with the construction of ten concrete blocks, each 7 feet square and 8 feet deep, to which the aircraft will be moored. Roosevelt Field has been selected as the landing place, as there is no hangar in the country large enough to house the airship, which is 643 feet long from nose to stern.

Army and navy authorities are cooperating with a special force of British naval aviation mechanics sent here in charge of Major Hugh Fuller of the Royal Air Force to establish an American base. Fifty American naval aviation mechanics, especially qualified in the handling of lighter-than-air craft, arrived here today from Rockaway Beach to assist in the preparations, and 250 more are expected from various other stations in the East before the airship's arrival.

Naval stores all over the country have been called upon to supply 11,000,000 cubic feet of hydrogen gas to be available for the use of the British craft. The R-34 has a capacity of more than 12,000,000 cubic feet, but with normal weather conditions on her trip over it is believed that less than one-third of this amount will be needed to carry the craft back to England.

The navy has also been called upon to furnish 7,000 gallons of gasoline and 500 gallons of oil. The dirigible carries a crew of about thirty men, and eight substitutes are already here to replace any men who may become sick or otherwise incapacitated for the return trip. It is expected Major Fuller may be added to the ship's personnel on her homeward voyage.

The trip from England to the United States is expected to take fifty hours. If the weather is favorable the course will approximately parallel that of the Northern steamship route, but if bad weather should be encountered the dirigible is likely to take the Southern course, and will probably pass over or near the Azores. The dirigible should arrive here during the daylight hours, but is not expected to land until early in the evening if the weather is hot at the time of her arrival.

Hot weather causes expansion of the hydrogen gas and increases the lifting capacity. Inasmuch as the load carried will be light when the aircraft arrives, it is believed that an easier landing could be made in the cooler hours of the evening. Present plans call for only an overnight stay of eight or ten hours, if the craft can be refueled and fitted up for her return journey in that period of time.

Local aviation officials expect the dirigible will fly over New York City and the surrounding country before landing, especially if it arrives during the early hours of the day. Before starting on her return trip, it is possible that the craft will fly over New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington.

Special plans are being made here for the reception of the dirigible's crew, if time and opportunity permit. A joint board of two Admirals and one Captain of the navy and two Generals and one

Mexico City Content; Juarez Incident Closed

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 17, (via Galveston.)—In a statement issued this afternoon, Secretary Manuel Aguirre Berlanga said the Mexican Government considered the Juarez incident closed. Ambassador Bonillas, now en route to Mexico City, will make the usual diplomatic representations upon his return to Washington. The action of the American troops in engaging the Villistas is regarded here as a heavy blow to the enemies of the Government, who had expected aid from the American Government in an actual attempt to overthrow the present Government.

General Francisco Gonzalez, commander of the Federal troops at Juarez, was called to Mexico City to explain the situation.

MEXICANS MILDLY PROTEST CROSSING

JUNTA OPPOSES REPRISALS

Urges Villa Not to Molest Americans—Border Guard Is Strengthened Against Raids.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—General Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of President Carranza of Mexico and now in Washington on a special mission from the Mexican Government, issued a statement from the Mexican Embassy today in which he declared that the Mexican Government considered the crossing of American troops into Juarez as a "violation of Mexican sovereignty." The statement was signed by General Aguilar as "Confidential Ambassador to the United States." It is not regarded here as one that will result in any serious breach of relations between this country and Mexico. The statement follows:

"The Mexican Government has not asked, nor will it ask, the aid of American troops to fight Villa or any other bandit. General Francisco Gonzales did not ask, either, the assistance of the United States soldiers who entered Ciudad Juarez.

"The Government and people of Mexico consider as a violation of Mexican sovereignty the crossing of United States soldiers into Mexican territory. It is hoped that the situation created by the latest occurrences in Juarez will be satisfactorily adjusted between the two countries.

"President Carranza's Government is strongly endeavoring to put an end as soon as possible to the activities of the Mexican rebels and to guarantee the lives and properties of foreigners and Mexicans residing in Mexico."

To Keep the Record Straight.

General Aguilar's statement is believed to be a paraphrase of representations made to the State Department by the Mexican Embassy, but confirmation of this belief was obtainable neither at the department nor at the embassy. The tone of the statement was milder than previous protests from the Mexican Government concerning the sending of troops into Mexico. The statement, it is thought, was meant merely "to keep Mexico's record straight."

It is regarded as probable that the State Department will soon make representations to the Mexican Government as to the damages suffered by Americans as a result of the Federal-Villista engagement at Juarez and demand compensation for the injured parties. It was recalled that this Government on various occasions in the past warned the Mexican Government to take precautions against a new Villa uprising.

The Mexican junta, composed of anti-Carranza elements, recently organized in Washington, was much disturbed over the events on the border. It was learned today that at a meeting held last night it was decided to use every effort to persuade Villa and Angeles not to take reprisals for the entrance of American troops into Juarez to disperse the Villistas. The danger lies in the exposed position of Americans below the border, who until now have depended upon the declaration by Angeles that they would be protected.

Fear Intervention.

Members of the Mexican junta are discussing the situation with Americans. The object of their organization, they declare, is to persuade the United States to keep hands off Mexico and allow the Mexican people to settle their own affairs. They contend that a majority of the people of Mexico consider that Carranza has not endeavored to live up to his revolutionary campaign promises and desire to see him eliminated and a strong man elected President.

Intervention is feared by them, and they are anxious that the United States keep out, for they seem to believe that if this country should intervene in Mexico their independence would be threatened. They would have the United States forbid the importation of arms entirely to Mexico, so that Carranza would be unable to equip his forces, although they assert that the Villistas get at least half of the arms and munitions allowed by this country to go into Mexico. It takes about four months, they say, for arms sent to Carranza to be divided between the Federal forces and the rebels. Sometimes, they say, this division is accomplished by arrangement with the Federal commanders, at other times the munitions are turned over for the privilege of getting supplies from rebel-controlled territory.

KNOX APPEALS FOR TIME TO STUDY LEAGUE COVENANT

Asserts Decisions Involved Are Too Momentous to be Settled Offhand in Treaty.

DEFENDS HIS RESOLUTION

"We Saved Europe; Let Us Consider Well Guaranteeing Spoils Forever to Our Associates."

DISCLAIMS BEING PARTISAN

Warns Opposition of Dangers of Such a Course—McCumber to Defend League Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—In a two-hour speech in the Senate today Senator Knox of Pennsylvania opened the battle for his resolution calling upon the Peace Conference to amend the Peace Treaty so as to give the United States and other nations that may so desire the right to put off joining the League until after the treaty becomes operative.

Mr. Knox went into an exhaustive analysis of his resolution, declaring that its only object was to give the United States an opportunity to study the League covenant, in order that a deliberate decision might be taken upon the wisdom of this country becoming a member of the League. He defended the arraignment of the League covenant in his resolution, saying that, as drafted, the covenant sacrificed American sovereignty and threw American independence in its own affairs "into the balance." Particularly was this so, he maintained, as to the Monroe Doctrine, which, the Senator asserted, became an instrument for interpretation by all the nations.

Insisting that his resolution ought to be adopted by the Senate, Mr. Knox said it merely called for action by the peace conferees that would enable the United States to take separate action upon the League covenant, instead of having it intertwined with the treaty of peace. The measure, he pointed out, did not even call for an expression by the Senate as to its attitude toward the League covenant.

Disclaims Any Partisanship.

Senator Knox challenged Administration Senators who insist that the League of Nations plan must be accepted as it comes from Paris. Asserting that he was in no sense actuated by partisanship, Mr. Knox exclaimed:

"If to stand for the rights of the Senate as a co-equal part of the treaty-making power is a manifestation of partisanship, then I am a partisan; if to demand that the people of the United States have the right to make up their own minds as to whether or not we shall put ourselves under the domination of the balance of the world, then I am a partisan; if to regard our free institutions as the greatest instrumentalities of Government which the world now possesses and, therefore, worthy of preservation over all others which exist in the world, is a manifestation of partisanship, then, thank God, I am a partisan.

"Senators of the opposition, you may make this a partisan issue if you choose, but, if you do, you must pay to the American people and their posterity throughout all time the penalty which they will exact."

Mr. Knox said the League covenant had been changed after the original draft, although the country had been led to believe that the original was a perfect document. As it had been found practicable to change the original, he argued, it might well be advisable to consider altering the revamped covenant.

Mr. Knox's speech was the forerunner of debate that will proceed in the Senate until the end of the week. Mr. Knox intends to call the resolution up tomorrow, but the Democrats intend postponing a vote upon it as long as they can do so. They want to prevent a vote until the treaty of peace with Germany is signed. The Republican advocates of the resolution expect to demand a vote not later than Saturday.

The Democrats, led by Mr. Hitchcock of Nebraska, will attack the resolution as calculated to embarrass the negotiations pending at Paris. If the battle takes a turn by which the Republicans fear the Democrats may kill the resolution through a filibuster, Senator Knox will endeavor to invoke the closure rule to limit debate.

Mr. Knox is determined, he indicated today, either to have a vote on the resolution or to have a "round robin" offered to the Senate by supporters of it, so that the Paris conferees may know that more than a third of the Senate—or enough to reject the League covenant—is opposed to it.

Say Resolution Goes too Far.

Senator Spencer of Missouri, one of the Republican opponents of the League of Nations, expressed himself today as opposed to the Knox resolution on the ground that it goes too far. The Missourian, with some half dozen others on the Republican side, insists that the resolution should merely request the Paris conferees to amend the treaty so as to allow a separate vote on the League covenant. They dislike the implied threat that the Senate will reject the treaty if this be not done.

After Mr. Knox's speech, Senator McCumber, Republican, of North Dakota, announced that he would discuss the Sailing Orders Cancelled For 4th and 5th Divisions

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The 4th and 5th Divisions of regulars have been removed from the list of units scheduled for early return to the United States, the War Department was advised today by General Pershing.

These two divisions were scheduled to sail from France this month, and officials believed cancellation of the sailing orders would have been made only under plans of the inter-allied high command and with the approval of President Wilson.

Decisions to retain these two divisions was believed to be only a temporary one, further action being dependent upon developments in the Peace Conference.

WILSON TO BEGIN TOUR EARLY IN JULY

Expects to Sail June 24 or 25, if Germans Sign the Peace Treaty.

WILL ADDRESS CONGRESS

Wants League Opponents in Audiences on Trip—Anti-Leaguers to Trail Him.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—President Wilson hopes to leave Paris for Washington on June 24 or 25, if the Germans sign the Peace Treaty. Immediately after his arrival in Washington the President will address Congress. After clearing up pressing official business he will start on his "swing around the circle" early in July.

It was said at the White House today that the President expected to spend three weeks on his speaking tour, explaining the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations covenant. The itinerary has not been announced, but he expects to visit the principal cities of the country.

The President has made known a desire that his audiences during his tour be composed largely of opponents of the League of Nations plan, rather than its supporters. He also has informed White House officials that he might discuss the League covenant in public addresses during his visit to Belgium this week.

Should he leave Paris a week from tomorrow the President should arrive in Washington about July 3. He will present the revised draft of the Peace Treaty to the Senate and will discuss the treaty and League covenant in an address to a joint session of the Senate and House.

Opponents of the League covenant in the Senate have accepted with apparent satisfaction the challenge of the President. Anti-League Senators will confer after the President's itinerary becomes known and draw up an itinerary of their own, which they intend to take up, with the view of following the President into every city in which he speaks. Various Senators will take part in this speech-making tour. Senators Borah of Idaho and Johnson of California may go on the road together.

Senator Reed, a Democratic opponent of the League, is expected to take the stump, too.

Senator McCormick, Republican of Illinois, said today the President's tour would open up a lively debate on both sides on the League issue and give the American people an opportunity to hear full discussion of it.

"It is a splendid thing for the country," said Mr. McCormick. "I believe it will clear the air."

Talk at the Capitol today touched upon the move started some days ago for a referendum to the people on the League covenant. Senator Knox favors a referendum, as do many other Republicans. The Democrats oppose it, saying it would entail too much delay.

KRONSTADT IN FLAMES; SHIPS TO SURRENDER

North Russian Force in Present Campaign Has Taken 22,000 Prisoners, 87 Guns.

LONDON, June 17.—The North Russian General Staff directing operations against Petrograd reports the fortress of Kronstadt, on the Gulf of Kronstadt, northwest of Petrograd, to be on fire, according to a Helsingfors dispatch to The Daily Mail which was filed Sunday.

Seven Bolshevist warships have hoisted the white flag, the dispatch states, and will surrender to the British squadron operating in the Gulf of Finland. Several forts near the fortress of Kronstadt have also raised the white flag, it is said.

The capture of the fort of Krasnayagorka, across the bay from Kronstadt, the occupation of which by White Guards was announced from Stockholm yesterday, will, it is said, enable the North Russian force to strengthen its thrust against Peterhof and advance quickly on a wide front. Bolshevist garrisons near Krasnayagorka went over to the White Guards yesterday.

The North Russian force has taken during the present campaign 22,000 prisoners and 87 cannon.

PARIS, June 17. (French Wireless Service.)—The important Donetz coal basin in southern Russia has been cleared of the Bolsheviki by the forces of General Denikin, which continue to push their offensive successfully, according to advices received here.

The Bolsheviki no longer will be able to get their coal supply from the Donetz region.

CABINET AWAITS ENVOYS

Brockdorff Was Due at Weimar Late Yesterday—Conference Opens Today.

BERLIN, June 17, (Associated Press.)—The impression of those who were engaged throughout the night in translating the reply of the allied and associated powers to the German counterproposals is that it will be utterly impossible to sign the peace treaty and that it is probable that a negative reply will be wired to Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen for submission to M. Clemenceau.

It is also thought possible that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German delegation, will not return to Versailles on account of the demonstration there against the delegates, resulting in injury to Minister Giesberts, Frau Doribiush, Herr Meyer, an attaché, and others, all of whom were hit with stones. Herr Meyer's eye was injured by glass.

The changes in the peace terms, as indicated by the red interlineations in the text of the old treaty, are so slight as to cause universal dismay among those who have had the opportunity of examining the document.

The financial modifications are thought unimportant and objectionable, and the terms governing Germany's admission to the League of Nations are declared to be unsatisfactory.

Government circles state that they cannot conceive any Government willing to sign such terms, although it is admitted that the treaty will be fully discussed, because it is realized that serious effects, with the spread of Bolshevism in Germany, would be involved in refusal to sign.

The Entente's answer, also, is regarded as nothing less than an ultimatum.

The French text of the covering note to the allied reply to the German counterproposals began to arrive here at 11 o'clock last night, and found official quarters unprepared to handle it for prompt release. The transmission of the text in French from Versailles was unexpected, and as a result the German press could not receive a translation before this noon, as the Foreign Office intended to supervise the translation made during the night.

A brief extract of the covering note was received by way of Basle at the same time, but it gave no intimation of the full terms of the counter-reply.

The German delegates are due to arrive in Weimar Tuesday afternoon. The minor members of the delegation and expert attachés will come to this city direct from Versailles.

Told of "Overbearing" Reply.

WEIMAR, June 17, (Associated Press.)—The new allied terms reached here late last night and the first apparent effect upon the German leaders who remained awake to wait for the terms was that of depression. A report passed rapidly through the old castle, where the Government heads are residing temporarily, that the signing of the peace terms by Germany was highly improbable.

The secretaries, who had remained up in the hope of receiving some word from Versailles, were rewarded at 11 o'clock by a telephone call from Versailles, announcing the departure of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau and the other delegates with the allied reply. It was a moody and dispirited crowd that heard the telephonic report in the castle of the former Duke of Saxe-Weimar. The message read about as follows:

"The tone of the document is extraordinarily harsh and insulting. Germany bears all blame and must, in consequence, be punished. It can be glad if it comes out half way well.

"The conditions handed over are those of an alleged peace of justice to conform to the Wilson program. The whole form is extraordinarily rough and overbearing. The original time limit of five days has been, by request, extended by forty-eight hours. This includes the three-day armistice limit. The period of seven days expires Monday evening at 7 o'clock.

"Concerning the contents there can be said at this moment only that our opponents grant us less concessions than were mentioned in the Paris newspapers of yesterday and today.

"The departure of the delegates occurred amid the shouts, hoots, and jeers of a crowd which threw stones, seriously wounding two delegates. The crowd acted in the usual French hoodlum fashion. The police made not the

Turks Tell Allies Secret Pledges Drew Them In And a German Admiral Declared Them at War

PARIS, June 17.—The Council of Ten of the Peace Conference received the Turkish Peace Mission in the cloak room of the Quai d'Orsay this morning.

The Turkish delegates, headed by Damad Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizier, motored from Vaucresson, accompanied by French officers. They are here purely in the capacity of experts, and the meeting was for the purpose of setting forth the Turkish situation to the conference. The members of the Council arrived one by one. The Turks were clad in conventional morning clothes and wore fezzes.

The meeting, which was secret, lasted an hour. In an address to the councilors the Grand Vizier pleaded that the Turkish people were not to blame for the war. He urged that the empire be permitted to remain intact in both Europe and Asia, and promised to submit a memorandum to the Council on Friday.

The Grand Vizier said that his country had been committed through secret agreements with the former German Emperor, against the wishes of the Turkish people, by the Committee of Union and Progress. He added that a German Admiral actually declared Turkey in a state of war.

The Turks exonerated the Sultan from all responsibility for the war and urged that he be permitted to remain in Constantinople, saying that Asia Minor had been reduced to a desert by the war.

M. Clemenceau addressed the conference briefly. He reminded the Turkish delegates that the audience had been granted at their request so they might state their case. M. Clemenceau stated that upon receipt of the Grand Vizier's memorandum the Council would make a reply.

The enemy status of the mission was emphasized by its entering and departing through different doors from those used by the members of the Council. The Turkish representatives returned to Vaucresson under escort.

The Entente attitude toward Turkey still remains a mystery. The great powers have not announced whether they consider that Turkey actually exists, and refuse to say whether a treaty will be negotiated with the Ottoman Empire. They maintain that the present conference is only for the purpose of learning Turkey's position.

COBLENZ, June 15.—American troops in small numbers are to remain on the Rhine for a period of years, according to information, apparently authentic, reaching the headquarters of the American Army of Occupation from Paris.

According to this report, the latest allied plans for the occupation of German territory call for the retention of one regiment of Americans, one brigade of British, and ten French divisions, to perform that task.

If this should be the final solution it would represent a partial victory for the contentions of Marshal Foch as to occupation. He favored having British and Americans share the burden fully with the French. Failing that, he advocated the retention of at least some sort of military unit by the Americans and the British in the army of occupation.

Three days before the peace conditions were handed to the Germans at Versailles on May 7, President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George notified the Peace Conference that Americans and British would not take part in a long occupation of German territory. On May 8 at noon I was told in the Hotel Crillon, at Paris, by a member of the American peace delegation that no American troops would be kept on the Rhine after peace had been signed and that the American section of the army of occupation would be gotten away as quickly as possible after the Germans affixed their signatures. The latest reports indicate that this stand by the Americans has been altered to allow for the retention of a few thousand men on the Rhine.

Volunteers to be on Rhine.

According to the plan as outlined, the men composing this regiment would not come from the First, Second, Third, Fourth or Fifth Division comprising the present army of occupation, but the regiment would be made up of volunteers recruited in America for overseas duty. Some thousands of these men are already on the way to the Rhine.

It is probable that the regiment will consist of 4,500 men, and in order that their military standing may not be too insignificant, some sort of organization will be effected by which as officer of at least the rank of Brigadier General will be in command. Experience in Russia, it is said here, has pointed out the inadvisability of placing American troops under immediate foreign command.

It may be asked why Foch wants one regiment of Americans on the Rhine and what it could do in case of a clash with Germany. The answer is not hard to find—Foch wants Americans and PARIS, June 18.—With the Germans notified of the changes in the Peace Treaty and in possession of the explanatory note from the Council of the Great Powers, the most critical period in the making of world peace has come.

For the next few days Germany will be in the throes of agitation over the question as to whether the allied terms should be accepted. The opinion is very general in Paris that the opposition to acceptance of the treaty will appear to develop greater strength during the days of grace allowed the German Government to make up its mind, and to those not fully informed the news dispatches of what is going on in Germany will seem to carry the certainty that the treaty will be rejected.

An intensive effort to force the Scheidemann Ministry out of office is likely to be made, while consideration is being given to the matter of signing or not signing. But even if the Scheidemann Ministry goes out, it will probably be succeeded by a Government organized by Erzberger, who is credited with the belief that Germany's hope lies in acceptance of the peace terms, severe as they are.

The Scheidemann Ministry is seemingly between the devil and the deep sea. If it declines to direct its peace plenipotentiaries to affix their signatures to the treaty, it will feel the resentment of that large portion of the German population which is for peace at once, no matter what the cost may be. If it agrees to accept the terms, it will be severely criticised, even many of those who are really for a quick peace, certainly joining in the attacks upon it.

Cabinet Expected to Resign.

Confidential reports received from Germany by the Allied Peace Commissioners indicate that the members of the German Cabinet will follow the line of least resistance—in other words, resign.

Should Scheidemann and his fellow Ministers retire, the Allied Powers will be disposed to give the new Ministry time to put its house in order before the ceremony of signing the treaty takes place. But no such consideration is to be shown unless there is a formal notice, received within the stipulated period, that the conditions will be accepted. There is talk in Peace Conference circles that a full week may be given between the expiration of the seven days period and the signing of the treaty if a new Government comes into power in Germany.

This will not suit President Wilson in the least. He desires to get away from Europe as soon as possible. He plans

APOLOGY SENT TO GERMANS

Clemenceau Expresses Deep Regret Over Incident When Envoys Left.

POLICE OFFICIALS OUSTED

ARMY OF 600,000 READY

PARIS, June 17.—Dr. Theodor Melchoir, one of the five principal delegates, and Frau Doriblush, one of the secretaries to the German peace delegation, were struck on the head by stones in the course of a demonstration against the German delegates when they departed from Versailles last night.

Premier Clemenceau has sent a letter to the head of the German delegation, apologizing for the demonstration and expressing deep regret for this "reprehensible act," which was contrary to the laws of the Seine and Oise. The Police Commissioners have been dismissed from office.

The demonstration had several phases but was confined mostly to jeering the Germans.

Among the concessions contemplated for Germany in case she signs the treaty, it was learned today, is the use of 30 per cent. of her merchant ships for two years. Other concessions would be permission for her to dispose of her gold reserve and to purchase the minette ores necessary for smelting her own ores.

It was officially stated that the full text of the revised draft of the treaty would be made public on Thursday. Copies of the document will be handed to the correspondents in Paris.

The memorandum that was handed to the German plenipotentiaries yesterday was printed textually here this afternoon.

Sees Doubt of German Acceptance.

The majority of the members of the Peace Conference believe that Germany will not sign the treaty, according to Marcel Hutin of the Echo de Paris, who made a canvass of a number of the leading personalities of the peace-making body.

Only one of these leaders, M. Hutin says, expressed the opinion that the Germans would accept the revised treaty. This member, however, is one whose opinion, the writer states, he holds in the greatest esteem.

The delegate in question, M. Hutin explains, based his opinion that the Germans would sign the treaty on the fact that they have knowledge that at yesterday's meeting of the Council of Four a complete agreement was reached on the consequences which would follow refusal of the peace as offered. They were aware, the delegate pointed out, that peace would then be imposed by force, in accordance with President Wilson's Baltimore speech, and that orders had been given for an allied force of 600,000 men, supported by heavy artillery of hitherto unrevealed power, to begin an advance on the morning of June 24.

Confronted by such realities, which alone count with them, the German Government and the National Assembly at Weimar, in the delegate's opinion, would decide to sign the treaty.

Clemenceau Note Approved.

The newspapers today unanimously expressed approval of the strong memorandum which Premier Clemenceau addressed to the German delegation. Some of them regret that certain of the concessions were made, but they are one in expressing the belief that the Germans, faced as they are by the universal desire for peace and with their knowledge of the superiority of the allied forces, will sign the treaty within the time limit.

The editing of the covering letter handed to the Germans, with the allied reply, and signed by Premier Clemenceau, according to Le Temps, was done by Philip Kerr, secretary to Premier Lloyd George, who was intrusted with the elaboration of the response to the German counterpropositions. It had been reported that the editing was done by Sir Maurice Hankey of the British delegation.

REPLY OF THE ALLIES ON POINTS OF DETAIL

Further Extracts on War Penalties, Reparation, Finance, and Other Subjects.

PARIS, June 16.—The detailed reply of the Allies to the counterproposals of the Germans, which was handed to the German delegation at Versailles today, takes up in order each of the objections made to the provisions of the original peace treaty. Extracts from the reply, in addition to those previously cabled, follow:

PART VI.

Prisoners of War and Graves.

There is nothing to add to the notes of May 20.

PART VII.

Penalties.

The immediate cause of the war was the decision, deliberately taken, of the statesmen of Berlin, Vienna, and Budapest. Even the German memorandum itself admits that Germany authorized Austria-Hungary to solve the Serbian question on its own initiative and by war. Moreover, she supported Austria's rejection of Serbia's extraordinary concessions, the mobilization of the Austro-Hungarian Army, and the initiation of hostilities, steadily rejected every proposal for conference, and did not urge moderation till all hope of avoiding war had vanished.

The attempt to throw the blame on Russian mobilization is vitiated by the fact that this was the immediate and necessary consequence of the Austrian mobilization and the declaration of war on Serbia, both authorized by Germany.

But the outbreak of war was no sudden decision taken in a difficult crisis. It was the logical outcome of a policy of domination, aggression, and war pursued by Germany for decades under the inspiration of the Prussian system.

Hypnotized by Bismarck's spirit of blood and iron, Germany was not content with a great and influential place in the world, but in the lust for supremacy and autocratic power set about sowing suspicion and discord among the nations, conspiring with elements of unrest in every land, steadily increasing armaments, and mobilizing the universities, press, pulpit, and governmental authority to indoctrinate the gospel of hatred and force. The essential truth of these charges is admitted by the Germans themselves through their revolution.

The war was a crime deliberately plotted against the life and liberties of the people of Europe. It has brought death and mutilation to millions. Starvation, unemployment, and disease stalk across the continent from end to end, and for decades its people will groan under its burdens and disorganization. Punishment of those responsible for bringing on these calamities is essential on the score of justice and as a deterrent to others who may be tempted to follow their example.

The powers cannot intrust the trial of those responsible to those who have been their accomplices. As almost the whole world has banded together to check Germany, the tribunals established will present the deliberate judgment of the greater part of the civilized world. There can be no question of admitting the right of jurisdiction of representatives of countries which took no part in the war.

The Allied and Associated Powers will stand by the verdict of history for the impartiality and justice with which the accused will be tried. The trial of the ex-Kaiser is judicial only in form and not in substance, as he has been arraigned as a matter of high international policy for a supreme offense against international morality, the sanctity of treaties, and the essential rules of justice. Judicial forms and procedure and a regularly constituted tribunal have been set up both to insure the accused full rights to defense and to give the judgment the most solemn judicial character.

The allied and associated powers are prepared to submit a final list of those who must be handed over to justice within one month of the signing of peace.

PART VIII.

Reparations.

The allied and associated powers refuse to enter into a discussion of the principles underlying the reparations clauses, which have been drawn up with scrupulous regard for the correspondence leading up to the armistice. So far, however, as the execution of these principles goes, certain observations are made, especially as the German reply presents a view so distorted and inexact as to raise a doubt if the clauses were calmly or carefully examined.

The vast extent and manifold character of the war damage has created a problem of extraordinary magnitude and complexity, only to be solved by a continuing body, limited in personnel and invested with broad powers. The reparation commission so established is instructed to exercise its powers in such a way as to insure to the Germans as early and complete a discharge by Germany of her reparations obligations as is consistent with the true maintenance of the social, economic, and financial structure of a Germany earnestly striving to repair the damage she has caused.

The commission is not an engine of oppression or a device for interfering with German's sovereignty. It has no forces; no executive powers within Germany; no control of domestic legislation or of the educational or other systems. Its business is to fix what is to be paid, satisfy itself that Germany can pay, and report to its Governments in case Germany does not pay.

If Germany raises the money required in her own way, the commission cannot order that it be raised in some other way. It cannot prescribe or enforce taxes or dictate the character of the German budget, but may examine the latter to see if any modification in the conditions is desirable, probably in Germany's interest, and to be assured that German taxation is at least as heavy as the heaviest allied taxation. Not only are the provisions not incompatible with the creation by Germany of a commission to represent it in dealings with the Reparation Commission and for such cooperation as may be necessary, but it is greatly to be desired that she will take exactly that step.

The powers are willing that within four months of the signature of the treaty Germany may submit any proposals she may choose to make. In particular, she may offer a lump sum for all or part of her liability, undertake to reconstruct all or part of a damaged district, offer labor, technical service or materials for reconstruction, or, in short, suggest any feasible plan to simplify the assessment of damage, eliminate any question from the scope of the inquiry, promote the performance of the work or accelerate the definition of the ultimate amount to be paid.

Germany must, however, negotiate direct with the powers concerned before making the proposals, submit them in unambiguous form and accept the reparations clauses as matters beyond dispute. No arguments or appeals directed to any alteration will be entertained.

Within two months thereafter the allied and associated powers will return their answers to any such proposals, which they agree to consider seriously and fairly, for the reason that no one would be better pleased than they at a speedy and practical settlement. The early production of German evidence would greatly accelerate the decisions, for after fifteen months of occupation of the damaged territories, her information must be extensive and exact. The problem is largely one of statistics, of which the powers have received but one side.

The German reply made no definite offer as to reparations, but gave only vague expressions of willingness to do something undefined. The sum of 100,000,000,000 marks was indeed mentioned to give the impression of an extensive offer, which upon examination it proves not to be. No interest was to be paid and until 1928 there would be no substantial payment, after which would come a series of undefined installments running over nearly half a century.

The allied and associated powers make the declaration, however, that as the resumption of German industry is an interest of theirs as well as of Germany, they will not withhold from Germany commercial facilities necessary to this resumption, but on the other hand will, subject to conditions which cannot be laid down in advance and to the special economic situation created for them by German aggression, afford to Germany facilities for food supplies, raw materials, and overseas transport for the common good.

Meanwhile, the treaty must be signed. The burdens of Germany undoubtedly are heavy, but they are imposed under conditions of justice by peoples whose social well being and economic prosperity have been gravely impaired by wrongs which it is beyond the utmost power of Germany to repair.

PART IX.

Finance.

While Germany as the author of the war must bear its just consequences, her essential interests have been spared as far as possible. Reparation must be prior to the settlement of all other German public debts, with such exceptions as the commission may approve to protect German credit. Payment for [illegible] may also be a first charge, and [illegible] may be exported [illegible] approval.

Military occupation as an essential guarantee of [illegible]ce must be paid for by Germany in accordance with custom, notably that [illegible]t by her in 1871. [illegible] material surrendered after the armistice cannot be credited against reparation.

Liberated territories will bear [illegible] portion of the pre-war debts, but [illegible] not be asked to assume any [illegible] the war debt itself. After the evidence of the war, the powers [illegible] demand that Germany [illegible] ultimately involve [illegible] economic life or in that [illegible] former allies or Russia. As the [illegible] part of Germany's foreign securities must be liquidated, protection of German holders will no longer justify German participation in international organizations.

The German proposal that reparations payments be made in the currency of the injured country cannot be accepted, as the choice may be left to the latter, in view of probable heavy purchases abroad to rebuild their ruined [illegible]. The right is reserved to [illegible] of Germany also her credits [illegible] Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria, and Turkey.

PART X.

Economic Clauses.

The principles announced by President Wilson and embodied in the covenant of the League of Nations as to equality of trade conditions will be brought into effect when the world returns to normal conditions, but in the meantime a transitory regime is essential to save certain allied States from a position of economic inferiority because of the ravaging of their territories and the contraction [illegible] conditions of German industries. Reciprocity is impossible at present, for with it Germany would reap the fruits of her criminal acts.

A general indiscriminate reapplication of mutilated and bilateral treaties cannot be accepted, though as many have been restored as possible. Germany is required not to accept the text of postal and telegraph arrangements, but rather not to oppose their conclusion. Bilateral treaties will not be split up in such a way as to place all the obligations on one side and the rights on the other.

Consular relations are not reciprocally established, owing to the war activity of German Consuls. Private property of Germans abroad may justly be used to met reparation charges, as Germany's resources are wholly inadequate and because in the war the allied powers themselves have had to take over foreign investments of their nationals to meet foreign obligations, giving their own domestic obligations in return.

The property of German institutions for research and education cannot be immune, in the light of their past activities.

PART XI.

Aerial Navigation.

The German proposals have not been accepted.

PART XII.

Ports and Waterways.

The German objections are too general to admit of detailed reply, but seem to rest on the principle that while the rules of transit and international control are wise and practical they constitute an infringement of her sovereignty so long as they are not reciprocal. Until, however, the transitory period is passed and general conventions can be laid down as integral parts of the status of the League of Nations, it has appeared essential to make provisions so that an enemy State may not by obstructive procedure prevent theirs being put into force.

Provision is made formally for the extension of these provisions and for the ultimate grant of reciprocity, but only after five years, unless the League of Nations decides to prolong the period.

No attempt has been made to prevent the legitimate use by Germany of her economic resources, but rather to secure freedom of transit for young, landlocked States. The commissions established function not alone over German territory, but over at least one allied country as well. Delegates of nonriparian States are included, both to represent the general interest and to act as a check on the predominant riparian State.

As a guarantee of justice the Allies agree to the strengthening of the clauses assuring freedom of transit across West Prussia to Germany, the increase of Germany's representation on the Oder from one to three, the representation of Germany on the commission to establish a permanent statue for the Danube, the submission of the future Rhine-Danube Canal to the general régime of international waterways and the suppression of the clauses as to the constructing of railroads through Germany and of the Kiel Canal Commission.

PART XIII.

Labor.

The two notes already sent in reply to the German notes cover this subject. With reference to the protection of labor in ceded territories, the treaty already makes provision for conventions between Germany and the States concerned. Further provisions have been made, however, for carrying out this intention by inserting a plan for reference to imperial technical commissions of all cases in which an early settlement is not reached by direct negotiation.

PART XIV.

Guarantees.

The German delegation states that only the return to the fundamental and immutable principles of morality and civilization can permit humanity to continue to live. After four and a half years of a war provoked by Germany's repudiation of these principles, the powers can only repeat President Wilson's words that "the reason why peace must be guaranteed is that one of the parties to that peace has proved that his promises are not worthy of faith."

Military Occupation.

Armed forces of the Allies will continue in occupation of German territory as a guarantee for the execution of the treaty.

There will be constituted a civilian body styled the Interallied Rhineland High Commission, consisting of four members, representing Belgium, France, Great Britain, and the United States. It shall have executive powers, and its members shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities.

The civilian administration shall remain in the hands of the German authorities under German law, except in so far as it may be necessary for the High Commission to modify this. The Allies retain the right to requisition in kind and to demand services. Germany will be responsible for the expenses of occupation and of the High Commission.

Germany will undertake to place at the disposal of the allied troops such military establishments and accommodation as are required. The transport, telegraphic, and postal personnel will obey orders given on behalf of the commander in chief of the allied armies for military purposes, according to detailed provisions.

The High Commission will have the power, whenever they think it necessary, to declare a state of siege in any part or all the territory concerned.

BERNE, June 15.—The sensational trial of twenty-four German General Staff agents who attempted during the war to transmit bombs and infernal machines and dangerous bacilli from Germany via Switzerland to Italy has just ended, after a fortnight's duration. The chief culprits, however, the German Consul General and Consul in Zürich and the German Military Attaché in Berne, and also other German officials who employed these anarchistic agents, were safe in Germany. In any case, being ex-territorial, they could not have been arrested.

The bomb plot originated in 1915, but was not discovered till 1918 by the police of Zürich, where the trial took place. The bombs, infernal machines, explosives, and dangerous bacilli were conveyed to Switzerland from Germany by German diplomatic couriers, and twenty-two boxes of German ammunition manufactured at Linden and Hanover were discovered early last March in Berne, buried near the offices of the German Military Attaché. These offices, as the Swiss Procurator General remarked at the trial, were closed, as if by chance, a few days later. He added:

"It is difficult to imagine a graver charge against the German General Staff, which has spent millions on its work of terrorism."

Among the terrorist German agents were two Hindus named Chattopadhyaya and Hafis, who managed to escape to Germany before the trial, and who were condemned in contumaciam to two and a half and four years' penal servitude respectively and fines. The Swiss Procurator General stigmatized this German plot as certainly the greatest infringement of Swiss neutrality committed during the war, whereby the Germans risked embroiling Switzerland with Italy and causing her serious internal trouble.

In November, 1917, the Germans actually managed secretly to organize in different parts of Switzerland two factories for manufacturing explosives, and their products were so powerful that, had they exploded accidentally while being conveyed about by these German agents, all Zürich or Berne might have been blown to Altogether, of the twenty-four accused, seven were condemned. But the prime instigators of the plot, being all German officials and in Germany, could not be brought to trial.

A strange coincidence which occurred in Zürich a few hours after the sentence was delivered shows how far-reaching are the results of German plotting. Large Socialist crowds, demonstrating in memory of Rosa Luxemburg, were informed that a Workmen's Union Secretary, just returned from Germany, was arrested and imprisoned. The mob immediately marched to the prison and attacked the building, smashing it. French-Swiss troops are now in Zürich to keep order.

GERMANY SUPPRESSES VON MOLTKE MEMOIRS

Book Said to Contain Severe Criticism of Responsibility for the War.

PARIS, June 17.—The German Government, according to reports received here, has forbidden the publication of the memoirs of the late Lieut. Gen. von Moltke, Chief of the General Staff at the outbreak of the war. It is said that the memoirs contain passages concerning events in 1914 which would produce an unfavorable impression in Germany with regard to the question of war responsibility.

The General, it is said, severely criticises the policy of Germany during the period prior to the war. One newspaper here says that a diplomat, who read the forbidden book, declared that the publication of the work was stopped for the same reason that caused the German Government to postpone the publication of official documents. It is said that the von Moltke memoirs will be published only after the peace treaty is signed.

AUSTRIANS COMPLAIN OF ENTENTE INJUSTICE

Renner Said to Have Declared in Note That New States Would Be Another Balkans.

PARIS, July 17.—Dispatches by way of Basle say that Austrian newspapers publish dispatches from St. Germain saying that Dr. Karl Renner, head of the Austrian Peace Mission, has handed the Council of Five a memorandum, drawn up by delegates from the German sections of Austria and setting forth the alleged injustice which "menaces 4,800,000 German-Austrians as the result of the proposed Peace Treaty."

It is said that Dr. Renner has asserted that the setting up of new States in the heart of Europe would "create another hotbed of war such as the Balkans have been."

According to these dispatches, Dr. Renner has also handed the Council a note covering territorial questions generally, in which he calls attention to "the great responsibility assumed by the Entente in submitting millions of German-Austrians to foreign domination."

It is said that he has expressed the hope that the conference will act on the suggestion contained in his memorandum, relative particularly to the Tyrol, Southern Carinthia, Syria, and Western Hungary.

The Council of Five this afternoon took up consideration of the remaining clauses in the peace terms with Austria. The Council also considered other matters requiring its attention before the departure of President Wilson tonight for his trip to Belgium.

slightest effort to stop the hoodlumism."

No one would talk for publication, but every official and every member of the Foreign Office available expressed the deepest pessimism and resentment at the alleged cruelty of the terms.

The Germans were specially embittered over the report that a French mob had stoned the helpless German delegates at Versailles.

Previous to the message by telephone, the authorities declared they were utterly in the dark. They had not been able to form any judgment as to how the final terms would shape up by their perusal of the Entente press, which one day would contain reports favorable to Germany and the next day have the opposite trend.

The correspondent learned on good authority, however, that the most important point as regards the treaty, in German opinion, was that of a plebiscite in the east, not only for Upper Silesia but for the entire eastern section covered by the original terms, and that a free vote of the German population in East and West Prussia, Posen, and Silesia would strongly incline Germany to sign the treaty.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau is expected to arrive here at midnight. Full Cabinet conferences will begin Wednesday.

It was announced last night that the allied reply to the German counterproposals would be made available to the foreign correspondents today, but would not be given to the German press until after the Cabinet had held a preliminary session to discuss the terms this morning.

Reports Cabinet Even on Peace.

LONDON, June 17.—Seven members of the German Cabinet favor signing the amended peace terms, while the other seven are opposed to signing, says a Reuter despatch from Berlin.

BERLIN PRESS STILL SILENT.

Strike Prevents People from Learning of Allies' Peace Reply.

BERLIN, June 16, (Associated Press.)—The newspapers here are still completely tied up by the strike of auxiliary workers in the mechanical departments. Greater Berlin has been without papers for forty-eight hours, with no prospect of an early settlement.

Although the strike is outwardly without a political aspect, it is believed to be the forerunner of a renewed outbreak timed by the ultra-Radicals to synchronize with the arrival of the Entente reply to the German counterproposals. Only the smallest fraction of the people of Berlin were aware that the Entente reply was being handed to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau today, and what news they receive on the peace situation will probably be gathered from out-of-town papers, which are printing "Berlin editions."

Publishers at Leipsic, Hamburg, Bremen and Madgeburg are making the most of the strike here, and it is charged that they are being encouraged by the Government.

Finds Fault with Revised Version of Peace Treaty.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—The Daily Chronicle, commenting on the Allies' reply to the German peace delegates, says the argumentative part of it, set out in the covering letter, is extremely well drafted and bears the impress of Wilson's pen. As to the operative part, the Chronicle says, the modification as regards Polish Pomerania at the expense of Poland will be difficult to justify.

The Daily News is dissatisfied with the reply and says that substantially the peace terms remain in their original form.

to leave Paris immediately after the treaty is signed at Versailles, with the intention of sailing for home on the George Washington the next day.

The President is still in accord with the view prevailing among the best-informed members of the allied peace contingents, that the German Government is certain to accept the treaty. One of the most eminent British statesmen is telling his friends that he has not heard one good argument advanced to show why the enemy will refuse to accept it.

It is very apparent from the character of the comment here that the American Senators who are opposing the League of Nations and demanding changes in the treaty with Germany will come in for much condemnation in Europe if the Germans decline to sign the peace conditions. Everything indicates that they will be charged with the responsibility for the failure of the Peace Conference.

The Knox resolution and the general attitude of opposition to the treaty and the League covenant on the part of the Republican Senators are not clearly understood in France and elsewhere in Europe, but out here statements suggesting that Germany has been encouraged to defy the allied Governments on account of the course of the members of the American Senate.

At the same time it is clear that the rejection of the treaty by Germany would please many persons of influence in France who believe that their country is not properly safeguarded by the terms of the agreement. Their satisfaction over a German rejection would arise from the opportunity afforded to impose even more severe conditions on the enemy when the time came to renew exchanges.

Germany would then be treated with scant consideration, it is believed. She would be in the way of losing her Rhine provinces and having drastic economic conditions imposed upon her.

For the treaty negotiations to fail and to produce such a state of affairs would be a calamity, in the opinion of those who have been most concerned in the Paris Conference. The possibilities of a resumption of hostilities, even if only a constructive resumption, are so full of danger to the world's peace that the men connected with the peacemaking effort prefer not to contemplate their likelihood.

At the last minute the Supreme Council decided to reconsider the provision fixing the strength of the Army of Occupation at 110,000 men, and there is no mention of the subject in the memorandum of modifications. The council will adhere, however, to the concession that the occupied area shall have civil administration, but this arrangement will be covered in a separate convention already prepared, which will be signed with the general treaty.

Large Gains Made by Independent Socialists in City Election.

BERLIN, June 16, (Associated Press.)—In the municipal elections in Munich yesterday the Independent Socialists made large gains. They captured sixteen seats in the City Council against ten for the Majority Socialists.

BRITISH ALARMED AT PROFITEERING

Government May Continue Food Control—Concern Over Power of American Meat Trust.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—Parliamentary Secretary McCurdy of the Ministry of Food, speaking last night at a conference of local food committees, said the question of retaining, and in some cases reimposing, control upon foodstuffs, in view of a possible rise of prices during the coming Winter, was receiving the Government's close attention.

There was no doubt, he said, that in oils and fats the alarming rise which had taken place in prices since the removal of control was largely due to the interference of speculators having no legitimate interest in the trade, who saw in the rising market an opportunity of making "easy profits." This kind of profiteering at the expense of the public, he said, ought to be drastically dealt with.

The rapid multiplication of trusts and trade combinations having for their object the maintenance or raising of prices to the consumer had proceeded at alarming rates during the last few years of the war, said Mr. McCurdy. No one could view without alarm the growing power of the American meat trust to control in their own interest the food prices of the world. The conference passed a resolution viewing with alarm the high prices of food, and calling upon the Government to take drastic measures to protect the consumer against profiteering.

RIOTING SOLDIERS WRECK WHITLEY CAMP

Canadian Authorities in England Forbearing Toward Their Troops, Despite Mutiny.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Much damage was done to Whitley Camp during the disturbance of the last few days. The officers' mess was looted. Fire is still blazing in front of the shops at Tintown. Safes and other valuables were taken out, after which looting became general. Little of value was found at the bank branches, but from the officers' quarters the thieves got considerable booty. Several safes were recovered, but one, containing a large sum of money, is still missing. On Sunday night a number of men were found by the military police attempting to open one of the safes. They were armed with revolvers and fired shots, but no one was injured. Two large shops were destroyed in a renewed outbreak on Sunday night, but attempts to fire the bank and two more buildings were frustrated by an armed guard. The Canadian authorities have been most forbearing, but at one time Sunday night matters became very serious. It is stated that one man was wounded by a bayonet, and another shot through the jaw. Only six of the commercial buildings in the camp are now standing. The destroyed Garrison Theatre was capable of holding 2,000 persons, or more.

Lou Simon Says:

"There was a time when I was apprehensive about my business. Not that the business wasn't growing rapidly enough, but that we had difficulty with our accounting methods.

"A trial balance was almost unheard of, statements were always late and the bookkeeping department was just generally in a rut. I guess a great many will recognize these conditions.

"About a year ago we installed a Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine. Now two girls at less money are doing what three girls at more money used to try to do.

"The girls alternate on the machine, posting all the ledgers, receivable, payable and factories, and get out the statements—always promptly after the first of the month.

"We get a daily balance on each account. I can tell at a glance at all times just what each customer owes.

"The time and money saving of Burroughs Bookkeeping interest me, of course, but the ease of mind I now have is worth more to me. Why, I am able to get a monthly inventory in my business now—every month I know just exactly where I am at.

"Contrary to what some people think it was no trouble at all to change from pen-and-ink to machine bookkeeping. And the automatic operation of the Burroughs is so simple that anyone of the girls in the office can post the ledgers."

Pretty nearly everybody in the textile industry knows Lou Simon. He and his brother are owners of The Simon Costume and Dress Co., "Dressmakers to the American Woman," 44-50 East 32nd Street, New York City.

AMERICA TO KEEP TROOPS ON RHINE

British on the Rhine as long as the occupation lasts, so that if the Germans commit any act against the forces of occupation they will be acting against the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, as well as against the tricolor of the French republic. In other words, he wants America and England bound to come to the aid of France in case of German aggression in the next five, ten or fifteen years, or however long the occupation of the left bank of the Rhine may continue.

Political Questions Raised.

If Foch has been able to get this concession from the Americans, he has accomplished it against a strong inclination not to grant it. It is known that President Wilson has time and again told M. Clemenceau that the American people would not approve maintaining an army of occupation in Germany after the signing of peace and it was generally supposed at one time in Paris that he would stand like adamant on that point.

Political advisers of President Wilson feared that the Republicans would make campaign material next year out of the retention of American troops in France. In discussing the matter one day an astute Democratic politician told me that he could even then hear the Republicans promising that they would bring the boys home if they got enough votes. However, with all the original members of the expedition home and with only one regiment on the Seine and that composed of volunteers for the particular service, his fear might not be so well founded.

PREPARE BERLINERS FOR A REJECTION

Official Handbills Hint That Allies Are Bluffing and Negotiations Will Continue.

LACK NEWS ON THE TREATY

Strike Still Ties Up Newspapers in Capital and Government Brings In Provincial Papers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 16.—This is the third newspaperless day and Berliners do not know what is happening in the world and what may be expected from Versailles. THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is officially informed, however, that the treaty text is expected to arrive at Wolff's News Agency between 10 and 12 o'clock tonight and at the same time in Weimar. Whether it will be published depends on the striking newspaper employes, who still refuse a further generous compromise offered by the employers, and insist on an average weekly increase of ten marks.

The employers say they would grant this if the strikers gave a guarantee not to strike again for an increase within a certain time. The employers also fear that if the increase is granted to those striking now all the other employes—compositors, pressmen, stereotypers, and others belonging to the regular newspaper staff, who still report daily and are being paid, though no newspapers reach the public—will immediately strike for a similar increase.

Up to noon to day no serious trouble has occurred, although strikers here and there behaved provokingly toward the soldiers guarding the newspaper district, and consequently the guards were much strengthened toward evening, some streets being entirely closed.

All day long a number of airplanes patrolled the city overhead, and certain districts were patrolled by armored cars.

The Government, fearing the strike may last days yet, has arranged with certain provincial papers to print extra editions for Berlin. Their paper ration was correspondingly increased, and special trains were placed at their service. The first to arrive in Berlin toward noon was the Socialist Leipziger Tageblatt with some 30,000 copies, which sold like hot cakes. Tomorrow Hanover, Hamburg, and Dresden papers will supply Berlin, altogether with about 500,000 copies.

The German Government thinks that in these critical times the people must be informed of Germany's fate, and therefore is having handbills distributed free of charge which contain the most important news. From the bulletins issued in this way, too, the Government is preparing the public for its probable action after the Entente's reply is received.

Here is a verbatim copy of the most important of these handbills, headed "Ultimatum or Further Negotiation":

"The communications from France, England, and America prove clearly that the enemy is divided into two opposing parties, one wishing negotiations with Germany, the other insisting that any alteration of the treaty be rejected and that a short-timed ultimatum be sent to Germany. Will these two parties agree at the last hour?

"Until now our enemies always agreed, because Germany accepted whatever the enemy chose to dictate. That may influence his action now, and therefore no German must be surprised if the enemy again sends an ultimatum, as the two opposing parties will probably agree on the following course:

"First, an ultimatum must be tried on Germany, since until now Germany has submitted to everything. Only, if the ultimatum fails, will negotiations be resumed.

"If Germany permits that ultimatum to bluff her, then she will sign her own death sentence.

"If the ultimatum is rejected no continuation of the war need be feared, because the enemy, too, needs peace.

"Consequently negotiations will continue until the peace conditions make Germany's future existence possible."

FOOD RIOTS AT LUEBECK.

Shops and Restaurants Plundered at North German Port.

BERNE, June 17.—Serious disorders, said to be due to a food shortage, took place at Lübeck, the north German port, on Saturday.

A large number of shops were plundered, according to reports received here, and the important restaurants and hotels were sacked by the crowds.

PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR BELGIAN VISIT

Departs from Paris Late at Night and Will Reach Brussels This Afternoon.

PARIS, June 17. (Associated Press.)—President Wilson, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and a small party, which included some heads of departments of the American Peace Mission, left Paris tonight at 10:40 o'clock for Adinkerke, Belgium, where the train will arrive tomorrow morning and be sidetracked.

The President and his party will await there the arrival of the King and Queen of Belgium, who will conduct them through the devastated regions.

Mr. Wilson will reach Brussels between 2 and 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

TELLS OF FIGHTS IN CRACOW

Polish Consul General Issues Dispatch Saying Soldiers Aided Jews.

K. Busressynck, Polish Consul General at New York, yesterday issued a dispatch which he had received from the Polish Government and had sent to the State Department. It read as follows:

June 6 there took place at Cracow a series of disturbances throwing light on provocational plots which have been originated by elements inimical to Poland with the evident purpose of discrediting Poland in the eyes of foreign countries. These disturbances were occasioned by an insignificant conflict in a Jewish shop by people who were excited. The police tried immediately to stop the disturbances, but there were some victims among the soldiers. Jews who shot at soldiers trying to end disturbances were arrested, and fifty rifles were confiscated from them. There was also arrested a German, who provoked the disturbances. This man claimed to be a Police Commissioner, but was unable to produce any proof to that effect.

Only the energetic conduct of the troops suppressed the disorders, and then only after some hours. The soldiers prevented efforts of the crowd, excited by the German provocator, to penetrate into the Jewish parts of the town. At present absolute calm reigns in Cracow. The Mayor has issued a proclamation, and the newspapers are supporting him, in an effort to prevent foreign agitators from stirring the people to anti-Jewish excesses.

KNOX WOULD STUDY LEAGUE COVENANT

Knox resolution tomorrow, presenting an analysis of the League covenant from the viewpoint of any infringement it may embrace of American sovereignty. Mr. McCumber, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, is opposed to the Knox resolution and in favor of the League of Nations.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, announced that he would speak on the Knox resolution on Friday. Mr. Thomas's attitude is understood to be against the resolution, although he has expressed himself as favoring changes in the League covenant.

Mr. Knox spoke without interruption. The only comment made by any Senator at the end of his speech was by Mr. Walsh of Montana. Mr. Knox had spoken of the Montana Senator's statement in the Senate a few days ago that Article X., guaranteeing territorial integrity of members of the League of Nations, was no different in its application than the territorial integrity the United States already guaranteed to Panama in return for the Panama Canal concession. Sentor Knox insisted that there was no analogy between the two guarantees. Under the League of Nations, he said, the United States would be obliged to protect boundaries laid out by the Peace Treaty, and would have to send forces, if necessary, to assure that guarantee.

Mr. Walsh insisted, in reply to Mr. Knox's assertion, that the guarantees were identical. Senator Williams of Mississippi later declared that the guarantee the United States gave Cuba under the Cuban treaty was also like that provided under the League of Nations Covenant.

Urges Need of Caution.

At the start of his speech, after saying that his resolution does not call for a vote on the League of Nations, or even an expression of opinion on it, Senator Knox warned the Senate that if it does not proceed cautiously it may commit the United States to an international policy from which it cannot withdraw. A vote against his resolution, he said, would be a vote against giving the Senate an opportunity to analyze the League of Nations.

At the outset he deplored partisan alignment upon the League of Nations project, saying he would not be a party to it.

"The only issue before us," he insisted, "is whether we are to take time to consider this momentous question before we 'advise and consent' to its ratification."

For six months, Senator Knox declared, the peace negotiations had been under way at Paris, while a world "sick and weary of war" awaited the outcome of "secret quibbling, bartering and quarreling."

"Meanwhile, Europe is in turmoil to the point of anarchy and chaos," declared the Pennsylvanian. "Our own country remains in a status of war, under irksome laws inimical to our freedom. Influences hostile to our Government and its institutions thrive and propaganda, socialists, Bolsheviki, and anarchists feed, fatten, and grow to threatening proportions on the fears of the people. The people themselves are torn by uncertainties and dread, and industry and commerce lag and wait. We must, sir, have peace—a wise and permanent peace, and to get this we must have the wisdom of the Senate, as well as the wisdom of the Executive. The resolution before us has been proposed to facilitate and insure, so far as this is humanly possible, the making of such a right peace."

Senator Knox took up the first paragraph of his resolution, which, he said, "merely recited the fact of the declaration of war, the reason why we went to war, and the ends sought by the war." Quoting from the paragraph that the Senate "will look with disfavor upon all treaty provisions which go beyond the end" of a peace assuring to the United States the aims for which it went to war, Mr. Knox declared he could see no basis for objection to the phraseology. Germany had violated the rights of navigation, and, in other ways, had committed warlike acts against the United States, he said, and this country entered the conflict to bring the German method of warfare to a successful termination. With this aim accomplished, he argued, the purpose of the United States had been achieved, and this was the "full limit to which America had authorized its Government to go."

"Efforts of some months since to secure plenipotentiary powers from the people to go further and beyond this ended in conspicuous failure amounting to repudiation," declared Mr. Knox.

Derogations from Sovereignty.

The Senator alluded to his speech of last March, in which he declared certain of the League provisions were unconstitutional because they "contained derogations from our sovereignty."

"I am advised that the soundness of this position has been challenged," he proceeded, "and that my challengers have reasoned that since the treaty-making power is endowed with authority to make treaties governing our relations with other countries in matters which derogate from our absolute sovereignty, therefore the treaty-making power may legitimately and constitutionally make treaties which may derogate from our sovereignty, and that finally, the foregoing premises being viewed as sound, the conclusion is drawn that, since the treaty-making power may so make treaties which derogate from sovereignty in certain matters, it may make treaties which derogate from sovereignty in all matters.

"The difficulty with this argument is that it proves too much. The syllogism is a false one. It is perfectly true that Congress can make treaties which derogate from our national sovereignty, can bind us to do things and not to do things, as to which as sovereign we lay, prior to the treaty, under no obligation. It is also true that the line between what the treaty-making power may do and what it may not do is in many places indistinctly traced. But there are certain definite things which we all concede that the treaty-making power may do, and there are certain other things which, I take it, we will all agree the treaty-making power may not do."

No one would be bold enough to say, Mr. Knox proceeded, that Congress could assume, by treaty, to make King George President of the United States. There were many other things, he said, which Congress could not do by treaty.

"We have now only those powers with which the sovereign people have endowed us," said the Senator. "Standing in this position and having these limitations, it is right that we should proclaim to the people, whose servants we are, that we know our powers and the extent of our authority, and it is but fair to those who negotiate with us at the peace table that they should likewise be made aware of the extent of our power and of the limitation of our authority, as they are set forth in this resolution."

Oppression of Weak Nations.

Mr. Knox took up criticism that had been leveled against the clause in his resolution that "the treaty as drawn contains principles, guarantees, and undertakings obliterative of legitimate race and national aspirations, oppressive of weak nations and peoples, and destructive of human progress and liberty."

Senators had asked him, he said, to designate the features of the treaty that justified this arraignment.

"I hasten to give some of them," said Mr. Knox, "sufficient, at least, to show that the charge, as drawn, is true.

"As the covenant is now framed, it contains the pernicious provisions embodied in Article X., which are designed to fix through all time—and merit is made of this purpose of the provision—the boundaries set up by the treaty of peace. It is no secret that these boundaries are already, though not yet fixed, other than in contemplation, the subject of serious complaint and even of dispute. Peoples are objecting to their disposition by this treaty, which once more hands them about as mere pawns in a game of chess, and those who are so objecting are not our sworn enemies over whom we stand victors, but our friends, our allies, or equals in this undertaking and in their rights to enjoy the benefits of its happy fruition.

"No matter what may be the desires of these discontented peoples in the future, no matter what race affinities may be hereafter worked out, no matter what their real interest may demand or a wise statesmanlike handling of their affairs would counsel, their boundaries stand fixed, subject to readjustment under such covenant procedure as would make futile any hope of change. Could any scheme more obliterative of legitimate race and national aspirations be concocted?

"Moreover, word has come from Paris within the last week that, upon complaint of certain of the smaller Balkan powers as to provisions of the treaty affecting them, our own Chief Executive has warned them that it was proposed under the covenant so to control their domestic affairs that minorities within their jurisdiction should be handled as the League saw fit, and not as the States themselves might deem expedient. In other words, the proposal is to set up this League as a master over the small nations of earth, with power to compel them to do as the League wishes, to travel along the roads that the League points out, and to reach that destiny alone to which the League orients. Is not such a plan sufficiently oppressive of weak nations and peoples?"

Dynamite in Irish Question.

"And in this connection it may be well worth while to have in mind the announcement from Paris that our President has declared the Irish question—the political dynamite of the whole Anglo-Saxon race—might properly be the subject of consideration by the League, when established, and the suggestion, heard in the United States, that, by a parity of reasoning, it may be contended that the negro question of the United States—for we have such a question, vital, far-reaching, and ominous—might receive a like consideration."

As to the clause in his resolution that the Senate "advises that the great and paramount, if not the sole, duty of the Peace Conference is to quickly bring to all of the belligerents a full and complete peace," Mr. Knox said that in some quarters there seemed to be doubt that the Senate actually had power to advise in treaty-making, but that its sole power pertained to ratification. He proceeded to cite Washington, Monroe, Jackson, Polk, Buchanan, Grant, and other Presidents as having advised with the Senate before treaties were submitted for ratification.

"In the face of these precedents," argued Mr. Knox, "running over practically the whole course of our history, I deem it unnecessary further to contend for the constitutional right of the Senate to advise the President in the present negotiations as to the sort of treaty which it regards as desirable. I must therefore assume that no constitutional objection can be raised to these clauses."

The crux of the entire resolution, Mr. Knox declared, was the clause providing that the treaty be drawn so as to "permit any nation to reserve without prejudice to itself for further separate and full consideration by its people the question of any League of Nations; that neither such an article nor the exercise of the rights reserved thereunder, whether at the time of signature, the time of ratification, or at any other time, shall affect the substance of the obligations of Germany and its co-belligerents under the treaty, nor the validity of signature and ratification upon their behalf."

This, Mr. Knox explained, "is meant to set out the diplomatic procedure, the treaty mechanism, by which we may be able to secure, without embarrassment to ourselves or our Allies and without advantage to our enemy, the time and the opportunity to discuss the covenant of the League of Nations."

Senator Knox had been asked, he said, to explain the meaning of a clause in his resolution reading: "That any indispensable participation by the United States in matters covered by the League covenant, pending the entry of the United States into the League, be accomplished through diplomatic commissions, which shall be created with full power in the premises."

Enforcement of Peace.

"If," explained Mr. Knox, "it should be the duty of the United States, as one of the co-belligerents and a party to the treaty of peace, to co-operate with the other co-belligerents to enforce any of the terms of peace that would require our co-operation as a cobelligatory, and if by the terms of the treaty there is delegated to the League of Nations any function in respect to such terms that should require the co-operation of the United States, then, under this resolution, our country's co-operation with the League would be accomplished through a commission of other diplomatic agency, which is wholly in accord with existing international usage.

"It admit that the course proposed would result in a separate consideration and treatment of the peace terms, as distinguished from the covenant of the League, but, in explanation and as sufficient justification, I adopt as quite adequate the statement of an unnamed American delegate to the Peace Conference, who, (as reports the Associated Press,) in replying to an inquiry why the covenant of the League of Nations had been published, said that while the covenant was part of the treaty, it does not actually deal with the terms of peace and consequently is essentially of a different character.

Urging that his resolution ought to be adopted in its entirety, Mr. Knox went on:

"The only question remaining for our consideration is whether or not the covenant of the League of Nations contains any provisions requiring that maturity of thought and deliberation for which the opportunity is by this resolution requested. In a certain aspect, the answer to this question is not without difficulty. When the covenant in its original form was first proclaimed to the American people, it was heralded by its proponents as a plan for the organization of a great world State, which was to compel the obedience not only of its constituent members, but of all others who might be outside and beyond its pale.

"We were told armed force is in the background of this program, but it is in the background, and, if the moral force of the world will not suffice, the physical force of the world shall. But that is the result, because this is heralded as a constitution of peace, not as a league of war.

League of Peace or War?

"But when the people of the United States and we here in the Senate began calmly to consider the plan proposed and to look beneath the unctuous phrases in which it was couched, some apprehension began to be felt that, possibly, after all, there was a legitimate question as to whether this was a constitution of peace or a league of war. In this alleged instrument of peace was is legalized in seven cases and made compulsory in three.

"If the proposed plan is not what its terms on their face would seem to indicate, if, after all, the peoples of the world are being misled in this matter by a hope which it is not even intended they should realize, if this is a trick, with its promoters conscious that it is such, it must be conspicuously tossed aside, without further consideration. It is because of this possibility, which has been gradually insinuated into the minds of the people, that I have said the matter was not free from doubt.

"But if, on the other hand, the plan is intended to be a living plan, instinct with mighty powers, whether for good or for evil, then it behooves us to face it as men and carefully and calmly to deliberate upon its provisions and determine our course with respect thereto. I am proceeding on the theory that the covenant is not to be a cadaver, but a living, operating body.

"It is my sole present purpose to do no more than support my contention that the treaty is overflowing with matters which demand a consideration that shall be full, calm, and free from passion, and that shall be characterized by a spirit of deep and unselfish devotion to one's country.

"I now ask for time merely to consider whether or not, under the covenant as drawn, the power to put us at war will still rest with us or be placed in a body outside our own Government, and, if placed outside, whether or not such lodging of this sovereign power is desirable. I ask only for time to deliberate whether we shall put it beyond our power to increase the size of our army or our navy in times of dire emergency, without first consulting the wish or desires of other countries, some of whom may not be wholly disinterested in the conclusion they reach.

"I ask simply that we be given a breathing pause, after we finish our battles, before we obligate ourselves to maintain for all time the territorial status quo which is to be set up by this treaty, time to know whether we are prepared to say there never can be such a change in circumstance or condition, such a change of sympathy and of ideal as would make improper this partitioning of the world to which it is proposed we shall now become a party and a sponsor, and as to which we shall be guarantor.

Surrender of Sovereignty.

"I ask for time to deliberate whether it is wisdom for us and for the world that we shall enter into a superstate where, notwithstanding we are the most powerful nation in the world, with the most advanced and enlightened Government, we nevertheless shall become subject to the control of a body a good part of which will be made up of the representatives of imperial Governments and Kings with dynastic and other interests to serve alien to us, and with a further number who are representatives of nations that are inevitably under the domination and control of these autocracies.

"I ask for time to bring to bear any power of prescience which we possess upon the question of whether or not we wish to submit to the control and domination of the League bodies questions involving our own purely internal affairs; for while, under the covenant as originally drawn, it was open to argument that such matters were excluded from the purview of the League bodies, yet I submit there can be now little doubt that under the treaty as redrafted such matters are only not withdrawn from the jurisdiction of the League, but are actually and positively placed within the scope of its activities."

Under Article IV., Senator Knox said, all disputes among nations would be submitted to the League Council, and, if no decision were reached, to the entire body of delegates.

"It seems therefore clear," said the Senator, "that, by joining the League, not we, but the Council, shall determine whether any matter is solely within our domestic jurisdiction; and as affecting the decision of the Council and as indicating the principle by which it will be guided, we must bear in mind the provision of Article II. that it is also declared to be the friendly right of each member of the League to bring to the attention of the Assembly or of the Council any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threaten to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends; also the provisions of Article III., which provides that the assembly may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of the action of the League or affecting the peace of the world; and of Article IV., which provides that the Council may deal at its meetings with any matter within the sphere of action of the League or affecting the peace of the world.

"I must, therefore, ask for time to consider whether or not such vital matters as our right to regulate immigration, our right to make alliances with other nations, our right to make reciprocity treaties upon such terms as we see fit, our right to make with our adjacent neighbors treaties such as we have with Cuba, incorporating the Platt amendment, our right to intervene diplomatically to protect the lives and property of our nationals in other countries, and our right to intervene and adopt means and methods necessary to protect the people of our own borders from the encroachment of robber bands from adjacent unsettled countries shall remain within the sole determination of our will and purpose or shall be subjected to the determination of a League body."

Status of Monroe Doctrine.

The Monroe Doctrine, Mr. Knox said, would also come under the purview of the League of Nations. Quoting the Monroe Doctrine reservation in the League covenant, he said:

"I am bound in all soberness to say that the author of this language either had a profound ignorance of what the Monroe Doctrine is, or is determined to make out of it something it is not and ought not to be. In either event, the result of the League provision is the same, it completely wipes out the Doctrine as it has been accepted and enforced for a hundred years, as my further observations will show.

"In the first place, the Doctrine is not an 'international engagement,' nor is it an understanding, regional or otherwise, all of which are of necessity reached by international agreement, formal or informal, by and between two or more nations. There is nothing in the circumstances attending the framing and proclamation of the Doctrine, nothing in the various discussions and pronouncements concerning it, which even remotely resembles the making of an international agreement. It is no more such an agreement than is the pronouncement of Washington against entangling foreign alliances, or our nation-old practice of neutrality, or our labor-protecting Chinese exclusion, or our protective tariffs, or our regulation of immigration.

"The Monroe Doctrine is and, if it is to perform the service it has heretofore rendered, must continue to be merely a policy, as are all those others I have named. Its precise character, the extent, method and time of its application, the means of compelling its observance, all are matters of our high and unControlled will and sovereign prerogative."

Criticises Withdrawal Clause.

Mr. Knox attacked the clause in the League covenant providing that nations may withdraw from membership by giving two years' notice, provided its obligations as a member have been fulfilled.

"It is difficult to believe," declared Mr. Knox, "that there is not here some error in wording, that those who drafted the provision have failed to understand the meaning of the negotiators, for it would be hard to draw a provision which, purporting to give a right to withdraw, should at the same time make withdrawal so completely and absolutely impossible. No nation may withdraw unless at the time of its withdrawal, notified two years in advance, all of the international obligations and of its obligations under this covenant shall have been fulfilled, and the party who determines the question of fulfillment or non-fulfillment is the League itself, from which the nation is to withdraw.

"Are we or are we not entitled to time to deliberate whether it is wise that we tie ourselves in a covenant which so completely binds us to the will or whim of other partners?" demanded the Senator. "For it must always be remembered in respect of these things that affirmative action by the Council—and, release from the League would, to take its affirmative action—must be unanimous, and any one power in the Council, whatever its motive and whatever its end, might, under this provision as it stands, make us permanent members of the League, our wills to the contrary notwithstanding.

"To deny a hearing in a cause is contrary to fundamental principles of Anglo-Saxon law. To deny a hearing in this cause is to give substance to the suspicion already abroad in the land that those to whom we gave our sons and our substance in the hour of their need, and distress are now, in adjusting their terms of peace with the Central Powers, attempting to force upon us the harsh alternative of choosing, on the one hand, between a treaty of peace with which is intertwined denationalizing covenants relating to the distinctly separate subject of a League of Nations, or, upon the other hand, the necessity of concluding a separate peace or continuing a status of war. We must not increase the already growing distrust by any deliberate act of ours.

"If this covenant be a good thing, surely its merits will be the better appreciated after careful study. If the debate that preceded our Declaration of Independence raged for almost a decade before the Revolution; if the debate over the meaning of the Constitution as to the powers of the nation and the rights of the States lasted for generations and is not yet ended; if every great question in every free country has required a long period of discussion and thought before the people could reach a conclusion upon it, should not this, one of the most fundamental and far-reaching proposals ever made to the American people, also receive careful and extended examination before the people are called upon to give their assent?"

"If the covenant be not a good thing, certainly the agitated days following a great war should not be seized upon to burden the country with a policy which it has not examined and which is no necessary part of the making of peace.

Warns Against "Undue Haste."

"Why, then, this undue haste? Do those of you who wish to prevent the people from deliberately considering this proposition mean to suggest that, pending such consideration, we would neglect any duty we owe to the world because we had not by formal writing bound ourselves to its performance? If so, I ask, where was the treaty obligation that bound us to rush to the rescue of a conflagrant world? Shall we be less sensitive of our duties during the months of sober contemplation of the momentous questions involved in this step? Shall we or shall we not have time to consider whether we shall go on through history the masters of our own fate, confident in the superiority of our own institutions and civilisations, and able and willing to give to humanity the blessings which we ourselves possess, unhampered by the jealousies and bickerings of a world to which we do not belong and with the aspirations of a good part of which we are not in accord.

"We saved the liberties of Europe, and, in order to insure them for the future, we have acquiesced in our associates absorbing the gigantic spoils of the common victory. Perhaps we may be willing to guarantee their perpetual possession of those spoils, as is proposed in Article X. of the covenant. Perhaps we may be willing to surrender our liberties to foreign domination. But let us think it over and know the full import of our act.

"This resolution asks no more than to request the Peace Conference, while the negotiations are still open and subject to change, by a single line to concede our right to consider what we are asked to do, without delaying peace. What Senator can justify a negative vote? Beware of the possible consequences of haste. God forbid that the war that was to end all war shall conclude with a peace that may end all peace."

May Declare War at an End.

WASHINGTON, June 17. (Associated Press.)—Announcement that Germany must act finally on the peace terms by June 23 greatly diminished hopes of bringing the Knox resolution to a vote before the treaty is signed at Versailles, the result was a series of conferences today among League opponents, who previously had planned to try for a roll call to warn the peace delegates what opposition the League would encounter if submitted here intertwined with the treaty.

Although no definite course had been agreed on tonight, it is likely there will be a desperate effort to have a test vote on some collateral issue Friday or Saturday. An alternative suggestion under consideration is the introduction of a joint resolution to declare the war at an end and thus relieve Congress of blame from prolongation of war conditions, while ratification of the treaty is delayed.

It is not thought likely that there will be an effort to bring the Knox measure technically before the Senate until Friday, when Chairman Lodge of the Foreign Relations Committee returns to the capital. The debate on it will continue, however.

NEW PRIZE RUMOR SPURS OCEAN FLIERS

HOPE TO BEAT VIMY'S MARK

Three More British Planes Are Going Ahead with Preparations for the Atlantic Flight.

Special to The New York Times.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., June 17.—Now that the period of depression and disappointment due to the failure to get away in time to be in the Newfoundland to Ireland air race, has passed, the Handley-Page expedition is on edge for a Newfoundland to England flight. They were much interested in a report that The Daily Mail had offered a new prize for a New York to London flight, but a few moments' consideration convinced them that their big biplane is not equal to that journey.

Though its extreme gasoline capacity is 2,000 gallons, it has been decided to carry only 1,700 on the journey decided on, and this promises a cruising radius of between 22 and 24 hours. Admiral Kerr, particularly, is eager for a flight to or from America, but his hopes for this lie in the future, and at present he, like the other members of the party, is bending all his efforts toward bettering the Vimy's distance record.

One phase of Alcock and Brown's success that has cheered their erstwhile rivals here is the success of the twin Rolls-Royce Eagle engines. The Handley-Page is fitted with four similar engines, and now that the prospect of their functioning well on a long cross ocean flight is deducible from the Vimy's trip, the hope of making a new world's distance record is brightening.

Alcock's brief discussion of his flight, which has reached here, is receiving great attention, and particularly his reported declaration that the nursing of his engines contributed greatly to his success. It was his intention, when he left, to give his power plant just this gentle coaxing-treatment, and it is more than probable that his example in this regard will be followed.

With confidence in their engines established, the aviators here feel free to devote their major attention to questions of navigation and the weather. Every hour's reflection convinces them more firmly that since racing conditions no longer prevail it were unwise to start until an ideal day presents itself.

This, however, is a month of westerly winds, according to all records, and the good news came today that the weather in mid-Atlantic, which began breaking up yesterday, was improving again. The effect of this was apparent at once in a burst of renewed energy, and tonight work was almost completed on the new Handley-Page radiators received from England to replace the inadequate ones which prevented the machine from getting off on the same day as the Vickers-Vimy.

All hopes are based upon these and it was the intention until late this afternoon to give them a trial in the air. Low lying clouds, making it difficult to conduct a test under the proper conditions, caused this to be abandoned. If the weather clears there will be a trial flight early tomorrow morning. The purpose is to fly for an hour or more with all four engines going full speed in order to determine whether the circulation in the new radiators is sufficiently increased over that of the old ones to keep the engines cool.

Judging from a ground inspection, it is believed they will solve the problem and that the last mechanical difficulty thus will be overcome. If this proves true, a flight once more becomes an imminent possibility. Realizing that their morale is not benefited by the tedium of waiting, all the members of the crew are anxious to "hop off" at the earliest possible moment. For this reason Major Taylor, the meteorological officer attached to the expedition, with Lieutenant Lawrence L. Clements, Air Ministry meteorological officer at St. John's, is keeping close tabs on the ocean conditions.

Taylor will flash word from St. John's the instant the right opportunity offers. In the meantime the machine will be fully fueled, if tomorrow's test proves what is hoped from it, and so the "hop off" may come much sooner than the Handley-Page men themselves yesterday believed possible.

None the less they are aware that if the weather does not behave as well as they have been led today to expect, there may be much delay. The taking on of the extra distance from Ireland to England means that the machine absolutely must have the wind under her tail, and much wind in the right direction at that. Even then she must keep well on her course in order to succeed, as she has little, if any, cruising radius to spare.

It was announced here today that Boulton & Paul, the English firm which is sending three biplanes to Newfoundland with the intention of flying two of them across, has completed arrangements for using the Handley-Page aerodrome as soon as the present users have departed. For a time this firm wavered between the aerodrome here, the largest in Newfoundland, and the Vickers aerodrome from which the Vimy "hopped off." The last named, however, is to be used by the Alliance concern, whose biplane, the "Sea Bird," is expected in about two weeks. Because of the prospective Boulton-Paul arrivals, the W. Alban Richards Company is going ahead with the erection of its portable hangar which originally was intended to house the Handley-Page.

This structure, complying with the Royal Air Force specifications and originally designed for war use, is of a sturdy build, particularly suitable for this country, and with its wooden girders fitted together with interlocking steel plates, and its canvas sides and roof reminds one about equally of a circus tent and "Billy" Sunday's tabernacle. It is one of the largest ever built, being 130 feet long, 60 feet wide, 25 feet high in front and 20 at the rear, and having a clear space of 130 by 40 for housing the airplane, the rest being usable for shop room.

Fly from Gulf to Chicago.

CHICAGO, June 17.—Two navy seaplanes completed a trip from New Orleans to Chicago today when they alighted in Lake Michigan at the foot of East Randolph Street at 10:30 o'clock. The final leg of the flight was from Peoria, Ill., where unfavorable weather forced an interruption yesterday of their flight from St. Louis. The planes were piloted by Lieut. Commander Stanley and Ensign Arthur. A third plane which left St. Louis with them was delayed in Peoria.

AMERICAN NAVY FLIERS SAIL ON THE ZEPPELIN

BREST, June 17.—The American transport Zeppelin sailed at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the United States, with Commander John H. Towers, head of the American naval aeroplane expedition which recently made the record transatlantic flight, on board, together with Lieut. Commander Albert C. Read, who commanded the NC-4. With them also were Lieut. Commanders Little and Richardson, members of the NC crews.

The naval aviators received a great send-off. French hydroaeroplanes and other types of aircraft hovered overhead, performing gymnastic feats and accompanying the transport to the other roads. Rockets were fired and Very lights displayed.

The transport Mobile left here soon after the Zeppelin. The two ships are carrying 10,000 troops of the 7th Division and the Service of Supply.

The American fliers were enthusiastic yesterday when they read of the successful Atlantic flight by Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant Brown. The time made by the Vickers-Vimy biplane driven by Captain Alcock surprised these experienced aviators, and they remarked that conditions for the flight must have been perfect.

"You have got to hand it to a man when he takes such chances," said Lieut. Commander Read. "We did our duty, and are delighted to see others follow our air steps."

Referring to the reported utterance of Harry G. Hawker, whose Sopwith plane fell into the Atlantic when he was attempting a flight from Newfoundland to Ireland, that "it was easy to cross the Atlantic with a warship every twenty yards," Lieut. Commander Read said he believed Hawker merely desired to relieve the British Admiralty of criticism for not having patrolled his course.

"Hawker himself asked the Admiralty not to place warships along his path," he said. "A man of Hawker's sportsmanship and courage is incapable of making such a remark as was reported. You may say that Hawker's explanation is perfectly satisfactory to me."

AMERICAN FLIERS PLAN TO JOIN POLISH CORPS

Copyright, 1919, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

PARIS, June 17.—Young America is still spoiling for a scrap. Fliers who have not had enough war are planning to enter the anti-Bolshevist campaign via the air, ad it is not a propaganda campaign, either. Several discharged American officers in Paris and many in the United States have offered their services to the Polish flying corps.

Today I learned from the highest sources that these officers will be accepted. The Americans will be organized as quickly as possible into a foreign legion which hopes to carry out the traditions of the Lafayette Escadrille.

The movement is of greater magnitude than the American participation in French flying. One pilot whose name cannot be divulged, but who is an ace with an American Distinguished Service Cross, has offered himself and twenty men as a fighting squadron. In addition many individuals are inquiring every day for opportunities to fly in Poland.

These offers are made not in a commercial spirit, but for the possibility of fighting against the Germans. It appears the Germans will be active enemies of the new nation in the near future. American fliers with whom I have talked are enthusiastic over the movement.

"If we can work with the Polish troops recruited in America, we will make an All-American affair of it," they say.

Deeper than a desire for revenge against Germany is the spirit of sacrifice which is behind the serious thought of every man who enters the service. No one will throw away his life just for revenge. They see in Poland a nation struggling to throw off the oppression of a century. They remember how Kosiuszko came to the defense of America during the Revolution and their efforts for Polish nationalism will be consecrated to this great hero of our own struggle for independence.

STIRS AMERICA'S AMBITION.

Our Airmen to Try a Nonstop Flight.

That American aeronautic engineers and aviators will not be satisfied until a non-stop flight from the United States to England and France has been made is the opinion expressed by Henry Woodhouse, Vice President of the Aerial League of America.

Mr. Woodhouse, who arrived from Atlantic City yesterday, where he has been in connection with the Atlantic City airport activities, stated that several engineers and aviators, including a major, a captain and several lieutenants, who are in the air service, were making plans for a non-stop transatlantic flight from the United States to England and another from the United States to France.

"The flight of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown has acted as a dare to some American aeronautic engineers, manufacturers, and aviators," said Mr. Woodhouse. "The British airmen flew from British soil to British soil. The NC seaplanes flew from British soil to British soil. American aviators want to fly across the Atlantic from the United States, and when everything is considered, they are right.

"It is obvious that transatlantic airlines to be of maximum commercial value to the United States will have to fly from the United States and cross the Atlantic in non-stop flight by the shortest route. Different aviators have different favorite ways and routes which they wish to try in conquering the Atlantic by air. The brilliant exploits of Commander Read and his gallant crew and of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown make it possible to plan the conquering of the Atlantic by the harder ways."

PLAN FLIGHT TO SEATTLE.

Four Army Planes to Fly from Mineola to That City.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The army air service announced today that four planes of the Curtis JN-4 type soon would start on a transcontinental flight from Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, N. Y., to Seattle, Wash. The flight will be to map out an aerial route between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

The personnel of the squadron, which will be accompanied by an observation balloon and motor trucks, will consist of sixteen officers and thirty-six enlisted men. Stops will be made at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Indianapolis, Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Fargo, Bismarck, and several other cities.

NEW CHICAGO-CLEVELAND PLAN

Fliers' Mail Will Catch Twentieth Century Limited.

CHICAGO, June 17.—A new schedule for the Chicago-Cleveland air mail service, intended to save from sixteen to eighteen hours in delivery of Chicago mail in New York, was announced today.

Beginning June 20 a mail plane will leave Chicago at 2:30 P. M. for Cleveland, where the eastbound mail will be placed on the Twentieth Century Limited, which leaves Chicago at 12:40 P. M. Mail leaving Chicago on an 11 P. M. train will be dropped at Cleveland for air transportation from there to New York.

URGES $45,000,000 FOR NAVY AVIATION

Aeronautical Society of America Supports Secretary Daniels's Program.

NEED OF LANDING STATIONS

Letter to Senator Page Shows That United States Is Far Behind England and France.

Urging that everything possible be done to preserve that part of the Naval Bill containing Secretary of the Navy Daniels's recommendation for an appropriation of $45,000,000 to be used for the development and carrying out of the navy's aviation program, the Aeronautical Society of America, through its President, Mots H. Avram, has sent a letter to Senator Carroll S. Page, Chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, asking that he use his influence to preserve that section of the bill. At the same time Mr. Avram sent a telegram to Mr. Daniels advising him of the action of the society. A copy of the letter was also forwarded.

In the letter to Senator Page Mr. Avram drew his attention to the large appropriations being made by England and France for the same purpose. He emphasized the necessity of an ample appropriation for the development of the science and industry of aviation and aeronautics in the United States. It is only through Government co-operation and leadership, wrote Mr. Avram, that private capital and enterprise will be encouraged in the development of aviation along commercial lines. He particularly emphasized the necessity for the establishment of adequate landing fields at strategic points in the United States, fully equipped with posts, signals and flares to enable aviators to make safe landings at any hour of the day or night without danger to themselves or their machines. The letter from Mr. Avram to Senator Page follows:

"I know I speak the minds of all the members of the Aeronautical Society of America, of which I am President, when I say that the appropriation which Secretary Daniels of the navy has asked through Congress, amounting to $46,000,000, should not be further reduced. It is urgently necessary at this time, when England and France are taking steps to advance the science of aviation that the United States should, as the leading nation of the world, do everything in its power to make possible further great achievements in conquering the air and aid in every way possible the efforts of private concerns and individuals.

"When compared with $320,000,000 which England is appropriating for its army and navy aircraft development, and the $250,000,000 which France is appropriating for the same purpose, the paltry $15,000,000 which is being considered by the Naval Committee of the Senate fades into insignificance.

"It would seem in the light of recent events—the successful bridging of the Atlantic by our own fliers and the more recent achievement by Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown in completing the first transatlantic nonstop flight—our own great Government would need no urging to do all within its power to aid in the further development of this great science.

"The importance of the achievement of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown as a contribution to world progress cannot be overemphasized and it is one that will grow in importance as it is more understandingly borne in on all of us that Europe has been actually brought within sixteen hours of North America. It does not require much imagination to appreciate the promises for the future, when by the co-operation and co-ordination of both the Government and private enterprise the hit-or-miss methods which up to the present have marked to a large degree the progress of the science of aviation have been removed.

"America cannot hope to keep abreast of aircraft development unless some comprehensive plan is worked out by the Government from which private capital may find encouragement for carrying on the work. Under conditions as they exist at present, no private corporation or individual, no matter how advanced their desires to promote the development of aviation, can hope by their own enterprise to accomplish much in advancing the science of aeronautics.

"Perhaps the most immediate need of aviation in this country is for properly located landing fields. The entire appropriation recommended by Mr. Daniels could well be spent for this purpose alone. Such action would immediately encourage private manufacturers to undertake on a large scale development of aviation along commercial lines.

"The Government, too, should formulate some plan designed to make use of the information and data now at its disposal as a result of the observations of Commander Read, Mr. Hawker, and Captain Alcock. The mystery of the navigation of the air above the seas is no longer a mystery. It is an accomplished fact from which great lessons have been learned and which might well be applied to the creation of new types of planes designed to meet the exigencies and peculiarities of transoceanic flight.

"The necessity of at once establishing landing fields is emphasized by the experience of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown when making their landing at Clifden. Mistaking a bog for a level stretch of ground, their machine was wrecked. Landing fields should be established at strategic points throughout the country and fully equipped with signals, posts and lights that safe landings may be made at any time of the day or night without danger to the machines or lives of the aviators.

"The recent events in aerial navigation have set the world forward by ten years, and each year hereafter will be equivalent to world progress to any decade in the past. To make the most of our opportunities, however, the Government must lead the way. The possibilities for transatlantic aerial mail service are not far removed. It is but a question of time before direct aerial passenger and freight service is a matter of daily occurrence between the Old and the New World. How soon it may be made an accomplished fact is but a question of Government leadership and co-operation in the development of aerial science.

"Congress can make all things possible and hasten the day by giving to Mr. Daniels the appropriation for which he has asked. It is lamentably small at the best. Aircraft development should not be retarded, neither should the army and navy be separated in this great work. To my mind, much could be accomplished by the appointment of a committee to act jointly for the army and navy, the committee to determine the exact status of aviation in this country, both as it exists under private enterprise and as it is operated by the Government. The first step should be a thorough study of aircraft development in England, France, and Italy, and by so doing determine exactly what measures be taken for the advancement of the science of aviation in the United States.

"Aircraft engineers and the people of America are aroused to a point of interest in aviation and its possibilities which Congress might do well to emulate. Any appropriation which your committee may feel disposed to make will be greeted with applause, but I urge you earnestly that the appropriation be as large as possible. I cannot urge too strongly the necessity for an appropriation comparable with those of England and France, and hope you will do everything in your power to meet the immediate needs for the promotion of this our newest and most promising industry."

RECEIVES FIRST REPLY TO AIR MAIL TO LONDON

Director of British War Savings Committee Answers Letter Carried to England on NC-4.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The first letter sent across the Atlantic by airplane was answered today, when a postman delivered to Harold Braddock, Director of the Savings Division of the Treasury Department, a communication from Sir Robert Kindersley, K. B. E., Chairman of the British National War Savings Committee.

When Commander Read hopped off at Trepassey Bay for the first successful transatlantic flight, in the naval airplane NC-4, he took with him a letter from Mr. Braddock to Sir Robert conveying the greetings of the Savings Division of the United States Treasury Department to those in charge of the British Savings Stamp campaign. Sir Robert's letter follows:

"I am writing to thank you for your kind letter of greetings, dated April 23. I desire to convey to you the congratulations of the National War Savings Committee on the results already obtained through the sale of War Savings Certificate Stamps in your country. I very much hope that the universal educational campaign in connection with savings which your organization has carried on throughout the United States may be lasting in its effect on the character of the American people.

"In this country we have sold $32,000,000 in war savings certificates, distributed among some 15,000,000 people, and the sale of these certificates continues at the rate of about $2,000,000 per week, while we have every reason to believe that the habit of saving has been permanently adopted by millions of our fellow-countrymen. Our great aim in the future will be to establish throughout the United Kingdom a strong savings movement, worked on a voluntary basis, for the purpose of safeguarding the interests of the small investor and educating the future generation in the habits of thrift, thereby strengthening their character, building up their independence, and creating opportunities for the masses."

The capital stock is $5,000,000. The Directors are William H. Workman, New York; Harry Clark, Montreal, and Julius Frank, Smith L. Sawley, and Cecil Brownlow, all of Ogdensburg.

SPALDING TO QUIT FLYING.

Noted Violinist, Returning from Service, Says War Helped Music.

Albert Spalding, the violinist, who served as an aviator in the A. E. F., returned home yesterday on the Dante Alighieri, which left Marseilles on May 20 with 1,897 troops on board. En route to the United States Lieutenant Spalding played frequently for the edification of the boys.

Lieutenant Spalding, who went over in November, 1917, as a liaison officer, was later sent to Foggia, Italy, where he received his training as a flier. He was then detailed as aid to Major Fiorello H. La Guardia, a member of Congress, who served in the American Air Service in Italy. He said that it was his opinion that the war helped, rather than hurt, music, because the American soldier was brought into contact with continental music and learned to appreciate the classics. He said that while interested intensely in aviation he would leave the army to resume his profession as a concert violinist.

Due to a shortage of coal the Dante Alighieri was detained at Gibraltar for eight days. To while away the time, which hung heavily, the Y. M. C. A. organized dances for the men. The officers used one deck and the enlisted men another. The young women from the Y. M. C. A. divided their dances between officers and doughboys. The troops on the steamer were mostly casuals.

TO FLY TO CORNELL.

Four University Aviators from Overseas to Make Special Flight.

Announcement was made at the Cornell Club, at 65 Park Avenue, last night that as a special feature of the Cornell University semi-centennial celebration, which will be held in Ithaca from June 20 to 23, four Cornell aviators, all overseas men and two of them aces, will leave Hazelhurst Field, Mineola, Long Island, this morning at 9:30 o'clock, proceeding to Ithaca by way of Albany.

The men will stop at Albany overnight and proceed the next morning on the second leg of the flight so as to arrive over Alumni Field in time for the opening of the celebration.

Those making up the party are Major Maurice Connelly, flight commander; Lieutenant J. A. Donaldson, and Lieutenant J. O. Creech, both American aces, and Lieutenant Ulysses G. Jones.

ALCOCK AND BROWN GET LONDON OVATION

AERIAL ESCORT FOR TRAIN

First Nonstop Transatlantic Fliers Parade and Are Entertained by Aero Club.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—London gave Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown a wonderful welcome tonight. The authorities, warned by the enthusiastic disorder of Harry Hawker's arrival, surrounded the aviators with police from the train to the Royal Aero Club, but they had hard work to keep them from the clutches of their admirers. The platform at Euston Station was barred strictly to all but ticket holders, but the privileged spectators made a considerable crowd.

Generals Swinton and Groves, represented the Air Ministry, Sir Trevor Dawson the Directors of the Vickers, and Harry Hawker and Mrs. Hawker were there with the Royal Aero Club party. The Mayor of St. Pancras again attended in civic state with the Town Clerk in wig and gown, and his great gilt mace.

As Captain Alcock stepped from the train the crowd surged forward, and the police were carried in front of it. They were propelled against the aviator and hurriedly formed a circle round him and so bore him, laughing and protesting, to his automobile.

Lieutenant Brown in the same way was dragged through the crowd, and only after they had shaken hands with dozens of admirers was a way made for the Mayor and his mace-bearer to extend his greeting.

By strenuous police exertions a way was cleared for the procession to start all the way to the club. Captain Alcock, hanging on tightly to the mailbag he had brought from Newfoundland, and Lieutenant Brown sat on the back of the automobile waving to the crowds along the route to the Royal Aero Club, where another hearty welcome awaited the transatlantic flyers.

Met by Brown's Father and Fiancee.

LONDON, June 17.—Captain John Alcock and Lieutenant A. W. Brown were carried on soldiers' shoulders from the Euston Railway Station to automobiles. Miss Marguerite Kennedy, Lieutenant Brown's fiancée, and her father met him on his way from Dublin and accompanied him here.

The parade proceeded from the station through great crowds lining Portland and Regent Streets, two of the widest of London's thoroughfares. Flags were flown from the buildings along the line of march and were waved by women and children.

A band led the way playing "See the Conquering Hero Comes" and "Rule Britannia." Officers of the Royal Air Force and members of the Aero Club rode in flag draped automobiles.

A feature of the celebration was an aerial escort which accompanied into London the train bearing the two aviators. At the station a large group of Generals and other officers, in uniform and wearing their decorations, and numerous persons of prominence were waiting to greet the two men. Large as were the crowds in the demonstration, they would have been greater but for the counterattraction, the opening of the season at the Ascot racetrack.

The gathering was as big and the cheering as loud as at the welcome to Hawker. The Lord Mayor and the Councillors of St. Pancras were again in attendance in their regalia, with a mace bearer. An address of welcome had been prepared, but it was drowned out by the rush, and the Mayor only had a chance to shake the hands of the airmen before they were lifted to the shoulders of the crowd and carried to their motor cars.

Hawker and his wife were conspicuous in the gathering at the station. Lieut. Commander De Witt C. Ramsey, staff commander of the American naval air forces in France, had a motor car in the parade.

At the Aero Club, Brig. Gen. Robert M. Groves, Deputy Chief of the Air Staff, read messages of congratulation from Major Gen. J. F. B. Seely, Under Secretary for Air, and Major Gen. Hugh Trenchard, commander of the independent air force. In response to wild cheering by the crowds outside the club, Alcock and Brown appeared at a window and made brief speeches of thanks.

The journey of the airmen from Dublin to London was one long series of ovations, beginning with a hearty send-off at Dublin. At the few stopping places large crowds assembled, and ceremonies more or less formal were staged. Even at stations through which the train rushed without stopping there were great gatherings, including bands and school children, cheering and waving of the Union Jack.

Captain Alcock told The Associated Press today that he intends to make a trip to the United States soon.

GREETINGS FROM CURTISS.

American Airplane Maker Cables Alcock and Brown.

"Heartiest congratulations," cabled Glenn H. Curtiss to Captain John Alcock, pilot, and Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown, navigator, of the record-breaking Vickers-Vimy machine which won The London Daily Mail prize by crossing the Atlantic in a non-stop flight.

Commenting on the flight, Mr. Curtiss said:

"The non-stop flight of Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown rounds out the first half of the most significant year that aviation, and, indeed, transportation and discovery have ever known. The Atlantic has been crossed by two routes, by the fliers of two nations, and by two types of planes."

WEATHER CUTS YIELD OF GERMAN CROPS

Food Minister Schmidt Hopes for More American Wheat and Argentine Corn.

BERLIN, June 17. (Associated Press.)—"The crops in Germany this season were better than the average, but they have been checked by the bad weather which prevailed in May, and they will be still further affected if a rainless season should set in," said Herr Schmidt, the Food Minister, in an interview today.

"The quality of the wheat has been affected unfavorably by the lack of fertilizer, which has a noticeable effect on the kernel of the wheat. Germany expects, however, that she will be able to continue her present bread ration, which, though very small, will do in a pinch with the expected German grain harvest."

The Minister added that he hoped there would be continued assistance for Germany from abroad, so that the bread-hungry people might have at least a small increase in the ration, and, above all, that they might continue to enjoy "splendid" white bread made from American wheat. He calculated that 1,800,000 tons of wheat would be needed in addition to the home harvest.

The necessity for importing wheat, according to the Food Minister, is more important than that of getting grain, for, although the number of cattle has not been materially reduced, the situation for the coming year is unfavorable, because of poor feed and consequent undernourishment and leanness of the beeves.

Hogs, said the Minister, are most desirable, because they can supply Germany's need of fats, but corn is needed to raise them satisfactorily, and this must be imported. He said the hope prevailed that Argentina might supply this need.

Herr Schmidt estimated that the Government would be able to seize and distribute about two-thirds of the coming harvest, while the other third would go toward the feeding of cattle or into illicit trade channels.

LABOR WANTS NONE OF SOVIET RUSSIA

URGES TROOPS WITHDRAWN

Convention Also Kills Move for Nation-Wide Mooney Strike on Fourth of July.

VOTES FOR "FREE IRELAND"

Charges and Counter-Charges Fly During Heated Debate on Resolutions.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 17.—In the course of a busy and exciting day the convention of the American Federation of Labor passed resolutions asking that the United States recognize the Irish Republic, and that the Senate be requested to ask the American peace delegates at Paris to try to obtain for the Irish leaders, De Valera, Griffiths, and Plunkett, an opportunity to present their case before the Peace Conference.

The withdrawal of American troops from Europe, and especially Russia, at the earliest possible moment was demanded in another resolution, which also announced the desire of the convention that neither the Soviet Government nor any other Government in Russia be recognized until a Constituent Assembly should meet to voice the popular will.

The convention went on record as favoring another trial for Thomas Mooney, the San Francisco labor leader convicted in connection with the bomb outrages at the Preparedness Day parade in that city three years ago. A resolution calling for a general strike if Mooney should not receive a new trial was disapproved by the Committee on Resolutions, which in its report rebuked the Mooney Defense Committee for alleged efforts to disrupt the Federation.

William B. Patterson, an official of the Mooney Committee, made a warm defense of his organization, declaring it had no apologies to make, and that no matter what lies were told about it the members would continue to work until Money received justice.

After Patterson sat down, John Frey, Secretary of the Committee on Resolutions, asserted that in some instances funds contributed by trade union organizations had been used to pay the railroad fares of delegates of the recent Mooney convention in Chicago. In reply James Duncan of the Seattle Central Labor Union, asserted that funds of the federation had been misused by organizers, who "rolled around drunk at the expense of the unions." Challenged by Samuel Gompers, the Chairman, to give names, Duncan said the men were not now employed by the organization.

Triumph for Friends of Ireland.

The day was one of triumph for the friends of Ireland and of disappointment for the friends of Mooney and of Soviet Russia.

Three resolutions were on the calendar. One called for an expression of sympathy for Ireland's aspirations "for a government of their own choosing." The second called on Congress to recognize the Irish Republic, and the third pledged the support of the convention to the Irish people "in their struggle for freedom from the control of Great Britain."

As a substitute for the three, the committee proposed a resolution which said that the convention affirms "its well considered conviction that the people of Ireland shall have accorded to them the unquestioned right to determine the form of government under which they should live," and that "the principle of self-determination of small nations applies with as much force to the people of Ireland as to any of the new nations recognized by the Peace Conference."

The substitute motion did not meet the approval of many delegates, who said it was too weak and did not contain express reference to the Irish republic. W. D. Mason, international president of the street railway employes, offered the amendment to ask the Senate to request that the American peace delegates obtain the hearing for the Irish leaders. F. J. McNulty, president of the electrical workers, offered the amendment calling on Congress to recognize the Irish republic.

During the debate Mr. Frey said the resolutions committee was not opposed to the right of the Irish people to determine their own form of Government, but the delegates thought the substitute motion of the committee was phrased in "too diplomatic" language and might leave a loophole.

Three resolutions were offered on Russia. One called for lifting of the blockade, so that food might be sent to that country. The second demanded the withdrawal of troops, and the third requested a referendum of the unions of the Federation of Labor on whether it was their desire that the Soviet Government be recognized.

Firm Stand on Soviets.

Again the committee offered a substitute motion. The lifting of the blockade was omitted as well as the referendum on Soviet recognition. The committee's motion was in two parts. One called for the withdrawal of troops from Europe, and especially Russia, at the earliest possible moment, and the other part asked that the convention refuse indorsement of the Soviet régime or any other government in Russia until a national Constituent Assembly shall have expressed the desire of the Russian people.

Peter Bollenbacher of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor argued that it was unfair to tie the questions together. He said the lifting of the blockade had nothing to do either with recognition of the Soviet Government or the withdrawal of troops. Andrew Furuseth of the Seamen's Union said he could not reconcile the two clauses, and moved to strike out the second. John Coughlin of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union amended the motion to make it read that the American troops should be withdrawn from Russia "immediately" instead of at the earliest possible moment.

It was contended on behalf of the resolution that the convention would be recognizing the Soviet Government if it passed a resolution approving the lifting of the blockade and furnishing food to Russia.

Max Hayes of the Typographical Union, although in favor of the committee's resolution, declared that if the convention wanted to do the just and humane thing it would go on record for the supplying of food to the innocent people of Russia, as they were not responsible for the miseries that beset them. At this point, Jacob Heller of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union jumped to his feet and demanded to know whether, if the resolution were adopted, it would mean that the convention favored sending arms to the Kolchak Government to kill the Russian workers.

"I think that is an insult to this convention," retorted Mr. Gompers with some heat.

The amendments proposed by Furuseth and Coughlin were lost, and the convention passed the committee's substitute.

Debate Warm Over Mooney.

The three Mooney resolutions called for a new trial or unconditional freedom, for advice by the federation on suitable action to free Mooney, and for a referendum vote on a twenty-four-hour strike. The Resolutions Committee submitted two reports, the first on the question of a new trial and the second on the general strike proposition. In the first the committee said that a new trial for Mooney was an imperative necessity and declared that sinister forces had been behind his conviction. It was recommended that the Executive Council devise means whereby a new trial might be obtained.

The second part caused a heated debate. Mr. Frey declared the committee would refuse to ask for a general strike. The Mooney committee, which is also known as the International Workers' Defense League, he asserted, was an outside union "usurping" the functions of the federation.

He said the league favored a general strike, not to save Mooney's life, but to obtain a new trial. He expressed emphatic disapproval of any organization not in the federation taking a poll of members of the federation.

Delegate Deutelbaum of the Detroit Central Labor Union replied that if it had not been for the Mooney organization not half of the people of the country would know anything about the Mooney case.

"The time for passing resolutions is past, he added. "If a new trial is not granted to Mooney, then you will pass another resolution at your convention next year. That is all you will do. We are ready for a five-day strike in Detroit. All preparations have been made. A food committee has been appointed to see that no one goes hungry. Detroit voted 80 to 1 to strike on July 4. I sometimes think the workers are too anxious to work, and that is the reason why they get so much of it and nothing else.

William B. Patterson of the International Workers' Defense League said labor officials in San Francisco had been "laying down" in the Mooney defense and had joined others in whispering that Mooney and his companions were guilty instead of rushing to their defense.

"We deny we ever attacked this body," he continued. "No matter how you may try to bury this case, it will not be buried. The battle will continue until Mooney and Billings receive the trial to which they are entitled."

After the committee report was adopted, George W. Perkins asked that the Committee on International Relations be granted until Friday to report on the League of Nations and the International Labor Covenant. The committee had been directed to report tomorrow, but the additional time was granted.

Defeat Change in Labor Day.

The convention went on record as favoring Government ownership and control of the railroads and indorsed the principle of the plan of the railway employes' brotherhoods to bring this about.

A debate, in which Mr. Gompers took part, occurred on the resolution changing Labor Day from September to May 1. The committee disapproved the resolution and its report was adopted. Mr. Gompers said the American Labor Day had been granted by Congress on the demand of organized labor. He opposed celebrating it on May 1, "when men's minds are aflame."

At the morning session the convention approved a letter written by James P. Holland of the New York State Federation of Labor to Governor Alfred E. Smith, protesting against the action of the Mayor of Auburn in calling for the State Constabulary during a strike of the Moulders' Union. The letter urged that the constabulary be abolished at the extra session of the Legislature.

Among other resolutions approved were:

Protest against pogroms directed against Jews in Poland, the Ukraine and other parts of Europe; approving the Federal bill calling for a Department of Education with a secretary as member of the Cabinet; approval of granting citizenship to residents of the District of Columbia and the Canal Zone; better pay for library workers; a demand for a 25 per cent. increase for postal employes and support of the Federal Trade Commission to obtain legislation to control the meat packing industry.

A resolution disapproving of the "one big union" idea was adopted.

PEACE CONFERENCE MAY IGNORE IRELAND

American Senate Resolution to be Presented by Lansing Without Comment.

BRITISH OFFICIAL DENIAL

Chief Secretary for Ireland Refutes Charges of Walsh and Dunne—Latter Make New Ones.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—In presenting the Senate resolution on Ireland to the Peace Conference, Secretary Lansing, acting for the President, will do so without comment. In other words, the President will merely carry out the Senate's mandate, but will not commit himself in any way. It will be for the Peace Conference to decide whether the Senate's resolution is a proper matter for consideration in connection with the making of peace. The object of the resolution is to obtain a hearing for De Valera, Griffith, and Plunkett, the delegates appointed by the Convention of the Irish Republic.

Whatever his previous feeling may have been on the subject, Lloyd George has dropped the question after the visit to Ireland of Messrs. Walsh, Dunne, and Ryan, the delegates of the Philadelphia Irish Race Convention. The British assert that they delivered speeches of a character which made it impossible for the British Government to deal with them. When the Philadelphia delegation went to Ireland Lloyd George was ready to give them a hearing, but he abandoned that intention on account of their attitude in Ireland.

The opinion here is that the British peace delegation will resent an effort to have the conference take up the resolution. Indications are that the resolution will not be brought forward without the advance consent of Lloyd George and his associates of the British Peace Commission. Walsh and Dunne, who are here, are jubilant over the President's course in the matter.

New Charge Reprisals on Witnesses.

PARIS, June 17, (Associated Press.)—Messrs. Dunne and Walsh, of the Irish delegation, have sent President Wilson another letter concerning alleged atrocities in Ireland. They say that since their previous report to the President reprisals have begun against witnesses to atrocities, many of them being arrested on trumped up charges and sent to distant points.

They offer to produce many persons to substantiate the statements that Irish prisoners are being beaten in their cells.

Chief Secretary Macpherson's Report.

LONDON, June 17.—A detailed and specific reply to the report on conditions in Ireland, made recently by Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne, American representatives of Irish societies in the United States, was issued today from Dublin Castle by James Ian Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

In dealing with the general charge of cruelties inflicted on prisoners, the reply says:

"Such statements are absolutely devoid of foundation. They are similar to statements recklessly made in connection with the treatment of Sinn Fein prisoners in Belfast Prison, where the Government appointed a judicial committee to investigate the charges thoroughly. The commission found there was not a word of truth in the statements."

All prisoners, the statement says, are in properly equipped cells, lighted and heated by hot water pipes, while the prisoners are supplied with books. The prisoners exercise in grounds inclosed by iron railings, "but in nowise resembling cages in zoological gardens."

The cells described as underground by the Americans, the Irish Secretary says, are reception cells, in which prisoners are put pending medical inspection in order to avoid possible infection. The Secretary says the cells are not underground, that they have a capacity of 828 cubic feet, and are furnished and lighted with the usual mixed windows.

Taking up some of the charges in detail, Mr. Macpherson declares that the prisoner William Sears, described as in solitary confinement, is undergoing a sentence of close confinement imposed by visiting Justices appointed by local bodies, and not by the Government. He had received special attention and care was taken with his diet, and instead of being unkempt he was permitted to wear his own clothes and use his own toilet articles. His cell contained 1,228 cubic feet, its temperature was 55 degrees, and it had windows 3 feet 6 inches square, facing the southeast.

Concerning the charges that the prisoner had been confined for months without knowing with what he was charged, the report says that no prisoner is sentenced in Ireland today without knowledge of the charges against him. Bail is granted in the discretion of the Magistrates.

The prisoners are in satisfactory health, the Secretary states, and are not suffering from malnutrition.

The Beasley incident cited in the report of the Americans is denied by Mr. Macpherson. (In brief summaries of the report cabled to the United States no mention was made of this incident nor of the case of Sears, previously cited.) Beasley, the Secretary says, was neither punished nor assaulted, nor was he forbidden to speak to the Americans. He was brought in to be informed of the date of his court-martial on the charge of having documents giving instructions how to destroy railways, &c.

Regarding a statement that similar alleged cruelties had been practiced in the Westport prison, Mr. Macpherson points out that there is no prison in Westport.

NEW HOME RULE PARTY FORMED IN IRELAND

Sir Horace Plunkett Among Influential Promoters of Irish Dominion League.

DUBLIN, June 17, (Associated Press.)—An influential organization is being formed in Ireland under the name of "The Irish Dominion League." It is composed of men who believe that an Irish republic is unattainable and undesirable, but think that a prompt measure of home rule on the fullest colonial lines is urgently necessary.

Among the promoters of the league are Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the Irish Convention, and many men who were associated with him in the convention as well as representatives of important business and professional interests.

The proposals mark a large advance on the provisions of the 1914 Home Rule act of the two previous Home Rule bills, and their promotion by men of position is regarded as significant of the growth of home rule opinion and the urgency of a settlement.

A weekly paper in the interest of the league is to be published. It will be known as The Irish Statesman. The Directors include Sir Horace Plunkett, William Butler Yeats, and T. P. O'Connor. The contributors, it is announced, will include some of the most distinguished of the workers for Ireland.

ALDERMEN EXTEND HANDS TO IRELAND

URGE CONGRESS TO ACT

Favor Adoption of a Resolution Providing for Recognition of the Irish Republic.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday adopted a resolution offered by Alderman Thomas M. Farley, extending to the people of Ireland the board's sympathy and good wishes in their determination to achieve national independence. Alderman Algernon Lee, Socialist leader of the board, who seconded the resolution, said that he hoped the same sympathy would be extended to the Soviet Government in Russia. In discussing the resolution, Alderman Lee said:

"The development of the Sinn Fein movement in Ireland and the development of the spirit of internationalism among the Irish people have made me glad to observe what is going on in long-oppressed Ireland. But the first to recognize the Irish Parliament was the Soviet Republic of Russia. When the Irish Parliament, unsanctioned by the British Government, met in the shadow of martial law it received a fraternal hand from the Russian people, who were also striving for self-determination. I wish to second the expressions of this resolution, which I wish could be applied to Russia, and every other country in Europe."

When the Socialist leader sat down Alderman Kenneally arose and declared that "Irishmen all over the world are able to take care of themselves and want no help from Bolshevik bomb throwers and no recommendation from such a Government as Russia."

Alderman Quinn remarked that no good Irishman ever threw a bomb and that no good Irishman was ever an internationalist. "Irishmen may throw hot air sometimes," said Alderman Quinn, "but never bombs."

The Board of Aldermen of the city of New York—voicing the opinion of the majority of its citizens, believe that the principle of self-determination so often and so forcibly proclaimed in the noble declaration of President Wilson as to the objects of the United States in the war just ended, should be applied to Ireland, and that the time has come to recognize the Republic proclaimed by the elected representatives.

Resolved, That the Board of Aldermen urge the adoption by the Congress of the United States of a resolution providing for such recognition of the Republic of Ireland.

Be it further resolved, That the Board of Aldermen—on behalf of the city of New York—extends its sympathy and good wishes in the determination of the Irish people to achieve their National independence.

Alderman Lee wanted the board to adopt a resolution instructing the Committee on General Welfare to investigate the raid made on the so-called Russian Embassy on last Thursday. He said that as Senator Lusk and Attorney General Newton had both asserted that they had nothing to do with it, he believed them. He was informed, he said, that the raid had been conducted by a citizen with no official standing. The resolution was laid on the table after a roll call in which the Socialists were the only Aldermen to vote in the negative.

The Countess was alleged to have incited tradesmen to boycott the police and to have participated in an unlawful assembly at Cork.

TEUTON PROPAGANDA NOW AIDS SINN FEIN

Much Activity Among the Irish, Egyptian, and Indian Malcontents.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, May 30.—On March 29 the German National Assembly at Weimar voted without any discussion indefinite sums "for the further extension of a commercial news service abroad." Since then there has been a recrudescence of the old German General Staff propaganda in neutral countries. Those German propagandist agents who ceased work in December, 1918, have now resumed it, but in a different form.

No longer do they insist upon the invincibility of the German army, on Germany's victories, her bringing the Allies to their knees, or her humane treatment of Belgium and of prisoners of war. Now they have, at any rate ostensibly, thrown in their lot with the Sinn Feiners, Egyptian Nationalists, Indian malcontents, and any seditious persons or rebels with whom they can consort. For their own purposes they do not disdain to make use of any undesirable characters, Irish or Irish-American, who may be hanging around in Switzerland or Germany, and who contrive somehow to keep in touch with Sinn Feiners in Ireland.

An article recently appeared in one of the leading papers of the most important German-Swiss newspaper, the Neue Zürcher Zeitung (May 27,) signed "The Committee of the Friends of Irish Freedom." The style is that of German propagandists. It is headed "The Situation in Ireland," and is supposed to be "contributed."

Thereafter follows the usual Sinn Fein propaganda about Ireland being a republic de facto, kept in bondage by a despotic England. The signature is "Komitee der Freunde fur Irische Freiheit."

FORD SUIT RULING PLEASES BOTH SIDES

Settles Extent to Which Evidence in Military Preparedness May Be Introduced.

INTERVIEW BROUGHT UP

Quotes Manufacturer as Seeing No Cause for War Over Lusitania and Sussex.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June 17.—Counsel on both sides of the Ford-Tribune libel suit professed themselves satisfied with Judge Tucker's ruling today on the question of the extent to which evidence on military preparedness might be introduced.

"It permits us to give the jury everything we regard as essential in presenting a picture of the many considerations which led to the writing of the editorial in which Mr. Ford was designated an anarchist," said Weymouth Kirkland, of counsel for The Chicago Daily Tribune. "It merely excludes what might be called an academic discussion of the preparedness problem."

Attorney Alfred Lucking, the Detroit manufacturer's personal counsel, stated that his whole object had been to exclude extraneous matter from the suit, which otherwise might drag on all Summer.

The ruling follows:

"The quantity of preparedness necessary, or what Ford thought necessary, is not relevant; whether Ford sought to interfere with what preparedness the Government thought necessary is relevant. Whether what he did or said justified the criticism aimed at him in the editorial in question will be the main question in the case."

Replying to a question by Attorney Alfred Lucking after reading the ruling from manuscript, Judge Tucker elucidated:

"I think that anything that indicates Mr. Ford's anarchistic tendencies is material," said the court. "I don't care where it comes from. I feel that everything that was said, or anything that was done, or any overt act or opinion expressed for the purpose of hindering or delaying or preventing the Government from making such preparations as it saw fit to make, whether much or little, or adequate or inadequate, is material."

Under this ruling a two-column story published in The New York Herald in April, 1916, quoting Mr. Ford, was admitted in evidence. T. E. Ackerman, the reporter who wrote it, testified that it was a correct account of the interview. In it the manufacturer was quoted as confirming his pacifist views. He was reported to have said that the sinkings of the Lusitania and the Sussex by submarines did not justify a severance of relations with Germany, and that in view of 4,000 miles of ocean between America and Europe, submersibles to guard our ports ought to provide navy enough.

Counsel for The Tribune placed in evidence a number of editorials to contradict the plaintiff's charges that the paper advocated intervention in Mexico for ulterior motives, namely, that it would aid Germany and further the financial interests of remote relatives of the publishers holding stock in the International Harvester Company and the Standard Oil Company.

The editorials held that the sinking of the Lusitania was an offense which could not be resented by a mere exchange of notes. They asserted that even in the country's pitiful state of unpreparedness it was ignoble to threaten without action. Other editorials commented on the administration of Judge Landis's $29,240,000 fine against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the later decision which ordered the dissolution of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey as a monopoly in restraint of trade.

WOULD AMEND WAR RISK ACT

Congressman Wants Insurance Effective from Time of Induction.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Amendment of the war risk insurance act to permit payment of insurance to dependents of men who died in service between the time of induction and examination by army physicians at mobilization camps was urged in the House today by Representative Nelson, Republican, Wisconsin.

Mr. Nelson said the war risk insurance bureau had held that no insurance could be paid dependents of such men under the law and that this had worked "untold hardship and injury to thousands of persons."

He added that he understood that both the bureau and the Treasury Department were in sympathy with the contention that the Government should pay the insurance in full.

CHICAGO ELEVATED FACES NEW CRISIS

Bankers Have Found Imperative Need of a Protective Committee.

WILL ASK DEPOSIT OF NOTES

Foreclosure or Further Extension of Debt Only Courses Now Open to the Stockholders.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The National City Bank and the National City Company of New York have decided that the situation of the $13,601,000 extended notes of the Chicago Elevated Railways is such that the formation of a protective committee is imperative. The committee is being formed and deposit of notes will be asked in the near future.

A. G. Hoyt, Vice President of the National City Company, who is forming the committee, is expected in Chicago in a few days to confer with Samuel Insull and attorneys for the elevated company. The notes, which matured July 1, 1918, and were extended, are again due July 1 next.

The company, it is said, cannot pay them, although it has provided interest money due July 1, there appears to be only two courses open to the noteholders, foreclosure and extension. Some of the Chicago holders have agreed that an extension should be accepted on the theory that the present management is better qualified to operate the property than any receiver or trustee.

When the notes were last extended the company paid a bonus of 1½ per cent., increased the interest from 5 to 6 per cent., and added to the security behind the notes by increasing collateral and by subordinating claims of the Commonwealth Edison Company. The company is represented to be in no position to repeat such concessions, although confident of ability to meet interest payments.

FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW.

National Tuberculosis Association Says Lives Are Saved by It.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 17.—Setting forth that sunlight and fresh air are recognized as absolutely essential in the fight against the white plague, which claims 150,000 lives annually in this country, the National Tuberculosis Association, in closing its annual convention here this afternoon, adopted a resolution stating that it views with concern the present effort to abrogate the daylight saving law and that its membership protests against any effort that shall tend to stop the operation of that law. Officers pointed out that the present daylight saving law is an aid in preserving the general health of the country.

That a united demand for the adoption of universal military service as a public health measure be placed before the American people, it was decided that immediate steps be taken to secure the cooperation of all other great health organizations as well as State and territorial health officers. As it has become increasingly apparent that a division of tuberculosis of the United States public health service is necessary in the struggle against the disease, the National Association in a resolution pledged itself to urge Congress to pass the Ransdell-Esch bill which provides for the creation of such a system.

Unless further financial support is forthcoming immediately, the Henry Phipps Institute, of Philadelphia, which has years of splendid research work in the tuberculosis field to its credit, it is said, will have to shut its doors. The funds originally provided for a period of years by Henry Phipps have nearly all been spent. It is estimated that an endowment fund of at least $3,000,000 will be needed if the program of the institute for the study and prevention of tuberculosis is to be continued. So vital is the present need for more institutions and agencies of this character that the convention adopted a resolution pledging aid to the Phipps Institute and appointed a committe to cooperate with its board in an effort to secure the funds needed. This committee includes Dr. Joseph A. Miller and Herman M. Biggs, of New York; Dr. David R. Lyman, of Wallingford, Conn., and Dr. Alfred Meyer, of New York.

The election this afternoon resulted as follows: President, Dr. Victor C. Vaughan, Dean of the Medical School of the University of Michigan; Honorary Vice Presidents, Sir William Osler of Oxford and Colonel George E. Buahnell of Washington, D. C.; Vice Presidents, Dr. Gerald B. Webbs of Colorado Springs, and John M. Glenn of New York, who is connected with the Russell Sage Foundation; Secretary, Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore; Treasurer, Henry B. Platt of New York City; Executive Committee, Dr. E. R. Baldwin of Saranac Lake, N. Y.; Dr. George Thomas Palmer of Springfield, Ill.; Dr. William Charles White of Pittsburgh; Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch of Boston, Dr. George M. Kober of Washington; Dr. H. E. Dearholdt of Milwaukee, and Dr. William H. Baldwin of Washington.

FOR PEACE DISEASE CAMPS.

Dr. Thayer Says War Has Shown Value of Rehabilitation Hospitals.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 17.—Thirty-four days are required for a strong soldier to throw off a case of tonsilitis, which is longer than in cases of influenza, according to Dr. W. S. Thayer of the Johns Hopkins Medical School, in an address today, at the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons, on the practical treatment and results at the rehabilitation camps of the Government. Experience had resulted in a very greatly increased familiarity with many of the commoner diseases as well as with the more obscure afflictions, he said. He advocated establishment of similar camps for civilians in time of peace and said the practicality of such a course had been shown by the war. In speaking of the practical knowledge of recovery from disease resulting at these camps, he said it was found that in 628 cases of influenza the average stay at the hospital camp was thirty-one days, or less than that for acute tonsilitis; in 170 pneumonia cases fifty-eight days, in fifty-three cases of mumps thirty-nine days, in 233 cases of acute bronchitis thirty-six days, in 1,195 cases of gas poisoning thirty-seven days, in 192 cases of concussion fifty-five days, and in eighty cases of exhaustion forty days for recovery.

Greater attention to the prevalence of heart disease was urged by Dr. A. O. Cohn of the Rockefeller Institute, who said that 41 per cent. of the men rejected by the British Army were suffering from afflictions of the heart. Of 214 cases examined by him, he said, 106 showed pronounced symptoms of heart trouble.

Ask Why Herald Man Is Held.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Without debate the Senate adopted today a resolution by Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, asking the State Department for information regarding the alleged detention of William T. Ellis, correspondent of the New York Herald, by the British authorities at Cairo, Egypt.

Many Federal soldiers have deserted in the last two months, carrying with them to the rebel camps their entire equipment of arms, munitions, and blankets.

Members of the junta, of which ex-officials of previous Mexican Governments are members, last night sent a messenger to the border with instructions to get in touch with Villa and Angeles and convey to them an expression of the unanimous desire of the anti-Carranzistas in the United States that no reprisals be taken on Americans, but to continue their struggle against the Carranza forces, pushing south from the border.

Carranza Not Committed.

WASHINGTON, June 17, (Associated Press.)—It was learned authoritatively today that President Carranza never had assented to the agreement proposing that where bandit bands committed depredations in either country the armed forces of that country could follow "a hot trail" across the international line.

After a conference at the State Department today with Henry P. Fletcher, Ambassador to Mexico, Dr. Rojo, the Mexican Charge, said he had presented no protest to the American Government and had received no instructions from his Government to make one.

Telegrams reaching the State Department indicated apprehension that the Villistas would take reprisals on Americans in that part of Mexico controlled by Villa. Officials of a mining company operating south of Chihuahua telegraphed the department that the railroad line south of Chihuahua had been cut and that their employes were endeavoring to get out of Mexico by way of Parral and Laredo.

The National Association for the Protection of American Rights in Mexico sent this telegram to Ambassador Fletcher:

"Members of this association well acquainted with Mexican affairs fear the developments of the last twenty-four hours in the vicinity of Juarez may result in reprisals by Villa on unprotected Americans in the districts which Villa controls, especially Chihuahua. We respectfully beg to call your attention to this menace to American lives and property, and urge that proper protection be secured."

Carranza Approves Aguilar Statement.

MEXICO CITY, June 17, (Associated Press.)—Approval of the statement issued at Washington today by General Aguilar was sent to him by President Carranza today, according to an announcement made tonight by General Barragan, Chief of Staff to General Carranza. In reply to a request for a statement on the views of the Mexican Government, General Barragan exhibited a copy of a telegram sent to Aguilar, which read:

"I approve in all its parts the form in which you treated with the State Department the incident caused by the passage of American troops to our territory at Juarez. Devote yourself to terminating this affair. Upon the return of Señor Donillas, Mexican Ambassador, to Washington, he will carry instructions regarding this matter."

GUARD BORDER TOWNS AGAINST VILLA RAIDS

EL PASO, Texas, June 17.—Every border city, town, and hamlet along the Rio Grande in this district is being garrisoned by detachments of American troops by General Erwin to prevent the possibility of a Villa raid across the border in retaliation for the expedition against Villa's forces in Mexico.

Company G, 19th Infantry, was ordered to Ysleta, Texas, today; Company H of the same command, to Fabens, opposite Guadalupe, Chihuahua, and Company I to Fort Hancock, Texas. In addition, a machine gun platoon was ordered to Fabens. The entire border front is under military guard.

Scouting patrols sent out along the American bank of the Rio Grande this afternoon to locate a band of Villa followers reported east of San Lorenzo church reported to military headquarters that the rumor was without foundation. It was announced tonight that no Villa men, except the wounded, were now in the Juarez district.

Official reports submitted to General Erwin late today established the fact that more of Villa's men were killed by American troops than at first estimated. Between fifty and sixty bodies were taken from the trenches near the race track following the assault of these trenches by the 24th (colored) Infantry, and thirty-six bodies were counted in front of the race track Monday morning, having been killed by the artillery fire from American guns on the river bank. Many more bodies were reported in the weeds and wheat fields on the east side of the town.

One American soldier was killed, another died of wounds, and ten were wounded during the fighting Sunday night and Monday, according to official reports made at military headquarters today. Private Sam Tusco, 82d Artillery, was shot and killed. Private Anthony Cunningham, 24th Infantry, died of wounds.

The wounded were Sergeant Peter Chigas, Troop L, 7th Cavalry; Private Burchard F. Casey, Headquarters Company, 82 Field Artillery; Private Arthur A. Lindberg, Troop E; Private Alfonse Fiore, Troop M; Corporal Lewis E. Armstrong, Machine Gun Troop of the 7th Cavalry; Corporal Alfred Friedman, Company D, 19th Infantry; Corporal Edward C. Reilly, Motor Transport Company 401; Sergeant Oscoe W. Buckles, Company A, 9th Engineers, mounted; Private Calvin Love, Company G, and Corporal Earl O. Smith, Company A of the 24th Infantry.

The condition of Colonel J. Gonzales Escobar, the Juarez commander, who was wounded Sunday afternoon, was reported to be less favorable today. Colonel Escobar was shot through the lungs while leading a cavalry charge down the main street of Juarez.

Three men from the Villa junta here were sent south from the border last night with letters from prominent Mexican politicians here urging Villa to make no campaign of reprisal against American property and lives in Mexico. Villa and his rebel command are believed to be heading toward Casas Grandes, twenty-five miles southwest of Juarez. Before he attacked Jaurez, Villa announced his intention of establishing his base at Casas Grandes.

General Cabell announced today that every effort had been made to get the news of the American expedition to Americans in the interior of Mexico in order that they might be on their guard. He expressed the opinion that those in the danger zone would go into the larger towns and said he did not expect a large number of Americans to be killed if Villa started an anti-American campaign.

"There will be no wholesale shooting up of towns across the border from Mexico," he added. "There was no idea of aiding the Carranza soldiers in Juarez in General Erwin's mind when he ordered the expedition. General Erwin was not concerned in the outcome of the fighting in Mexico. He determined, to the best of his ability, that shots from the Villistas were being fired into El Paso. He sent his troops over and dispersed the Villistas. General Erwin handled the situation well. He did the right thing and did it well.

"As far as this situation is concerned, it is a closed incident, and I so reported it to the War Department today. All troops recrossed from Mexico by 5:25 o'clock last night, and there is no plan under consideration for further military operations in Mexico."

Irrigated lowlands in the bend of the Rio Grande, military men say, prevented the American cavalry from overtaking and capturing a large number of Villistas. Colonel S. R. H. Tompkins's cavalry forces were able to approach to within a short distance of the Villa camp without being discovered, as the rebels were eating supper. When the Americans opened fire the rebels ran for their horses and galloped away.

It was then that the barrier of the irrigated fields was encountered. The low land lying within the bend of the river is irrigated from the Rio Grande with a series of irrigation ditches. These were bank full of water, and it was possible to cross them only at foot bridges or on pontoons thrown across by the engineers. Several of the cavalry horses slipped and fell into the ditches and all were belly-deep in water at different times.

This handicap gave the rebels an advantage of thirty minutes, and they were enabled to reach the foothills ahead of the American cavalrymen, although the latter had far superior mounts. The Villa rebels had their horses corraled beyond the irrigated ditches and did not encounter the same difficulty as the Americans.

JUAREZ, Mexico, June 17.—Villa now is at Bosque Bonito, opposite Fort Hancock, Texas, according to an announcement today by General Francisco Gonzales, commander of the Federal garrison here.

2.75 BEER APPEAL ARGUED IN COURT

Government Attorneys Allege Error in Injunction Which Permits Continued Manufacture.

JUDGES RESERVE DECISION

Brewers Fear Immediate Stoppage of Business Unless Lower Bench Is Upheld.

For five hours yesterday the United States Circuit Court of Appeals listened to argument on the appeal of the Government from the decision of Federal Judge Mayer, temporarily restraining United States Attorney Francis G. Caffey and Acting Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue Richard J. McElligott from seeking to prevent the manufacture of beer containing not more than 2.75 per cent. alcohol. The case of the Government was presented by Mr. Caffey and William C. Fitts, a Deputy Attorney General. The case of the brewers was argued by Elihu Root and William D. Guthrie.

It was apparent throughout the argument for the brewers that they fear if they lose the decision steps will be taken immediately to suppress the traffic in 2.75 beer, and they will have to go out of business.

Mr. Caffey in his specification of errors on which the appeal was based said the lower court erred in holding that there had been any threat of invasion by the Government of any property or legal rights of the complainants. He said also that an error was committed when Judge Mayer granted the injunction, in the light of denials by Mr. Caffey that any seizure or forfeiture, or any interference with property, was contemplated because of the action begun by the brewers.

After the argument a member of counsel for the brewers pointed out that United States attorneys in Philadelphia and Baltimore had obtained indictments against several brewers, that orders for this proceeding evidently had come from the Department of Justice in Washington, and that, if similar orders were received by Mr. Caffey, he would have to obey them. Consequently, he said, the brewers were justified in starting any litigation that would prevent interference until the case had been considered and disposed of by the United States Supreme Court.

Expect Decision Soon.

The court reserved its decision, which is expected soon, probably within a few weeks. The hearing was before an extraordinary session, and the three judges will be able to devote more time to the question than would be possible out of recess. It was indicated that there is no special hurry, because the United States Supreme Court has adjourned until October.

If the court sustains Judge Mayer, the Government will appeal at once. If Judge Mayer is reversed, the brewers will ask for an immediate trial of the issues involved. If they should lose in the trial, then they will appeal.

In any event, there appears no prospect of the case finally being disposed of until late Fall or early Winter. In the meantime, the brewing of 2.75 beer will go on in this jurisdiction.

So far the proceedings have produced 200,000 words, including briefs, which the Appellate Court may consider it necessary to read before handing down an opinion. An effort to curtail this task was evident during the argument, when the Judges carefully marked important or significant bits referred to in the discussion.

Mr. Caffey, as an appellant, began the argument. He said the thirteen points on which the appeal was based in brief contended that the court erred in construing the War Prohibition act to mean only beer that was intoxicating, in holding that beer having an alcoholic content not exceeding 2.75 by weight was not intoxicating, and in restraining him and his subordinates from arresting and prosecuting failure by the brewers to affix revenue stamps or to surrender them for cancellation.

He denied that there was an intention to invade the property rights of the complainants, and said no proof had been submitted that such an idea ever had entered the heads of Government officials. He said if the United States attorney had failed to do his duty, he should not be restrained but should be impeached. He asserted that the act of Congress of Nov. 21, 1918, was valid and constitutional, and that the action of the complainants was directed against the United States and could not be maintained. He quoted many decisions to support his contention that a United States attorney could not be restrained from doing his duty.

Would Bar Any Alcohol.

"The act of Nov. 21, 1918," he continued, "properly construed, applies to all beer. The contention of the Government is that beer and wine are prohibited articles, whether they are intoxicating or not. The words 'beer' and 'wine,' as used in the statute, must be taken in their ordinary significance. This denotes beverages having some alcoholic content. It may be assumed that these words were intended by Congress to have a certain and definite meaning."

In his argument for the brewers Mr. Guthrie referred to the indictment of clients in Philadelphia and Baltimore, notwithstanding a belief that the brewers would not be interfered with until the suits pending here had been disposed of.

"Today," he continued, "I received a telegram from Chicago saying the Collector of Internal Revenue there had said he would refuse to issue stamps or grant licenses to brewers after July 1. If he does, it will stop the brewing of beer in that district."

He said there are 1,250 breweries in the United States, that they employ 75,000 men, and that for the year ended June 30, 1918, they paid $126,285,857 in taxes. The taxes for 1919, he said, would amount to $301,722,726.

"The fact is," he added, "that we are being selected for sacrifice under the plea of a war measure, when no other class is being touched."

He said there was no necessity for the law, because the President had declared the war was over. He referred to many decisions in his contention that a United States Attorney is not immune from injunction. He asked the Court to stay the Government's hand from destroying the brewers' enormous property interests, and to enable them to continue the fight to save their property.

Mr. Root argued that his clients were engaged in a lawful business, that hundreds of millions of dollars in property was being threatened with destruction, and that no one would suffer if the injunction were continued. He said the brewers required the permission of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue before they could carry on their business, and added:

"Two clouds hang over this action. One is the penalties prescribed under the act, which will break up and put an end to this business, and the other the complications arising from the subordination of the brewery business to the internal revenue law. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue holds the brewers in his hand. They are bound hand and foot. Under this act, even though they are engaged in the manufacture of 2.75 per cent. beer, they are subject to prosecution under the war-time measure and under the internal revenue law."

Mr. Fitts, for the Government, said that every one knew what beer and wine were before the enactment of the law, and that when the law forbid these beverages every one knew what the law meant.

Both Sides Submit Briefs.

Two briefs were submitted by counsel for the brewers. One described the experiments and conclusions of the fourteen experts, twelve physicians, and others seeking to prove that 2.75 per cent. beer is not intoxicating within the legal and current definition of the term. In reference to these exhibits the brief says:

"It is submitted that if this were an action before a jury the Court would be under the duty to set aside a verdict to the contrary. Certainly, the Court below was fully justified in ordering preliminary injunctions to preserve the status quo upon such a showing as the complainants made in the cases at bar. The decision of the District Court upon the facts as well as upon the law should, therefore, be affirmed, and the further consideration of the merits remitted to the final hearing, when the witnesses can be examined in the presence of the Court and subjected to the test of cross-examination."

The brief of the Government said when the injunctions were granted it was made to appear that attempts were to be made to proceed against the brewers, but that, on the contrary, the Acting Collector had been selling stamps freely to the brewers. The charge that the Government is seeking to destroy the property of the brewers is denied, and various definitions of what intoxication means are presented. The following definition is taken from the decision of a Nebraska Judge:

"Whenever a man is under the influence of liquor so as not to be entirely himself, he is intoxicated; although he can walk straight, although he may attend to business, and may not give any outward and visible sign to the casual observer that he is drunk, yet if he is under the influence of liquor so as not to be himself, so as to be excited from it, and not to possess that clearness of intellect and that control of himself that he otherwise would have, he is intoxicated."

HOUSE COMMITTEE DRY.

Rejects Plan for Repeal of Wartime Prohibition Law.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—By a vote of 10 to 3 the House Judiciary Committee refused today to adopt a motion of Representative Igoe, Democrat, Missouri, to recommend repeal of wartime prohibition in so far as it affects light wines and beers. Joining Mr. Igoe in supporting the motion were Representatives Gard, Democrat, Ohio, and Classon, Republican, Wisconsin.

The committee, which is considering a bill by Chairman Volstead for enforcement of national prohibition, approved the section defining intoxicating liquor as that containing one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, after amending it so as to name specifically as intoxicants alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, beer, ale, porter, and wine.

The section, as amended, reads:

"That the word liquor or the phrase intoxicating liquor shall be construed to include alcohol, brandy, whisky, rum, gin, beer, ale, porter, and wine, and in addition thereto any spirituous, vinous, malt, or fermented liquor, liquids, and compounds, whether medicated, proprietary, patented, or not, and by whatever name called, containing one-half of 1 per centum or more of alcohol by volume, which are potable or capable of being used as a beverage."

While the committee was considering this legislation ever-increasing rumors were heard that President Wilson had decided to repeal wartime prohibition. Friends of the Administration who, heretofore, had assumed to act as spokesmen for the White House, were saying that wartime prohibition would not go into effect on July 1.

The opinion was expressed by lawyers connected with the Judiciary Committee that the President has full authority to repeal wartime prohibition, and that he intended to do so, acting on the theory that demobilization has proceeded far enough to justify him in lifting the ban.

RUSH TO LIQUOR AUCTION.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—The entire stock of rare wines and liquors of a Dock Street dealer was disposed of at public auction today to 300 or 400 buyers.

Private buyers took most of the stock. Sometimes they got bargains and sometimes they paid over the market price. In several instances dealers looked on while well to do business men ran above the market price trying to outbid each other for whiskies and gins still to be had in fairly large quantities.

Before long the humid atmosphere of the crowded room was permeated with the aroma of the liquors, and a man with a calendar in one hand, marked to show that only thirteen days remain before July 1, got up and closed the door. He explained to those who protested that the atmosphere was being dissipated by the draft, and that even the aroma would be precious after the prohibition set in.

Some of the wines sold were so "precious" that in addition to giving their age the company also provided the auctioneer with pedigrees and interesting little incidents in their career.

JEWISH RABBIS MEET.

English Responsive Reading in Synagogue Services Urged.

A suggestion that English responsive reading be incorporated in synagogue services was offered yesterday by Rabbi Israel Levinthal, addressing the session of the Jewish Theological Seminary Rabbinical Assembly at 881 West 123d Street. He said most of the younger worshippers did not understand Hebrew and needed the English text.

The rabbi also advocated an exchange of pulpits, recommending the establishment of a speakers' exchange, with lecturers for the young people of the different congregations at least once a month. He said the problem before the faith today was "the boy and girl problem," because, while they came readily to church for a dance or a social meeting, they would not appear to attend a lecture on Jewish history. Rabbi David Aarons, who spent fourteen months in the overseas force, thought the old Jewish martial songs should be used at congregational meetings.

The Jewish language will figure primarily in the revival of Jewry in Palestine, said Professor Israel Friedlander of the seminary. Language, more than anything else, will express the future of the race, he predicted. The following resolution was adopted:

"That the Jewish Theological Seminary Rabbinical Assembly voices its earnest protest against the recent attempt to belittle the extent of pogroms in Poland, and that we urge the Government to use its influence to put an end to these outrages."

YELLOW ENVELOPES MAY BE BOMB CLUE

Two Radicals Seized in Philadelphia Were Distributing Red Literature.

STORE NAMES WERE USED

Envelopes Had Some Likeness to Those Used in the Mail Sample Conspiracy.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Yellow envelopes bearing the forged names of two department stores gave the detectives new hope yesterday in their chase after those responsible for recent bomb outrages.

The discovery of the envelopes, reminding the police of the labels marked "Gimbel Brothers, New York," in the May 1 plot, when twenty-four sample packages were sent to prominent men in various parts of the country, was regarded as a good clue.

The envelopes bear the imprint of "Sacks & Co., New York," and "Thalheimer Brothers, Richmond, Va." These were found soon after two persons had been arrested for distributing anarchistic reading matter in Kensington.

A man and a woman, both aliens, who admitted that they were radicals, were arrested this morning by Policeman Strausser, who saw them putting envelopes, containing the paper, under the doors of dwellings.

The paper, which is issued by the American Anarchist Federated Commune Soviet, attacks the Government, the press, and the clergy, and calls upon readers to organize soviets.

The man, Samuel Miller, 26 years old, of this city, told the police that he wanted this country to have the same form of government as Russia and Hungary.

The woman, Miss Lydia Vinincocios of Brooklyn, is a dressmaker. She said she was a radical, and admitted that she came to this city to distribute Bolshevist literature.

Two previous editions of this anarchist paper have been circulated. The sheet, which is a single page of paper, poorly typed and resembling a poster, is headed "Why so scared?" The first column is devoted to a general condemnation of the Government, the newspapers and the pulpit.

A special section is devoted to an appeal to the soldiers and sailors of the nation to join the anarchist organization.

Detectives searched the room of Miller and found hundreds of circulars and other Bolshevist publications. They were held for a hearing.

FOR WORLD BOLSHEVISM.

STOCKHOLM, June 16.—The Congress of Independent Socialists voted yesterday, 186 to 22, to join the "Third Internationale of Moscow," and adopted resolutions favoring Bolshevist measures, such as the placing of production control in the hands of laborers and to effect a revolution, that workers must be armed and the bourgeoisie unarmed.

It is expected that the humanitarian wing of the party, representing all the Independent Socialist members of the Swedish Parliament, will secede from the organization.

AUSTRIAN REDS ACTIVE.

GENEVA, June 16.—Bolshevist placards have appeared throughout Austria, not only in Vienna but in provincial towns, according to a telegram from Innsbruck. The dispatch declares that the people are clamoring, not for annexation to Germany, but to Bolshevist Russia.

Emissaries of Bela Kun, the Foreign Minister of the Hungarian Soviet Government, are said to be encouraging and lending financial aid to the movement.

ATTACK RED CROSS TRAIN.

Bolsheviki Fire on It Near Vladivostok—No Americans Hurt.

VLADIVOSTOK, June 12. (Associated Press.)—A band of seventy Bolsheviki attacked a train, including American hospital and mail cars, near Spassk, north of Vladivostok, last night. They compelled the train to stop by loosening the rails. Shots were fired into all the cars and one Russian was killed. None of the Americans was injured.

The attack occurred on the section of the railroad guarded by the Japanese, and Japanese reinforcements were sent to the scene today.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Announcement was made today at the Russian Embassy that the new Russian Government at Omsk had decided to place in American markets the greater part of orders for military supplies, which are estimated at $104,000,000 for the next ten months.

BRINGS CAPT. KING'S BODY.

The body of Captain Jack King, Red Cross ambulance driver, the first body of a Red Cross worker killed overseas to reach America, left the Grand Central Station yesterday afternoon on the last stage of its journey from Bassano, Italy, to Toledo, Ohio, the King home. Captain King, who went overseas three years ago, at the age of 19, serving first on the French front and later in Italy, was killed Sept. 29, 1918, by an Austrian shell in Bassano. The body was placed in a vault in the city until it was possible to return it to America. It reached New York yesterday morning aboard the Dante Alleghieri and was met at Hoboken by Captain King's parents and a detachment of Red Cross men.

SAY PRIEST IS A FORGER.

Held on Charge of Selling Appointment in Greek Church.

Gabriel Pantelides, 50 years old, who said he was a priest, of 52 Court Street, Brooklyn, was arrested Monday on a warrant issued in South Bethlehem, Penn., on April 11, 1918, and was held without bail by Magistrate Frederick Groehl in the Yorkville Court to await extradition on a charge of being a fugitive from justice.

It is charged that Pantelides forged the great seal of the Holy Synod of the Greek Orthodox Church and sold to Rev. Jacob Kaloudes, a priest of the church, a certificate of appointment for the priesthood on May 5, 1916, for $80. The alleged deception was not discovered until several years later. Kaloudes had in the meantime been properly ordained as a priest after completing a theological course. Pantelides was found yesterday in a Greek church at Seventy-second Street and Lexington Avenue.

PALMER WARNS REDS THEY CAN NOT SUCCEED

Government Will Protect Itself Against Terrorism Without Fear of Consequences.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Determination of the Government to preserve American ideals and institutions from assaults by lawless radicals was given forceful expression today by Attorney General Palmer in a commencement day address at Georgetown University. The address of the Attorney General, against whose life a recent attempt was made by anarchists, bristled with plain talk.

"There is no room, as there is no need, in this country," Mr. Palmer said, "for those who resort to violence to impress their ultra-radical views upon the people or the Government. They will get nowhere by such methods.

"The Government proposes to protect itself against attacks from within as carefully and as forcefully as it has shown itself able to protect itself against attacks from without. Neither the Government nor any of its officers will be embarrassed or affected, much less frightened, by any attempts, organized or unorganized, by lawless elements in the community to terrorize and stampede the Government into doing something contrary to the spirit of our free institutions as designed by the fathers and sustained by all the generations of men through the life of this republic.

"Every reform which the more radical desire to incorporate in our body politic will receive a fair hearing and full consideration and become effective only if and when a majority of the people, through the regular methods provided by the Constitution, shall so decide. No change will be hastened by the use of force, and those who seek to use this weapon will be treated as enemies of the Government and punished accordingly.

"Those who can not or will not live the life of Americans under our institutions and are unwilling to abide by the methods which we have established for the improvement of those institutions from time to time should go back to the countries from which they came. Every power of the Government will be used to compel those who remain here to comport themselves in that obedience to our laws and with that respect for our institutions which are a part of the creed of real Americans."

SPREADS RED BATTLE CRY.

Anarchists' "Commune Soviet" Warns of Coming Conflict.

The Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice came into possession yesterday of a new anarchist handbill which is said to have been distributed, by hand and through the mails, to thousands of persons in New York City and vicinity. The handbill is signed by "The American Anarchist Commune Soviet," and calls upon anarchists and other radicals to be "prepared to answer the signal for the final battle."

The boast is made by the authors of the document that 900,000 have been printed and are being distributed. The type is good, but the paper is of the cheap white wrapping paper kind. In some respects the composition and the type resemble the anarchist pamhlets which were left in front of Attorney General Palmer's home in Washington by the man who was blown to bits in his effort to kill Mr. Palmer with a bomb.

Catain William H. Offley, who, in the absence of Chief William J. Flynn, is directing the investigation of the bomb plots in this vicinity, began an investigation when the handbills were turned over to him by persons who had received them through the mails. The bill is about 2 feet by 18 inches in size. It bears the caption, "Anarchist Socialist Bulletin Number 3," and the date "June, 1919."

The document contains a threat against the Government, the "poisoned press," and the Church, which are to be made "to pay the price."

Captain Offley said the bill is one of the best written anarchist documents brought to his attention in months. Owing to the large number printed, Federal officials believe it may prove to be a valuable clue in the investigation into the recent bomb outrages.

Chief Flynn went to Washington yesterday for a conference with Attorney General Palmer and Assistant Attorney General Francis P. Garvan. Before leaving, he said the Government is making "good headway," and he is certain that eventually the criminals who plotted the assassination of prominent officials and citizens will be caught.

Enough black powder to wreck the Pershing Club of the New York War Camp Community Service was found in the mail of the camp one day last week, according to an announcement made yesterday. The package was turned over to the police. It was thought to have been sent to the club by mistake. It was addressed to "Mirtin," and was placed on the desk of Lieutenant R. L. Martin, in charge of the club.

His secretary opened the package, which looked like a box of candy. Then, not recognizing the rough black powder, she placed it on Lieutenant Martin's desk. He immediately recognized it as powder. The package was accompanied by a letter written in a foreign language, the contents of which have not been divulged. The Pershing Club is at Forty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue.

SUE TO GET BACK BOLSHEVIST PAPERS

Soviet "Embassy" Asks That Search Warrant Used in Raid Be Vacated.

MAY GIVE OUT NAMES

Lusk Committee Reported Ready to Identify Those Dealing with "Red" Representatives.

The local representatives of the Bolshevist Government of Russia began court proceedings yesterday in an effort to get back the papers that were seized by the State when the offices of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist "ambassador" to the United States, were raided last Thursday afternoon. The proceedings were brought before Magistrate Alexander Brough, who issued the search warrants by authority of which the State police acted when they seized the various papers and other documentary evidence in Martens's "embassy" on the third floor of the World Tower Building at 110 West Fortieth Street.

The action brought before Magistrate Brough is for the vacating of the search warrant which was issued at the instance of Deputy Attorney General Robert Conkling a few hours before the raid occurred last Thursday. At the request of the State authorities, Magistrate Brough put the final decision in the case over until 2 o'clock this afternoon, when Attorney General Newton will appear personally as the representative of the State in the proceedings. In the event the warrant is vacated, and the State does not appeal the case, all the papers seized from the files and lockers of the "embassy" will have to be returned forthwith.

The legal fight to regain possession of the seized Bolshevist paper is being directed by George Gordon Battle of the law firm of O'Gorman, Battle and Vandiver, and Charles Recht, who said yesterday that she appeared as the representative of the Bolshevist Government at Moscow. In criticising the search warrant Mr. Battle said that not by the "wildest imagination" could it be interpreted as specifically calling for the seizure of the mass of documents and papers taken.

Pictures of the different rooms of the "embassy" suite were exhibited to the court, in an effort to prove the contentions of Martens, Santeri Nuorteva, Gregory Weinstein, the friend of Trotzky, and other local oBlshevist officials that the State troopers who made the raid ransacked the offices and turned everything tousy-turvy. As a matter of fact, the office furniture and other equipment not damaged in the raid. One metal strongbox, to which the key could not be found, was pried open, and Nuorteva says that a picture of his son was taken from his desk. The picture was returned the day following the raid.

At the beginning of yesterday's proceedings before Magistrate Brough Mr. Battle said that he appeared on behalf of "a group of men," but did not disclose their names publicly to the court. One of the group is understood to be A. A. Heller, who is "Commercial Attaché" of the "embassy."

Not only, alleged Mr. Battle, were the facts set forth in the search warrant insufficient to permit of the issuance of such process, but the warrant did not describe the property to be seized in sufficient detail, thus making the officers the judges of what was to be seized.

At the outset of the hearing Deputy Attorney General Conklin stated he would object to any decision at this time, but ask for an adjournment. He said Attorney General Newton had informed him he wanted to be heard personally on behalf of the Lusk committee in this matter.

Mr. Battle, after quoting the law regarding search warrants, replied:

"This search warrant which your honor issued while overcrowded with work in the Traffic Court, could contain nothing more general and nothing less specific than what the officer were to seize. The court must designate what is to be seized, and not the officers. Not by the wildest stretch of imagination could it be said that the property is particularly described.

"No less than thirty men, including ten State tropers, were in this raiding party. Many visitors to the offices of the Soviet republic, including a Mr. Humphreys, a Y. M. C. A. worker, were held prisoners for over two hours; furniture was smashed, as is shown by these photographs I am handing your honor; cash boxes, a flag, and numerous other articles that could not be described as literature or documents were seized and are quite outside the scope of the warrant issued.

"They did not bring the articles seized before your honor as they are required by law to do. They took them to a room at 25 East Forty-second Street. The law requires them to bring everything seized before your honor forthwith. The officers shall give a receipt for what they have seized. No inventory has been filed before your honor. No return has been made before your honor, and the only alleged inventory I have seen is this unsworn to piece of paper."

Mr. Battle reiterated that he had witnesses with him who were ready to testify to the facts as alleged by him, but upon renewed argument by the Deputy Attorney General and with consent of all parties the hearing was adjourned until this afternoon at 2 o'clock in order to give Attorney General Newton an opportunity to be heard in behalf of the State.

The question the answer to which was not forthcoming yesterday was as to the identity of the "group of men" represented by Mr. Battle. Santeri Nuorteva, who is the Secretary of the "embassy," said last week that among the papers were tentative contracts that had been entered into with various American manufacturers for supplies for the Lenin-Trotzky Government, the contracts, of course, being dependent on whether or not the Allies and the United States recognise the "Red" Government at Moscow. Nuorteva also said that among the papers seized were letters and other documents written by well known professors, business men, and other American citizens.

It is reported that all of the names will be made public by the State in the course of the Lusk committee's investigation of the radical movement in this State.

SMALL CROWD PROTESTS.

A mass meeting, which its promoters had hoped would crowd Madison Square Garden from arena to roof, was held last night for the purpose of voicing a protest against the action of the State in raiding the offices of Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the Bolshevist "Ambassador" to the United States, on last Thursday afternoon. Anticipating a large crowd, a force of several hundred police reserves, in addition to detectives, assembled in and about the Garden at 7 o'clock, more than an hour before the mass meeting was scheduled to start.

The police had no work in handling the small number of persons who attended. The galleries were empty, and only here and there, in what are known to circus-goers as the arena seats, were there any persons. Except the few in the boxes and the arena the entire audience was accommodated on the main floor in chairs which, to the number of 3,000, had been placed there to care for the early arrivals of the expected crowd.

A careful survey of the Garden by the police and Government agents placed the total number of those present at between 2,500 and 3,000 persons. The police estimated that fully 90 per cent. were of foreign birth.

ASSAIL SCHOOL TEST AS DEMORALIZING

MANY PUPILS DODGED

Opposition to the methods used last Thursday in giving the war fact test to the pupils in the high schools of the city developed yesterday, from several quarters. Exception was taken to the first question on the paper, which asked for information on the Russian Bolsheviki, and then asked for the source of that information, along with a statement as to what had led the pupil to the belief which he held. The main contention was that such an examination could only lead to the suppression of the freedom of thought on the part of both pupils and teachers, that it gave rise to propaganda on the part of the Board of Education, and, finally, that demoralization would result among the pupils because those holding more or less radical doctrines had in most cases deliberately lied to retain the favor of their teachers and the school officials.

This spirit of protest has not arisen everywhere, for in one large school it was said that no teacher had raised any objection to the type of questions, and that the answers of the pupils showed practically no sympathy with the doctrines of the Russian Bolsheviki. It was pointed out that the test was considered a matter of fact test in current events and good citizenship, and that there was no indication that the results would be used for any other purpose than to set the pupils rights in their conception of Americanism, and to form the basis of a course of teaching which would supply any deficiencies in the pupils' knowledge of American institutions.

The question which has aroused the most discussion is the first of seven on the war fact test paper. The question reads:

1. (a) Who are the Russian Bolsheviki and what are their chief aims?

(b) Do you believe the following principles to be in accord with or in opposition to these aims:

1. Rule by the majority.
2. Progress under law.
3. The right of each person to the product of his efforts.
4. Encouragement of individual initiative. (Give in each case the reason for your belief.)

(c) Do you believe Bolshevism to be a danger threatening the people of New York? If so, why?

(d) Tell definitely the sources of your information about Bolshevism; explain what has led you to believe as you do about this movement.

The instructions to the teachers included the following paragraph:

"We are especially interested in the answers to Question 1 on Bolshevism. Ask the teachers to call the principal's attention to any papers which show an especially intimate knowledge of this subject, those particularly which indicate that the pupils have been submitted to systematic training along this line. We are desirous of finding out to what extent Bolshevist ideas have been impressed upon the students of our high schools."

Woman's International League Protests.

It is to these instructions that the Woman's International League has passed resolutions of protest, on the ground, first, that the Board of Education exceeded its powers by usurping the function of the Federal Government in searching out seditious propaganda through its regular agencies; second, that the function of the Board of Education is to teach the children facts upon which they can base intelligent judgments, and not to spread propaganda; and, third, that the attempt to search out the source of information could only lead to the children's spying upon one another and upon their teachers, a practice which is not in accordance with American spirit.

This protest was brought to the attention of Dr. William L. Ettinger, City Superintendent of Schools, who called Dr. Gruenberg to his office Monday to explain his views. Dr. Gruenberg said last night that Dr. Ettinger had said to him that, "as far as he was concerned, there would be no discrimination against any pupil or teacher because of the answers in the examination papers," and that this statement had been made in reply to a query as to the possibility of the holding back of the pupils' diplomas. Dr. Ettinger could not be reached last night to confirm this statement.

FEAR CITY WILL SEE HOUSE FAMINE GROW

PRESS GOVERNOR TO ACT

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 17.—Asserting that there exists in the City of New York at the present time a shortage of proper housing facilities for about 30,000 families and that the situation will become more acute by November, the Joint Legislative Committee on Housing, in a preliminary report submitted to Governor Smith and the Legislature at the session last night, urges the Governor to make immediately an official appeal to Chambers of Commerce, labor organizations, building and loan associations, savings banks, life, fire, health, and casualty insurance companies to put forth every possible effort to aid new construction of dwellings, especially such as may be rented at low cost.

Governor Smith, before leaving for New York City this afternoon, said that he felt disposed to comply with this request, expressed the hope that the legislative measures enacted at the session last night would tend to relieve the situation, and praised the lawmakers for the promptitude with which they had acted both on the housing bills and the concurrent resolution to ratify the Federal woman suffrage amendment. The Governor will sign the housing bills as soon as they have been engrossed and forwarded to him for final action, which undoubtedly will be in a day or two.

Legislation Quickly Passed.

All these measures, with the exception of the bill permitting the remodeling of four-story basement dwellings into apartments for not to exceed four families, were passed without opposition in both the Senate and Assembly. The two Socialists members of the Assembly opposed this amendment to the tenement house law on the ground that it would open the way to abuses which would make for intolerable housing conditions for the poor.

The Joint Legislative Committee in its report asserts that the return of soldiers from service, the influx of families returning from Summer resorts, marriages and the natural increase of population will conspire to make it even more difficult in the fall than it is now to provide adequate housing facilities in New York City.

"There are very few vacancies in the new law tenements," the report says, "and not many in one and two family houses. The reports show about 5,000 vacancies in the old dark room tenements which Health Commissioner Copeland and other experts state are underirable as places of residence."

The Government embargo on building materials and labor for building purposes during the war, and the high cost of both labor and materials since the embargo was lifted, the report holds responsible for the present shortage in housing. After the armistice builders held back, waiting for the cost of materials and labor to recede.

Recently they have changed their views and launched new home construction projects of some magnitude. A deterrent has been the difficulty in obtaining building loans, the insurance companies, savings institutions, estates and men of wealth who have furnished the bulk of funds used for such purposes in the past having invested all their available money in Liberty bonds. The insurance companies, according to the report, even were compelled to borrow some $40,000,000 from the banks for bond purchases, and only now are beginning to repay these loans. Estates and men of wealth, the report says, have gone out of the mortgage business because in many instances the returns on such securities have dwindled to 2 per cent. under the heavy Federal taxes, and have invested their money instead in tax exempt Federal, State and municipal bonds.

Cities Unable to Help.

Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings, Chairman of the Legislative Housing Committee, who drafted the report, said that there was no prospect of financial aid from municipalities in handling the housing problem. Most municipalities in this State have about reached their constitutional debt limit now, so that it would require an amendment of the organic law, involving a delay of at least two years, to place them in a position to follow the example of large cities in Europe and help provide housing facilities for people of humble means at a cost proportionate to their income.

"It is apparent that persons desiring to build must look either to the small investor or to the corporation whose holdings are largely exempt from Federal taxes," the report goes on to say. "These are the insurance companies, savings banks, and other institutions. Representatives of many such institutions in New York City have appeared before the committee, and after the situation was presented to them agreed to advance within the next two months for mortgages for housing upward of $30,000,000. Many of them have accepted a number of loans since May 15, and considerable construction work is under way. One savings bank and one life insurance company (Metropolitan Life) have each agreed to loan $5,000,000. Others have pledged themselves to put out smaller amounts. Some show little or no disposition to help."

As to the rent situation the report has this to say:

"It appears from the testimony thus far taken before the committee that rents have generally increased, especially in the City of New York. It further appears from an analysis of the complaints received by the Mayor's Committee that the majority of the real estate owners in the City of New York have not increased rents at all, or have not made increases in proportion to the increased cost of maintaining the property. Unfortunately, a number of others, many of whom are lessees for the sole purpose of subletting for profit, have been most unreasonable and increased rents far beyond the increased cost of maintenance and beyond a point where they would get a fair yield on their investment; have oppressed tenants and been properly termed profiteers."

Referring to the concurrent resolutions enacted by the Legislature at the session last night, in which Congress was memoralized on the lack of adequate housing facilities and urged to place mortgage bonds in a position to compete with the tax exempt securities of the Federal bonds by exempting them, too, from the Federal income tax, the report says that, this done, plenty of money should be forthcoming from both banks and insurance companies for building purposes.

The bills amending the Municipal Court act by requiring twenty days' notice instead of five before dispossess proceedings are begun, and vesting discretionary powers in Justices of the Municipal Court to grant an additional stay of twenty days, require the approval of Mayor Hylan as well as of Governor Smith before they can become law. As Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of Mayor Hylan's Committee on Housing and Rent Profiteering, joined in the recommendations to Governor Smith to submit the legislation to the extraordinary session, it is assumed here that the Mayor will approve the bills promptly.

NEW LAWS PLEASE HIRSCH.

Says Relief for Housing Situation Is Assured by Concerted Action.

Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, expressed gratification yesterday over the prompt action of the Legislature in passing the two remedial laws for the relief of the housing situation in New York and the bill allowing an extension of time to tenants in dispossess proceedings. He pointed out that the new legislation was brought about through the complete harmony with which the Reconstruction Commission, headed by Abram I. Elkus, and the Joint Legislative Committee, headed by Senator C. Lockwood, and his own committee had worked.

It was stated yesterday that the passage of the Dodge Bill, which allows the remodeling of the old type houses in the city, would allow considerable headway to be made in relieving the present conditions. If the work on the houses is pushed it is believed that in two or three months' time 20,000 more dwellings can be made available in Manhattan alone.

Mr. Hirsch stated that Governor Smith had told him that he realized the seriousness of the housing situation and that when the legislature convened on January 1, 1920, any further remedial legislation which might be introduced would receive his hearty support.

The Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies in New York City announced yesterday that an investigation of the building needs of its affiliated institutions had been completed by a committee appointed for this purpose, and as a result a campaign will be conducted this fall to raise a building fund. The committee visited hospitals, child-caring homes, and educational and other institutions to ascertain their needs. The committee consisted of Dr. Julius Goldman, Chairman; Leo Arnstein, Dr. H. G. Friedman, William Goldman, Colonel H. A. Guinsburg, Justice Irving Lehman, Max D. Steuer, Felix M. Warburg, President of the Federation, and Dr. I. Edwin Goldwasser, Executive Secretary, ex-officio.

SMITH LAUDS LEGISLATORS.

Governor Grateful for Ratification of Suffrage Amendment.

ALBANY, N. Y. June 17.—Governor Smith today expressed his gratitude to the members of the Legislature for the prompt manner in which they ratified the Federal suffrage amendment and passed four bills designed to relieve the housing situation at the extraordinary session last night. The session was unique in that it was the shortest on record in the State's history, all business being transacted and adjournment taken within three and a half hours from the time of convening.

"I feel grateful," the Governor said, "to the Lieutenant Governor, the Speaker, the legislative leaders, and the members of the Legislature for their prompt action on the bills, and I congratulate them. The excellent attendance in what might virtually be called the middle of the Summer shows an interest that is commendable."

McCORMACK NOW AMERICAN.

Tenor Takes Oath of Allegiance as a Citizen of the United States.

John McCormack, the Irish tenor, was admitted to citizenship yesterday by Justice Donnelly of the Supreme Court. As soon as he had taken the oath of allegiance Mr. McCormack promised Morton A. Burgas, Federal Examiner of Naturalization, to sing at an Americanization meeting to be held in the evening high school at 206 East Forty-second Street tomorrow at 8 P. M.

Mr. McCormack came to court with his brother James, who hopes to become a famous vocalist; Dr. Alfred C. Dupont, his throat specialist, and Edwin Schneider, his accompanist. When he was asked if he would support the Constitution of the United States he answered: "Will I? Well, I should say so." It was Mr. McCormack's desire to take the final oath on St. Patrick's Day, and he was greatly disappointed when he learned that he had to wait ninety days after he had received his second papers. The naturalization papers show that he was born in Athlone, Ireland, and that he was 31 years old yesterday.

Mr. McCormack called later at the City Hall to tell the Mayor about his luck in becoming an American citizen. He then made a tour of inspection of the building under the escort of Secretary Sinnott.

URGES NEW POST OFFICE.

The Merchants' Association sent a letter yesterday to the Board of Estimate commending it for adopting the resolution offered by Controller Craig recommending the removal of the Post Office Building so that the site might be added to the City Hall Park. For many years the association has taken an active part in perfecting postal facilities in the city and in the Spring of 1912 adopted resolutions which read in part:

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the Merchants' Association of New York, that Congress be urged to pass the necessary legislation to provide for the acquisition of a proper site, in the new civic centre in the City of New York, to be created immediately north of City Hall Park, for the construction of a Federal building adapted to the requirements of modern methods of conducting postal business and adequate for the requirements of the Federal courts, and that arrangements be thereupon perfected between the city and Federal Government whereby the present downtown Post Office building shall be removed and the area restored to City Hall Park.

In the following years there were many efforts to get rid of the old Federal Building. In its letter to the Board of Estimate the association says: "The reasons for the removal of the Post Office in the communication sent to the Board of Estimate in 1913 are still valid. This association desires to aid the city in any feasible way to bring about the removal of the antiquated, unsanitary, and unsightly structure which now occupies a site upon much needed park land. We shall be glad to co-operate with your honorable body in bringing about the removal of the Post Office building from its present site."

TO MOVE JAMAICA HOSPITAL.

A New Building Will Be Erected Near Woodhaven.

Announcement was made last night by Robert W. Higbie, Chairman of the $300,000 soldiers' memorial hospitals campaign, under way this week in Queens Borough, that as a result of the success of the first two days of the half million dollar drive, the Jamaica Hospital is to have an entirely new building and not a new wing, as was at first planned. The location of the hospital is to be changed and a site for the institution will be purchased in the vicinity of Woodhaven.

This announcement was the outstanding feature of the second day of the campaign, which is enlisting the active effort of more than 2,000 workers in Queens who have set out to erect a most notable soldiers' memorial in the form of new structures for both St. Mary's and Jamaica Hospitals. The purpose in moving the Jamaica Hospital to the vicinity of Woodhaven is to distribute hospital facilities more evenly in the Fourth Ward of Queens.

A full-fledged daily newspaper, giving the progress of the campaign, made its appearance yesterday and was delivered by automobile throughout the entire section in which funds are being raised. The four-page newspaper, is to be published each day throughout the remainder of the campaign.

Here Are the Reasons Why

"STRUGGLING RUSSIA"

A New Weekly Magazine Devoted to Russian Problems

Should Be in Every American Library and in Every American Home!

1st. The Russian problem is the central World Problem of to-day. Peace in Europe and throughout the world is impossible without peace in Russia. The League of Nations is impossible without Russia becoming a stable democracy and a participant in the League.

2nd. "Struggling Russia" fights the Bolshevist tyranny and stands for the establishment in Russia, through an All-Russian Constituent Assembly, of a Government of the people, by the people and for the people. By fighting Bolshevism "Struggling Russia" performs a service of international importance. Bolshevism is not merely a Russian phenomenon. It is a terrible aftermath of the War, an international disease demanding immediate and energetic attention.

3rd. Every issue of "Struggling Russia" contains articles devoted to political, social and economic problems of Russia, and series of important Russian Documents. Every week the magazine contains an article by Catherine Breshkovsky, the "Grandmother of the Russian Revolution."

American Librarians on "Struggling Russia"

Celia A. Hayward, Acting Librarian of the Berkeley Public Library, Berkeley, Cal., says: "We are receiving 'Struggling Russia' and I consider it of utmost value at the present time when the situation in Russia is threatening not only the existence of Russia herself but the welfare of the whole world. I wish to express my hope for the entire success of the Russian people in their efforts to free themselves of this red terror of Bolshevism, and I am glad to subscribe for 'Struggling Russia'."

D. S. Pinneo, Librarian, Public Library, Norwalk, Conn., says: "Enclosed please find our subscription for 'Struggling Russia.' We cannot afford to be without anything so enlightening upon the situation in Russia, and you can believe me when I say America is eager to help the real Russia, and in the right way—not by taking the hand of the present murderers."

Gladys Judd Day, Librarian, Hartford Bar Library Association, Hartford, Conn., says: "We received your splendid weekly, 'Struggling Russia.' Russia's foe, Bolshevism, is just as great a danger to our own country unless thorough understanding of what it actually means is set before our people."

Mary E. McCoy, Librarian of the Indianola Public Library, Indianola, Iowa, says: "We are more than pleased with copies of 'Struggling Russia' already sent us and are expecting just as splendid articles in the next numbers."

Readers' Comment—"Struggling Russia"

John Spargo, the prominent American leader and writer, author of the splendid book on "Bolshevism" says: "You are doing a big thing in publishing 'Struggling Russia'—bigger for America than for Russia, even! You are giving us exactly what is wanted: carefully tested, authoritative, documentary evidence. I want to thank you from the depths of my heart."

George Kennan says: "'Struggling Russia' is excellent. I am sure that all my friends will subscribe to it."

W. J. Ghent says: "'Struggling Russia' is admirable. It contains just the sort of material that ought to make a deep impression on the liberal and progressive elements and on that part of the radical element which is open-minded and willing to listen to the truth."

J. G. Phelps Stokes says: "'Struggling Russia' is important and admirable."

Thomas E. Burke, General Secretary of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters, says: "I congratulate you on the manner in which 'Struggling Russia' is edited. I will from time to time use some of the articles in our official journal so as to give to our members the true state of affairs in Russia."

T. Chas. Price, Editor, Union Labor Bulletin, says: "Allow me to compliment you upon your 'Struggling Russia,' which comes at an opportune time to offset the propaganda of ruthlessness which is finding birth in this country as a result of the so-called proletarian ascendency in Russia. I shall be pleased to utilize the information which your magazine contains in my comments and articles upon conditions in this country which are presumed to be a reflex of conditions in Russia."

The first fourteen issues of the magazine contain articles by Catherine Breshkovsky, Nicholas Tchaikovsky, Alexander Kerensky, Leonid Andreiev, Paul Miliukov, Vladimir Bourtzev, C. M. Oberoucheff, Prof. Joseph M. Goldstein, A. J. Sack, Emanuel Aronsberg, M. K. Eroshkin, and others.

PHONE GIRLS STRIKE ON THE WEST COAST

CRISIS IN THE WIRE STRIKE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—Telephone operators, linemen and other electrical workers throughout California went on strike this morning. All the chief cities in the State are affected. Telephone company officials admitted that the system was crippled, and there were long delays in traffic after 7 o'clock, the hour when the strike was called.

Representatives of the operators said that some of their number were staying at their posts to answer hospital, newspaper and other emergency calls.

The strike of the telephone employes was put into effect notwithstanding an order issued by international union officials to postpone action following concessions granted to the workers by Postmaster General Burleson.

Union officials estimated that more than 5,000 girl operators and 1,000 male employes were directly affected in Northern and Central California.

The telephone operators are demanding increased pay, better housing conditions, and discontinuance of alleged discrimination by employing officials against workers active in union affairs.

L. C. Grasser, International Vice President of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, has declared the strikes in California illegal and without sanction of international officials.

Crisis of Wiremen's Strike.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The crisis in the strike of commercial telegraphers probably would be reached within twenty-four hours, union leaders said tonight after a conference at general strike headquarters.

A telegram was sent to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, saying that the strikers would abide by decisions reached at conferences to be held by Mr. Gompers and other Federation officers and representatives of the Telegraphers' Union. At one of these conferences the question of placing the strike situation before President Wilson will be discussed.

Officers of the Order of Railway Telegraphers announced today that 50 per cent. of the Western Union's business had been affected by refusal of railroad operators to handle commercial business, as a means of helping the strikers in their fight for the right of collective bargaining.

This statement was refuted by officers of the Association of Western Union Employes who said business was normal, that only slight inconvenience was caused by the action of railroad operators, and that reports indicated that strikers from the Postal Telegraph Company were returning to work in many towns.

An attempt by the Association of Western Union Employes to have the order of railway telegraphers rescind the instructions to members to refuse to handle commercial business was ended when the latter organization charged the association with being dominated by Western Union officials, and charged that it was not a union body. Replying, the association officials denounced the attitude of the railroad telegraph leaders.

Union officals said that in a number of towns electrical workers, particularly telephone operators, had gone on strike. Charles P. Ford, Secretary of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with headquarters at Springfield, Ill., said the California strikes were due to the failure of telephone company officials to comply with Postmaster General Burleson's order granting the right of collective bargaining.

ST. LOUIS, June 17.—Railroad telegraphers in 23,000 railroad offices throughout the country are carrying out the orders to refuse to handle commercial business, according to reports to headquarters of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers. The action of the railroad operators has tied up telegraph communication with small towns throughout the country, according to officials of the order, who declare that the commercial companies are refusing such messages or accepting them subject to infinite delay.

Telegraph Service Uninterrupted.

Although Percy Thomas, International Deputy President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, said last night that the strike was gaining ground everywhere and that it would be "fought to the end," the service of both companies continued uninterrupted, with less delay, and there were indications that, unaided, the telegraphers would eventually have to admit defeat.

Mr. Thomas said he expected to be in Atlantic City today to confer with President Samuel Gompers and other officials of the American Federation of Labor. He favors a plan to send a message to President Wilson urging the President to advise Postmaster General Burleson to settle the strike along the lines that led to the adjustment of the threatened walkout of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers last Monday.

Regarding the organization of a company union among the 100,000 employes of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, F. H. Bethell, First Vice President of the New York Telephone Company, a subsidiary concern, said work was progressing smoothly. The plan, he said, was to organize groups in each city with a central body in New York.

Mr. Bethell said the employes were being formed into what might be described as chapters, to be governed by a body chosen from all the chapters. He said that no dues were to be paid and that there would be no charge to the members for halls or other places of meeting. Officials of the company, he added, would address the workers from time to time to increase their efficiency and their morale.

The company official estimated that 8,000 telephone girls were at work yesterday in this city. This is below normal, which is roughly about 9,500 operators.

Speaking on the telegraphers' strike, Newton Carlton of the Western Union said last night that the strike was dead. "There are no difficulties and I can add nothing to this statement," he said.

Vice President Edward A. Reynolds of the Postal Telegraph Company also said that there was no strike. He said there was still some trouble in the San Francisco office, but thought that would be alleviated today by operators sent from other points. Chicago, he said, was still short of operators, but enough men were at work to keep the traffic moving at the usual speed.

DELAY WIRE LEGISLATION.

Plans of House Leaders Blocked by Unexpected Discussion.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Plans of House leaders for the passage today of legislation repealing Government wire control were blocked unexpectedly by prolonged discussion of a conference report on an appropriation bill, which had the legislative right of way, notwithstanding the decision of the Rules Committee to make the wire repeal a special order of business.

With the failure to obtain action today, House leaders expected that the wire repeal would be sidetracked again tomorrow for calendar bills, including that repealing the daylight saving law. As soon as the daylight saving repeal is disposed of, it is planned to take up the Rules Committee resolution on the wire legislation.

The House wire repeal legislation will be based on the Senate bill which has been amended to provide that the wire properties shall be returned to their owners for private operation at the end of the calendar month in which the bill is approved, instead of "forthwith," as originally provided. The House measure also differs from that of the Senate by providing for continuance of Government-fixed telephone rates for a maximum period of six months instead of three months.

MAYOR ACTS FOR STRIKERS.

Expect Labor Trouble in Ansonia, Conn., to End Soon.

ANSONIA, Conn., June 17.—At the conclusion late today of several conferences between Mayor John C. Mead and representatives of the American Brass Company and other factories affected by strikes here, it was stated that the end of the labor troubles could be expected within the next forty-eight hours.

The Mayor had been chosen early today to act as the representative of the strikers and he immediately got from them a statement of theid demands, which he made known to the employers. Concessions on increased wages and on better working conditions were soon made and these results communicated to the men, with the strong probability of ratification by them at once.

In the Derby Web Shops, where strikes are on, the employers have agreed to follow the lead of the Ansonia managers, and the end of the walk-out there is also thought to be in sight.

VOTE FOR MOONEY STRIKE.

MILWAUKEE, June 17.—Eight organized labor crafts representing 8,000 employes have reported favorably on a proposal for a five days' general strike to begin July 4, as a protest against the conviction of Thomas Mooney.

Other Milwaukee unions voted on the strike, but have not yet reported. The following unions favor it: Railroad Machinists helpers, Machinists, Sheet Metal Workers, Cigar Makers, Coopers, Brewery Workers, and employes of the Northwestern and Milwaukee Roads.

Several labor bodies, notably the Patternmakers and the Typographical Union, have flatly refused to take a strike vote.

WINNIPEG ARRESTS TEN RED AGITATORS

OTTAWA ORDERS ROUNDUP

Two Aldermen and Four Russians Are Held—Arrests in Other Cities Are Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, June 17.—Arrests of strike agitators and a raid on the Labor Temple early this morning brought the strike situation here to a dramatic climax today. Six prominent strike leaders, including two Aldermen, were taken into custody at their homes by the Royal Northwest Mounted Police and city special police. Three others are also under arrest.

At the same hour the Labor Temple was entered by the police and ransacked for Bolshevist literature. An amount of this literature was seized, it is said.

The men arrested were:

Rev. William Ivens, editor of The Western Labor News;

Alderman John Queen,

Alderman A. A. Heaps,

Moses Almazoff, Extreme Socialist, Russian.

Mike Berenzuk, Bolshevist sympathizer, Russian.

It was announced at Police Headquarters that the charge laid against the men is seditious utterances. Reports that a number of additional arrests would be made within the next twenty-four hours could not be confirmed.

A. Schoppeire, prominent in labor circles, was arrested at noon today, making the tenth arrest.

Conspiracy has been added to the charges of sedition.

W. A. Pritchard of Vancouver and J. R. Johns are said to be in Montreal and the Federal authorities are said to be looking for Johns in Montreal.

The men arrested were very active in the Calgary convention, which indorsed the one big union and sent greetings to the Russian Soviets and the German Spartacides. The order for the warrants was issued under the authority of the Federal Government.

Beyond expressing indignation at the presence of representatives of the law at their homes, the men taken into custody submitted to arrest quietly.

It was announced that arrests were also to have been carried out in Calgary and other Western points at the same time.

Acting Chief of Police Newton at 10 o'clock this morning issued the following statement:

"Acting on authority from the Federal Government authorities at Ottawa, armed with warrants issued by the Dominion Government officials, nine men whom the Secret Service authorities had marked as leaders of Bolshevist propaganda were arrested this morning.

"The arrested men were taken to the Stony Mountain Penitentiary, near Stonewall, some twenty miles from the city, where ample protection is being provided.

"Simultaneous with the leaders' arrest the Labor Temple, the strikers' headquarters, was raided by the Royal Northwestern Mounted Police and literature seized. The building was thoroughly searched, and doors and rooms that could not be opened were broken. Books and papers of all sorts were taken and thrown in waiting automobiles.

"Latest news on the strike of the railroad men was that all the Canadian Pacific passenger trains got off on scheduled time and that those of the Canadian Northern were despatched with some delays. The Canadian Pacific Railroad, it was reported, was satisfactorily handling freight, and it was announced there had been an improvement in the freight situation in the Canadian Northern Railroad. An official of one of the railroads said:

"Happily, it is only the smaller proportion of firemen, switchmen and brakemen who have failed to turn up for duty. If the strike movement has reached its limits, as it appears to have done, as there were no more desertions today, then we shall be able to keep the services running without cutting out any important train."

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 17.—The Police Department denies knowledge of any arrest of strike leaders in Vancouver. The same answer was given out at the office of the Mounted Police.

So far there have been no arrests here, but rumor has it that one strike leader, Kavanagh, was notified by the police that he was liable to twenty years' imprisonment for delaying the mails, as in the case of the Australian liner Makura, which is still unloaded.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has announced that steps will be taken tomorrow to permanently fill the places of those on strike.

BRASS WORKERS MAY STRIKE

WATERBURY, Conn., June 17.—Unless their demands are granted by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning several thousand employes of the wire mills, rolling mills, and casting shops of the large brass factories here will strike at that hour. This decision was reached at a mass meeting of Lithuanian, Russian, Polish, and Italian factory hands held tonight at two halls in the Lithuanian district.

After addresses were delivered in Polish, Russian, Lithuanian, Italian, and English, circulars printed in English were distributed urging workers to strike tomorrow.

It is estimated that 12,500 employes will walk out if the strike is called. Six large plants and a score of smaller ones will be affected.

FRENCH LABOR DELAYS GENERAL STRIKE CALL

PARIS, June 17.—A committee of the General Federation of Labor and representatives of the Interfederal Labor Union decided today not to provoke a general strike unless the miners, who are now striking, asked them to intervene.

The Chamber of Deputies today passed the bill applying the eight-hour law to coal miners. The measure was passed without amendment, as demanded by the miners.

The difference in the application of this law and the miners' demands amounts to only a few minute points, and hope is held that the miners will not remain out on strike on that score if concessions in wages are granted them.

A hopeful indication in the strike situation today was the decision of the miners in the departments of Du Nord and Pas-de-Calais to ask for arbitration on the points at issue by M. Loucheur, Minister of Reconstruction, and M. Collard, Minister of Labor.

What The Liberty Mutual Offers Manufacturers, Contractors and Public Utilities

Workmen's Compensation Protection at Cost

EVERY Liberty Mutual policyholder gets the fullest protection provided for by the Workmen's Compensation Law without having to pay heavy profits to stockholders or commissions to agents.

This is the main idea which prompted the organization of this company.

Proof that it is the right policy is evidenced by the fact that since its organization the Liberty Mutual has paid back to policyholders more than $2,500,000 —dividends equaling 30 per cent of yearly premiums.

What greater proof could we offer that this method of buying your compensation protection is economical—practical —efficient?

Accident and Time-Loss Reduction in your Factory

THE Liberty Mutual does what every company should do for its compensation policyholders—pays each claim promptly.

It makes settlements as fair to employee as to employer—maintaining the workmen's good-will.

But its main efforts are directed to reducing the number of accidents—saving your employees from injury—and saving you costly time-loss that reduces the working efficiency of your factory.

In many instances, our experts have assisted in reducing accidents 20 to 50 per cent.

Again, we work to reduce the amount of your annual premium by the merit system of rating—reduction often amounting to considerable sums.

This interested service the Liberty Mutual gives because it is a mutual company. Its interests are those of the policy-holder—not the stockholder who looks for his profits.

More Than Ample Financial Strength

IT is not enough to have ample financial security, surplus, and legal reserves. They, of course, are made necessary by law, but the Liberty Mutual believes in eliminating every possible risk.

Hence every policy is backed by reinsurance in London Lloyds, against catastrophe losses.

Thus Liberty Mutual strength goes beyond ample financial security and offers you protection that is economical, complete, and absolutely safeguarded.

Automobile Protection at Cost, too

YOU can also secure your automobile liability insurance without paying agents' commissions. You can buy it without paying stockholders' profits.

RUSH OF RECRUITS FOR THE NEW ARMY

Many Take Advantage of Unusual Opportunities Offered In Service by Enlisting.

NO LIMIT TO CITY'S QUOTA

Officers of the Army Recruiting Service in the metropolitan district said yesterday that the first two days of their intensive campaign to enlist 80,000 men for service in France and on the Rhine, as well as in other services, had been so successful that they expected a phenomenal run of recruiting. No limit in numbers has been set, and the recruiting offices will take every man who fits the requirements for army service.

At the six stations in the west side district of Manhattan yesterday about fifty men were accepted for their preferred services in the army, and reports from the other districts were that numbers equally as large were accepted. There is also an east side district in this city, a Brooklyn district, and a Hudson County district in New Jersey, and, although no figures were available, it is believed that between 150 and 200 men were enlisted during the day. Complete figures for the campaign throughout the country will be ready Thursday.

Officers varied in their explanation of the causes of the successful run of enlistments. One said he believed the fighting along the Mexican border might have been a stimulus. Others pointed out that the majority of the recruits expressed preference for service with the American Army in France and on the Rhine. Others pointed out that ordinarily the number of enlistments on the first day of the week was greater than on later days, but this precedent apparently has been broken. The conclusion of many officers is that the army is making such an appeal to young men, through its educational courses, pay, and other advantages that growing numbers are eager to obtain these benefits.

Many Veterans Came Back.

Some men who have seen service yearn for the life after they have been out of it for a few months, and many of these come back. It is believed that hundreds of veterans will be recruited in this city for the one-year period offered as a privilege to previous service men, because of the great number that are being mustered out in camps near the city. Many of these men who planned to remain in the city, it is believed, will soon grow tired of urban life and will seek again the companionship and privileges of the army.

About half of the men who applied yesterday at the headquarters of the Recruiting Service at 461 Eighth Avenue, at Thirty-third Street, expressed preference for service in the infantry, field artillery or cavalry with the American Expeditionary Forces. They will form part of the first contingent to be sent to France and Germany. It is expected that special privileges will be allowed them to see parts of the countries where their army service does not carry them, so that their desire for travel may be gratified. In addition to touring at the expese of the army, these soldiers will receive at the beginning a base pay of $30 a month, with food, quarters, medical and dental attention, and many other privileges.

Several men told the recruiting officers they had been attracted by the promise of the army to teach every man a trade that would be useful to him in civil life. They received assurances that the army would observe their preferences and place them in the branches they should choose, so that they could receive instruction.

One of these men was Frank Stalfacher of 244 First Avenue, who has worked as a cooper for almost twenty years. Stalfacher said that for several months the work in his trade had not been regular, and, with the coming of prohibition, was likely to be even less so. At 35 he decided he would have to learn a new trade. He saw the offers of the Motor Transport Corps, and asked if he could attend one of the schools for motor repairmen. He probably will leave tomorrow for Camp Holabird, near Baltimore.

Enlist to Learn Trades.

Two other men who saw opportunities to learn in the Motor Transport Corps were John Sacco of 348 Pleasant Avenue, Jersey City, and Vincent Amenti of 407 East 116th Street. Sacco has never been able to leave his work as a blacksmith long enough to learn to be a motor mechanic, and Amenti could not afford to quit his drill press and sure income. They will get their pay in the army. "This is the life—earn while you learn," said the recruiting officer. "And also eat!"

Calvin E. Johnson had two preferences, and the recruiting officers were satisfied with both. He wanted to see the Philippines and learn something about telegraph and telephone installation. He said there was nothing to keep him in this city except the necessity of earning money to get out of it.

"Uncle Sam will take care of the railroad fare and everything else," said the recruiting Sergeant. "You'll be in the Philippines so quick you won't have a chance to get seasick. The army might send you over in that first airplane. Something new will happen to you, anyway."

Elmer T. Madden had a desire to learn something about engineering while serving in the Panama Canal Zone. He thought engineers in Panama ought to learn something about canals. The recruiting Sergeant said he believed he had heard something about a canal in Panama, and he guessed any recruit could go there, because the Panama engineer regiments were always yelling for more men. Madden will take a long ocean ride at the expense of the country before beginning his education in engineering.

One boy, about 19 years, who reported at the station too late to undergo the physical examination yesterday, said he had decided there was nothing for him in the fur trade, and he might as well learn to be an airplane mechanic while he was still young. He will be accepted for the Air Service if he is physically fit, and if he can prove that he is more than 18 years old. He, with all the other recruits for this service, will take their first flight on their way to camp. The army has so many airplanes now that the recruit can get his thrill early, and the "airplane express" picks up recruits in this city and drops them at their training camps so fast that their heads swim.

Great Little Army, Says Sergeant.

"I'll tell you, buddy," said Sergeant Williams, "there's nothing slow about this little army of ours—ask any German!—and the swiftest part of it is the sky pilots. They never have to walk or ride a passenger train, and their hair always lays back nice over their heads without combing.

"I want to tell you fellows something about this army," added the Sergeant, as he lined up a bunch of recruits at 461 Eighth Avenue. "You fellows are going to get something you never had before, even if this is your second time in the army. You're going to get base pay of $30 a month to start, with more on promotions. You're going to get your chuck, and darn good chuck at that. You're going to get a place to sleep, and blankets, and clothes, and doctors when you're sick, and a lot of other things. The only thing you fellows will have to buy is smokes. That's about the only thing the army doesn't buy, and after July 1 you might just as well be in a regiment as any other place.

"You rooks don't have to learn to be only soldiers. You can learn to be almost anything you want to be. It's some different from twenty years ago when all the old birds went in. Then we fought or sat around, and did little or nothing. Now the army is a school, and some school! You can all learn, earn money, and get so husky your mothers won't know you when your enlistments are up.

"And that isn't all. There's something new. Every year at least ninety men are to be picked to go to West Point to learn to be officers, and if a fellow isn't lucky enough to be chosen, and still wants to be an officer, he can study and take an examination for a commission in any branch of the service. This is sure some army. It's the first university I ever saw that gave a man money to come to classes."

GOAL OF BOY SCOUT CAMPAIGN IN SIGHT

$1,000,000 Fund and Enrollment of 325,000 Adults Expected Before Midnight.

DRIVE ENDS AT THAT HOUR

Big Meeting Planned as Windup in City College Stadium This Evening.

Reports from all the borough Chairmen last night indicated that the goal of the Boy Scouts of America to enroll 325,000 adult associate members and raise $1,000,000 in this city will have been reached when the campaign closes at 12 o'clock tonight. William H. Edwards, Chairman of the City Campaign Committee, said he had received most optimistic reports. Queens still is leading in the race toward her quota, with the other boroughs close behind in the percentage of attainment.

In an attempt to send Manhattan far over the top Chairman Edwards has arranged for a meeting at 7 o'clock tonight in the City College Stadium. It is hoped to have several thousand present, and to enroll them all as associate members of the organization and subscribers to the fund before leaving the amphitheatre. Mr. Edwards will speak, as will Police Commissioner Enright and Robert E. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen. Music will be furnished by the Police Band and Glee Club.

When told that many persons misunderstood the purposes of the Boy Scouts and of their campaign, William G. McAdoo, Chairman of the General Citizens' Committee for the entire country, issued a statement giving his ideas of the organization.

The drive is not for money to buy tents, uniforms, and camping equipment for the Boy Scouts, he said. Scouts buy such things for themselves. The drive is for money to enable the Boy Scouts organization to carry its great work for boyhood into every home in New York City where there is a boy 12 years old or over. The Scout movement is a citizen builder.

The Boy Scouts of America is scientific," said the statement that "the Scout of today is the soldier of tomorrow." It says solely that the training which the Boy Scout gets in patriotism would cause him to lay down his life for his country in battle if the call ever came. Even the Scouts of today denied themselves play and pleasure to aid the Government during the war. But the great movement is distinctly for peace, for brotherhood, for good citizenship.

This movement has the unqualified indorsement of churchmen, schoolmen, statesmen, and business men of the whole country, based upon a thorough knowledge of its constitution, management and aims. We urge upon the consideration and prompt action of every person in New York and its suburbs the needs of the Boy Scouts for large and prompt support to make possible more rapid extension of its boy membership.

Speaking at the noon meeting on the steps of the Sub-Treasury, ex-Ambassador Gerard declared that the training given to Boy Scouts aids greatly in fighting the malicious influences that partake of the nature of Bolshevism. He said the training of boys on the principles of the Boy Scout organization would not produce any military caste or class such as Germany had, or engender the idea of militarism, but would develop all boys physically and give them other preliminary training that would enable them to become good soldiers quickly if the country were called upon to defend itself.

"There is only one danger left, and that is Bolshevism," he said. "Let us meet it by giving the kids a fair chance. Let's give them a hand in this campaign. If this movement had taken hold in the nation years ago we might not have been set upon by a ruthless enemy and forced into the conflict that cost us so many lives. Scouting spells preparedness."

The drive was carried yesterday to new parts of the city. Byron P. Newton, Collector of the Port, volunteered to help canvass the waterfront. He was aided by customs inspectors. The campaign for members also was carried on in sections where there is a large foreign population. It is believed the work of the Boy Scouts would benefit the boys there, and the quest has not been for funds but for members.

The regular noon meetings will be held today, including a special gathering in City Hall Park, where Boy Scout officials will speak.

Your Troubles Never Happen in a Hot Spot Chalmers

A STRANGER wrote the other day he had taken his Hot Spot Chalmers to a garage for the first time since he bought it—and he had run it 22,121 miles! "It didn't need a thing except one three-minute adjustment," he added.

We get many letters like this; and we assign the lack of trouble in a Chalmers largely to Hot Spot and Ram's-horn.

Hot Spot "cracks up" the raw gas, converts it into a fine vapor that offers excellent combustion qualities.

Ram's-horn rushes it with a rapidity that is lightning-like to the cylinders, and when the spark plugs perform their function —you get power results beyond belief.

Many cars of today, still equipped with old-fashioned engines, permit raw gas to descend past the pistons into the crank case; and then follows trouble in more ways than one.

The circulation of non-radical papers is more than Eight Million Copies.
The circulation of Socialist, I. W. W. and Bolshevist papers is 631,000.

This Press Is for Americanization

A large number of these papers carry articles on Americanization and urge the teaching of the English language.

They are information centers on the Federal Income Tax, W. S. S., Employment, and American Ideals.

Three million of our foreign born do not yet read or speak our language and America has no other way to reach them.

Six million are un-Americanized—in colonies, workshops and homes with little contact with our country.

This Press Is for American Citizenship

It believes that the best Americans are made citizens voluntarily, not by compulsion.

250 Publishers representing 500 Publications met in New York City on March 28th and organized the Publishers Association of the American Press in Foreign Languages.

Here is Paragraph 3 of its purposes:

"The fostering of unswerving loyalty to American ideals and institutions among the readers of newspapers in foreign languages, and co-operation with other organizations in Americanization work."

Among the resolutions unanimously adopted was the following:

"That this conference declares itself against Bolshevism in all its shades and pledges all its forces to combat it."

It is a membership rule of the Publishers Association of the American Press in Foreign Languages:

"That no newspaper whose publisher, if an individual, is not a citizen of the United States; or whose publisher if a corporation, has not a majority of its officers citizens of the United States, shall be eligible for membership."

What Is It?

It is 1232 daily, weekly and monthly papers, not including German.

It has a circulation of 8,000,000 copies, reaching 16,000,000 foreign born peoples.

It is an American institution of democracy. Some of these people published their first newspaper in free America, being forbidden to use their language in autocratic countries.

An American Institution

The foreign language press is an American institution, for which at present there is no substitute.

Hundreds of large American communities have to date neglected or refused to appropriate money to provide the facilities whereby resident aliens could learn to read English language papers.

42 races in America depend on newspapers in their own tongue for daily news, for information and for a multitude of services.

This Press is often the job finder, ticket agent, the information bureau, the bank guide, the philosopher and family friend.

Thousands of copies are mailed annually to villages and towns all over Europe spreading the gospel of Americanism.

Some Comparisons

There are 320 radical publications in the United States, 240 are published in the English language and are read by active Americans.

The circulation of the English language radical papers is about 10,000,000.

The circulation of foreign language radical papers is about 631,000.

The 10 papers whose names were given in The New York Times of June 8, 1919, as teaching treason and sedition are nearly all being published without the mailing privilege, which the government has denied them.

(There has been a large increase since these figures were compiled in 1910.)

This Press Helped to Win the War

The foreign born people in New York City pledged the sum of $450,000,000 to the great Victory Loan.

To the 3rd and 4th Liberty Loans the American residents of foreign birth or immediate extraction gave nearly $1,300,000,000.

They formed 41 per cent. of the subscribers of the 3rd Liberty Loan and gave nearly 18 per cent of the Loan.

About 300,000 foreign born miners helped speed up the coal production at home and hundreds of thousands of the readers of American foreign language newspapers in rolling mills, ammunition factories and ship building yards were constantly strengthened in their morale by their newspapers.

They "put over" the great drives and story of the war for several of the important activities of the Federal Departments.

Today this press influenced by these organizations is raising funds for the new republics and helping to establish peace and stabilize conditions.

Trade Expansion Needs This Press

Nearly 100 magazines published in English or foreign languages circulated both here and abroad are engaged in spreading good trade feeling.

Buyers from all countries coming to America read first the paper published here in their own language and buy accordingly.

Millions of dollars will be spent by American immigrants to send goods to their friends in Europe.

The best salesman of American goods is the man who buys things here, likes them and writes home telling his friends about them or shows them to his friends if he goes back.

"Made in America" must come to mean "Used in America."

The Foreign Market in America

The foreign language press is the medium to the greatest foreign market in the world, uncontrolled by American business today but its biggest prospect.

16,000,000 foreign born live here with very small knowledge of American goods. 33,000,000 in our foreign language homes are more interested in imports than in domestic manufactures, because the story of American goods has not reached them.

They are the best advertisers of the American goods they use and are liberal purchasers. A market analysis for your product will prove this.

400,000 return to Europe every normal year. Their value as trade missionaries can be secured through the foreign language press.

The buying power of the foreign born has increased enormously since 1914. High wages, incentives to live as Americans, inability to return to Europe or send money has given them more to spend here.

The American Association of Foreign Language Newspapers is opening up this market to American business men by reorganizing under American management and by adopting the standards and methods of American business.

The answer to the spread of Bolshevism among the foreign language people is—Co-operation by American publishers with this Press to do the job it has set out to do.

The answer to the spread of Bolshevism among foreign language speaking people is—Support the American Foreign Language Press and let it make the fight on Bolshevism in a language and by methods that all foreign born people understand.

The check to the spread of Bolshevism among foreign language people is—Place the burden upon these papers and organizations to clean up conditions among their own people, through their own leaders working with Americans.

The undersigned organizations, composed of business men, organized labor, and racial leaders and publishers, have brought capital and labor together to solve racial relations problems in America.

We can do it with the intelligent, constructive support of the American public.

We are doing it by a practical program based on understanding, getting the other fellow's point of view and by learning the causes of unrest and antagonism and by installing remedies.

With the world shot to pieces and with good will panaceas running wild, America needs leaders in a program for its 50 resident races speaking more than as many languages and numbering 16,000,000 people. We are doing the work and we ask your support.

RE-ENACTS ROBBERY AND MURDER IN BANK

District Attorney Gets Details of Murder for Which Hamby Is Under Indictment.

TELL OF BANDIT'S COOLNESS

Officials Show How Employes Were Killed While Attempting to Give an Alarm.

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis yesterday staged a re-enactment of the double murder and robbery for which Gordon F. Hamby is at present under indictment. Starting from the Navarre Hotel at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street in a car with William McCullogh, chauffeur of the machine, the District Attorney acted out every detail of the crime in which two men were killed and the East Brooklyn Savings Bank robbed of $12,000 on the 13th of last December.

After the re-enactment of the crime, District Attorney Lewis questioned officials of the bank for details as to any incidents of the original scene th t occurred to them, and they all agreed that the outstanding feature of the whole thing was the astounding coolness of Hamby. He never made an unnecessary move, said the officials, and he never failed either his partner or himself when it came to the pinch.

He walked into the bank, they said, with his partner, and pointed a pistol at the head of Dewitt C. Peale, assistant cashier. When the latter started for the burglar alarm he shot him dead. All this time the bandit was covering every person in the room with his pistol and when Henry W. Koons started to run for the rear entrance, he shot and killed him also. During this time Hamby's partner was throwing out bags of money, said the officials, and he was catching them one by one in his left hand, keeping his right hand tightly closed on the menacing pistol.

District Attorney Lewis decided it would help in the case against the bandit if he rehearsed the scene of the robbery, so he and Assistant District Attorney Albert E. Conway and McCullough drove to the bank and entered at the rear door just as the two robbers did. There they were met by William D. Morehouse, Treasurer of the bank and Albert C. Freeman, an employe who identified Hamby in Tacoma when the latter was under arrest there.

The bank officials then went through the whole scene of the crime. Freeman took the position inside the cage where Peale was sitting and Assistant District Attorney Conway took the part of Hamby. Another employe impersonated the short bandit and described how he went to the rear of the building and tried to pedsuade Miss Genevieve Brady, the Liberty bond clerk, to open the gate. That failing, he showed how he jumped through the hole in the grill, grabbed the money sacks, and threw them to his confederate.

It was also shown how, with his pistol, Hamby had been able to menace the movements of every person in the room. Recent rebuilding of the interior of the bank has rendered this feat impossible to execute in detail a second time, for in place of the grill there are now frosted glass windows. Up-to-date burglar alarms, with foot buttons in reach of every clerk, have replaced the old system, in attempting to ring which Peale lost his life.

Hamby spent a quiet day in jail yesterday, most of his time reading a book on psychology that was loaned to him. He stated early in the day that he expected important visitors, but no one came to see him. The other prisoners are beginning to take a dislike to him because of his scarcely concealed contempt for them and his less scarcely concealed approval of himself. He speaks to hardly a man in the jail now save his lawyer, Francis X. McCaffrey.

LONDON, June 17.—Lord Reading paid a high compliment to Lord Bryce at the Overseas Club luncheon today.

Lord Bryce referred to the success of Lord Reading as a diplomat despite the fact that he had no previous experience in diplomatic work. Lord Reading replied that he had trained himself by a careful study of Lord Bryce's works on the Government of the United States.

LIVERPOOL DOCKS ABLAZE.

LONDON, June 17.—A big fire broke out on the Alexandria docks in Liverpool last night. Warehouses stored with timber, cotton, oil, 400 barrels of turpentine, and other inflammables blazed fiercely for hours, and are still burning. Several vessels were safely removed from the danger zone, but a blazing roof from one warehouse fell on the American steamship Norlinda, which was badly damaged. The crew of the ship escaped. Newspaper dispatches estimate the damage at £1,000,000.

To Extend Synagogue Campaign.

The $300,000 building fund campaign for the Institutional Synagogue has been extended indefinitely until the entire sum has been raised, it was announced yesterday. In its effort to raise its quota of $3,000, the Maccabe Club will hold a bucket parade through the streets of Harlem tonight. Workers invaded the Bronx Exposition again last evening for funds, and several hundred dollars were collected.

THIEVES MAKE BIG HAUL.

PATERSON, N. J., June 17.—Silk thieves succeeded last night in stealing $100,000 worth of silk, kidnapping two men on a big van, and later locking them in the wagon. No trace of the thieves or of the stolen silk has been obtained.

Louis Deacon of 200 Pearl Street, driver of the van, and his helper, John Werger, of 43 Smith Street, reached this city late last night and told of the daring robbery, which occurred near Morristown.

On the truck were two and a half tons of silk, being transferred from Wilkes-Barre, Penn., to this city. The thieves, driving a high powered limousine, held up the van in a lonely part of the road, compelled the two men on it to get into the machine, which took them for a ride about the country while others of the gang were looting the truck. The men were then returned to the van, securely locked in, and the thieves made their getaway.

An hour or more later the cries of the imprisoned men were heard by an autoist, who summoned aid and released them. They were brought to this city and reported the robbery, but were able to give little or no description of the thieves.

OLDEST TWINS ARE 89.

Both Glad They Lived Long Enough to See Prohibition.

Special to The New York Times.

SEA CLIFF, L. I., June 17.—Mrs. Maria Hawxhurst Banks and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Hawxhurst, who are twins, yesterday celebrated their eighty-ninth birthday anniversary here. They are said to be the oldest twins in the United States. Both are in good health. Miss Hawxhurst, who lives in Brooklyn during the Winter, is an active member of many women's clubs and societies there.

The sisters were born at Searingtown, near here, and with the exception of a few months in Virginia they have spent their lives in this part of Long Island. Both are ardent prohibitionists, and expressed pleasure yesterday at living to see the day when the entire country was destined to be dry. They lived for years on the William Cullen Bryant estate at Roslyn.

Plea for Delicacies for Wounded.

Mrs. Edward McVickar, New York City Chairman of the National League for Woman's Service, is appealing for donations of chocolate, fruit, cakes, and other delicacies for wounded soldiers who are taken daily to the theatres and for outings by the Hospital Entertainment Committee of the league. Miss Emma Frohman, who is Chairman of the committee, has personally conducted nearly 5,000 men in theatre parties since last August, when the first wounded men were brought to America. The men are carried in the ambulances of the league and these, too, are used for the outings. The candy, fruit, and cake are distributed in the wards and also at the theatres between acts. Gifts of candy and cake may be sent to the headquarters of the league at 257 Madison Avenue.

Arrested for Littauer Theft.

Charged with being implicated in the robbery of $15,000 worth of jewelry from the home of Lucius N. Littauer, at New Rochelle, on June 7, a man who gave his name as Robert Michael Glanz, 35 years old, of 515 East Seventy-eighth Street, was arrested yesterday, by Detectives Shevlin and Minter, assisted by Lieutenant Cody of the New Rochelle police. In the arrest of Glanz the police say they have succeeded in rounding up those implicated in the Littauer robbery, four others having already been arrested. The authorities stated they had succeeded in recovering $9,000 worth of the missing jewels.

Roll Call

of White Truck Fleets In Actual Service

YEAR after year this list grows. It is something more than a list of well-known concerns owning ten or more White Trucks. It represents a yearly progress in added trucks per owner—the most extensive growth of individual fleets ever published by a truck maker.

The buyer of one or many trucks can have no better guide than the experience of those whose trucking volume affords a comparative knowledge of results.

There are now 2,774 fleets in active service, totaling 33,139 White Trucks, exclusive of all single truck installations.

The last column includes only the first three months of 1919

Have you selected the right boss?

Nobody wants to work for a dub. There is no future in it. In a short time down goes the dub—and you with him, if you are tied to him. "Watch your boss" says Charles H. Sabin. Read this great banker's advice.

Can you do as much as a man without hands and feet?

Michael Dowling has neither arms nor legs. Both were frozen off in a blizzard when he was fifteen years old.

He had neither relatives, friends nor money.

But he educated himself, earned a living, made money, married, brought up a family—did everything a normal man does, a little better than the average normal man does it.

If you think you are working under a handicap, read Dowling's own true story—and brace up.

Wanted—women for $30,000 jobs

"Women are wanted at once for $6,000 to $30,000 jobs," says the woman buyer of a great department store. She tells why some women make good and others do not. She has found the one big dominant trouble with women in business.

Mother's excitement over father's old sweetheart

Here's a delightful story of old love—every bit as fascinating as any young love story you ever read. It shows that real lovers never do outgrow their lover's foolishness—it just lies dormant.

Someone must live in New York —but not Ding

"Ding," the cartoonist, doesn't want to live in New York. He says it's too lonesome there, where you can't say "How's every little thing" to people unless you know them, and you never see anybody you know. When you read what he writes you will know why his cartoons are so funny.

THE CALL OF THE ARMY.

The recruiting Sergeant at one of the central stations in this city who told a strapping youngster that if he wanted to be a General nothing could be done for him "on just one enlistment," and that he would have to go to West Point or Plattsburg, spoke only a half truth. "Just one enlistment" has been the open portal through which many a young American has passed to become a General in the United States Army, and it is not always necessary to spend three or four years at West Point to get a commission. There is living in Washington a distinguished soldier, Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. YOUNG, who enlisted in a Pennsylvania regiment a few days after Sumter was fired on and was serving as Chief of Staff when he retired from the army in 1904. That fine soldier, ADNA R. CHAFFEE, began his career in the ranks, and it was almost two years before he got his commission; he, too, became a Lieutenant General and Chief of Staff. Major Gen. ROBERT ALEXANDER, who commanded the 77th Division in its irresistible advance through the Argonne Forest, was once an enlisted man; in fact, he had to wait four years for a commission, and when he received it there wasn't a better First Sergeant in the Regular Army. General ALEXANDER decided to make his career with the colors from the day he enlisted; he turned his back upon other opportunities, preferring the military life. The list of American Generals who have risen from the ranks is impressive.

In the War Department's campaign to enlist 50,000 men for service in France and on the Rhine not enough stress is laid upon the chance the youngster who volunteers has to attain high rank. He may become a General if he gets a commission early, and he should be told that his prospects of making a brilliant career in the army depend upon character and ambition, the will to prove his soldierly qualities and to attract the notice of superiors. Of the 50,000 men who will enlist to wear the uniform in France, or on German soil held by the American Army of Occupation, many will win commissions if they remain in the service, and some may command troops as Generals. The failure of the campaign is unthinkable, because, aside from the prospect of a career in the army for the natural soldier, the service at this time has a list of attractions that it must be hard for the average young man to resist. If he has his way to make in the world, or if the spirit of adventure stirs him.

In the army before the European war the pay was $15 a month, and post life with its chores—there is no other word for the unsoldierly drudgery expected of the private—was far from alluring. Often it was the man out of a job and down on his luck who sought the recruiting officer. The service was a hard taskmaster in those days, and the billboards illustrating in high colors the vicissitudes of military life in the Philippines had but a slight hold upon the imagination. There was scant hope of active service to make the pulse beat faster. It seemed a dull, drab business, little else but discipline and courts-martial for transgressors, with pay so meagre that the normal man could only spend it for small things.

The social standing of the soldier was down near zero. He was not wanted at places of amusement. The uniform was not respected. But the European war has brought a great change. The private's pay is now $30 a month, and a man need not be stingy to save half of it, $500 in a three-year term of enlistment. Noncommissioned officers, indispensable for their skill as artisans and clerks, receive as much as $120 a month. Chores no longer stiffen the soldier's back and make him discontented. The life is more military than it was, but while drill, guard mounting, and practice marches have their place in it, there are schools for the instruction of the soldier in many of the trades now inseparable from army duty. The enlisted man can learn to be an electrician, an engineer, a telegraph or cable operator, and he can acquire technical knowledge in many branches of industry. At the end of three years he can return to civil life as a skilled workman with a capital of $500, if he does not elect to make his career in the army.

How many youngsters outside the army can save as large a sum of money as $500 in three years? Everything is found for the soldier, quarters, food, clothes. The life is healthy, the discipline habit-forming. The army is a great trainer of manhood. A deserving soldier can win a commission. West Point opens its doors to him. The enlisted man may have his own choice of a branch of the service. He can go overseas to France and the Rhine, or to the Philippines, "for to admire," as KIPLING says. It is worth while to enter the university of the army, three unforgettable years profitably spent.

HARLEM IMPROVEMENT.

There is a distinct and justifiable improvement, complimentary to New York patriotism, in the fact that, by the good offices of certain New York citizens, the site of Fort Washington, a historical place of the Revolution, has been preserved. Meanwhile, the future development of the Harlem, if solidly it is to exist, attracts naturally the attention of engineers and surveyors, the Superintendent of Public Works, and all the persons and associations interested in the improvement of the waterways of New York.

If it should prove to be necessary in the amelioration of the Harlem to tear down High Bridge, so long a beautiful pontification of old New York, coming down to us from the good old Croton days, it might be useless to protest. The remakers of Harlem are to reach their beneficent activities almost to Spuyten Duyvil. They are to remove Johnston's Island. They are to make the Harlem River a commercial thoroughfare. With the ingenuous or commercial ambition of people who have the happiness to possess piers along the Harlem every good old New Yorker will sympathize; but, as a matter of fact, the interests of New York, as a whole, are multitudinously served by the bridges over the Harlem. A million people pass over the railroad bridges of the Harlem, while a few minor craft pass under the bridges. There will be loud protests if the commercial use of the stream is going to make frequent interruptions of passenger traffic by the opening of drawbridges.

GERMANY ANSWERED.

There is the right ring in the answer of the Allies to the German demands and counterproposals. They have modified some of the terms, in consequence of that earnest consideration which Mr. CLEMENCEAU says has been given to the German document; and they have extended the time for answer two days in consequence of Count VON BROCKDORFF-RANTZAU'S assertion that five days would not be enough. But, having done these things, they have told Germany that sign she must, and sign within the seven days so allotted to her. They have told her that there will be no more room for tergiversation, and that the armistice will automatically terminate if those seven days go by without signature.

The game of hide-and-seek is thus at an end. No longer can Germany keep on playing out the string in the hope that something will turn up to save her, or that befogging the issues will bewilder the Allies on some point which will enable her to snatch a partial victory out of defeat. The war is not ended, and if she is not satisfied to sign FOCH will resume the operations that were suspended on Nov. 11.

It is true that the modifications in the peace terms are not very great, but there is no reason why they should be. They were not drawn up without thought, there was nothing harebrained or careless about them. There were certain points in which Germany convinced the Allies that it would be unduly harsh to enforce the original terms, and where this has been proved the terms have been modified. But they have gone at the work of modification with cool heads and steady hands, not permitting themselves to be fooled or deceived; they have come, in four years, to know Germany too well for that.

The reason why the Allies have permitted Germany to maintain temporarily an army of 200,000 is apparent enough, and there is no altruism about it. It is not well for the rest of the world that anarchy should reign in Germany, and she has undoubtedly convinced them that her safety from that sort of débâcle must rest on an army large enough to prevent it, but not large enough to threaten other nations. It is fair enough, too, to set a time limit on the presentation of the names of German criminals for trial; it would hardly be fair to leave that menace hanging in the air indefinitely. The proposal to co-operate with the Germans on the question of reparations is merely good business. The Poles will not be satisfied with the proposal of a plebiscite for Upper Silesia, but it is in accordance with the principle of self-determination; and the Danes probably will not object to the modification made in the plan for the Schleswig plebiscite.

The most significant thing in the whole document, aside from the warning that the armistice is to terminate in seven days, is the answer to Germany's demand that she be admitted at once to the League of Nations. The answer, in paraphrase, is, "You can come in when you are fit." There is no unfairness in this. "The early entry of Germany into "the League must depend principally "upon the action of the German "people themselves." If at first there was a disposition to believe that the nation which had conducted so inhuman and perfidious a war had changed its character overnight, it faded away when the German delegates to the Peace Conference showed their faces and began to talk. The old truculence, the old craft and cunning, the old underground methods, showed that it takes more than an Amerogpen to change a nation's character. Yet, as the Allied and Associated Powers say in the same breath, they earnestly desire the moment when Germany shall show her fitness to sit with them on even terms, and hope that the moment may not be long delayed. The note of the Allies leaves no doubt that they still regard Germany as a criminal at the bar, not as an applicant for a partnership showing a clean record and special qualifications for the place.

NEUTRALS AND THE BLOCKADE.

Those gentlemen who are so sure that America can now get out of European affairs and stay out forever might revise their opinions after reflecting on the recent exchanges between the Peace Conference and the neutral States bordering on Germany. Some three or four weeks ago the Allies made to the Governments of the Netherlands, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark a proposal which, according to the very meagre reports received in America, amounted to asking those States to prohibit all exports to Germany in case the Germans refused to sign the peace terms and the Allies had recourse to a renewed and strengthened blockade. In one way or another all have refused, giving as the reason that this would be a violation of neutrality; only the Norwegians, among whom sympathy for the Allies has been most widely felt during the entire war, modified their refusal by transmitting suggestions "having as their object the making of such a step unnecessary."

We do not know the language of the original proposal; perhaps it was somewhat tactlessly phrased, so as to make its acceptance appear as a definite alignment on the side of one of the contending alliances; perhaps a little more delicacy in explanation might have made compliance easier. But it is hardly likely, for substantially the proposal would have involved a violation of neutrality, however disguised in legal fictions. At the request of one combatant these neutral States were to cut off all commercial relations with the other combatant. This is not very different from taking sides in the war.

Governments careful of legality perhaps not unnaturally refused to take sides. But what is the consequence? Germany, if she refuses to sign the treaty, will be blockaded none the less; if there is any danger that goods shipped from the allied countries into the Netherlands, Switzerland, or Scandinavia may ultimately make their way into Germany—as American products did in such quantities in 1915 and 1916—it merely means that the neutrals will be blockaded, too. The judgment passed upon Germany by the greater portion of the world which her aggression forced into arms against her will be executed, regardless of the scruples of States which were too much divided in opinion, or too near the German armies, to join the alliance. Of course, it will not come to a blockade of the neutrals in form, but exports to them from allied nations and their dependencies are likely to be prohibited, and the shipping controlled by the Allies cannot be used for transmission of goods which might find their way to Germany.

In other words, the neutrals, having refused to take one side, must be treated as if they had explicitly taken the other side. If we do not so treat them, it will mean the possible prolongation of German resistance to the execution of a just sentence, the prolongation of war when the world needs peace—or else a weakening before Germany's impossible demands. It is a hard world for neutrals; Mr. WILSON long ago said that in the next war there could be no neutrals, but he looked too far ahead; even in this war there can be no neutrals. They must be on one side or the other. Statesmen who think that the United States can keep out of the next world convulsion by sticking its collective head in the sand might consider our own history in the last four years, and the recent demonstration of the troubles of nations raising the point of strict legality at a time when every one is either for the enemy or against him.

UNDESIRED GERMANS.

The right of self-determination is causing a certain amount of alarm in Switzerland and Denmark, and we may soon discover if it works both ways—if a State to which an alien minority wants to be annexed can keep the strangers out. Denmark at first expected no trouble. The Danish population dominates North Schleswig; it thins out further south, till the southern parts of Schleswig and all of Holstein are German. The peace treaty as originally drafted provided for a plebiscite in which North Schleswig, the part undeniably Danish, should vote as a unit, while further south the vote was to be taken by communes, and the ultimate boundary was to be arranged so as to coincide with the frontier of nationality so far as possible.

All this was satisfactory enough at first, for it was supposed that all the Danes would vote to join Denmark and the Germans to stay with Germany. Denmark wants as many of the Danes as possible, but as few Germans as possible, reasoning quite accurately that it would be inconvenient to assimilate very many Germans into a total population of some three millions, and that any German minority in Denmark might conceivably at some future time be made the excuse for a German attack. But with the announcement of the terms of the German indemnity there was a change of sentiment in Schleswig-Holstein. In all the districts where a plebiscite was to be taken Germans were eager for the chance to escape the taxes which must burden Germany till reparation has been made, and to escape into Denmark with no more than their small proportion of the pre-war debt; so there seemed some likelihood of several hundred thousand Germans voting enthusiastically for union with Denmark. Denmark did not want them, but what was she to do? The suggestion made at the time, that her only recourse was to declare war on the League of Nations, seems somewhat pessimistic; but it appeared that the Danes might have to assert that the admission of new territory is to be classed as an immigration question, falling under the exclusive jurisdiction of Denmark. In revision of the terms, however, the Conference paid heed to Danish fears, and while North Schleswig, the region indisputably Danish, is to vote at once, the rest of the disputed territory is to take a plebiscite after fifteen years, when fear of heavy taxation is not so likely to be an argument.

The Swiss problem is less serious, but gives the Swiss some concern. The Vorarlberg, westernmost of Austrian crownlands, lying on Lake Constance between Bavaria, Tyrol, and Switzerland—its capital, Bregenz, immortalized by that favorite of the schoolroom elocutionist which begins with "Girt "round with rugged mountains the "fair Lake Constance lies"—lately voted by an overwhelming majority to enter the Swiss confederation. But the Swiss also are going to vote on it. Already the German-speaking population is sufficiently preponderant in Switzerland to cause some anxiety; the vast majority of German-Swiss are loyal Swiss, but through the minority Germany was able to conduct a widespread propaganda and to build up an organization for the furthering of her foreign trade; many Swiss feel that to add even a hundred thousand more Germans to the republic just now would be inconvenient. And if the Vorarlberg is admitted it is far from impossible that Tyrol will try to come in, too. The principles of nationality and self-determination were never more highly esteemed than today, but it will be hard to strike a moral balance between a Vorarlberg which self-determines to join Switzerland and a Switzerland which self-determines to keep it out.

ORGANIZING THE STEEL INDUSTRY

The twenty-four Presidents of unions who say they are ready to go to jail for the sake of organizing the workers in the iron, steel, and tin industries suggest one of two alternatives. Either they contemplate breaking the law or they think that the law will be perverted against them. The public interest requires that neither of those things shall happen. All that the law allows in the way of organizing for the sake of collective bargaining is labor's right, and neither can nor should be withheld. The public is sympathetic with labor as never before, provided that labor keeps within the law. But also American sentiment requires that the law should settle differences of opinion between parties to labor contracts, in default of agreement between them. Labor is free to disagree with capital, but when labor sets itself against the law, or above the law, public sentiment will shift its position from support of labor's rights to support of the law. Experience has taught that war is the only substitute for law, and war is abhorrent. The twenty-four Presidents, it is to be hoped, will see that it is their duty to serve their unions out of jail, and that they can do their constituents no greater disservice than to qualify for sentences under the law fairly administered. They can be sure that the fair administration of the law is as much their right as any one's, and that the universal right is above the right of any class or individual, a boon of priceless worth to all.

The right to organize for collective bargaining is not the result of the edict of unions or of extortion from the law. It is the result of experience in discovering what the interest of the public requires in the adjustment of the relations between capital and labor, what it requires of both for the common good. That capital has been chastened and corrected is beyond doubt. That the conditions of labor have been improved is equally sure, and the question of further betterment is open for decision on the merits. But labor will suffer if it allows itself to think that it is the master of the law and the dictator of the rights of citizenship. Collective bargaining is not an alias for domination. A bargain requires two parties, with freedom of decision for both.

It is as unlawful for employers to resist collective bargaining unlawfully as for unions to impose it unlawfully. Also it is lawful for employers to select the unions with which they shall deal in the event that the workers cannot agree with themselves in the organization of a single union. The right of unions to bargain collectively is not the monopoly of any one union, and it is as much the duty as the right of the workers to make collective bargaining possible by stopping the jurisdictional disputes which are the enemy of many industries. Too large a proportion of disputes between labor and capital are the result of disputes between rival unions as to which of them has the right to the jobs. What is capital to do when two unions make claims which are inconsistent, and between which capital is indifferent, desiring only that work may proceed on an agreement to which capital is ready to make itself a party?

"Hand-picked" unions are the nub of the controversy in the wire services, the iron and steel industry, the street car troubles and others. It is clearer that workers seek to impose their choice of unions upon fellow-workmen and upon employers than that employers impose membership in any union upon their workers. The unions seeking domination argue that they cannot succeed if they do not bring pressure upon both fellow-workers and upon employers. But the right to compel membership in unions on the plea of loyalty to class interest is an infringement upon the universal right of citizenship. That will be clear even to unions seeking domination if they will consider the case of employers imposing membership in their "hand-picked" union as a condition of employment. No such case is known, freedom of membership or non-membership being the position of employers. Thus in the iron trade Mr. GARY'S reply to the overture of the Amalgamated Association was: "We stand for the open "shop which permits a man to en"gage in the different lines of em"ployment whether he belongs to a "labor union or not."

That is freedom, not domination. It is recognition of law and citizenship, one rule for all. Who is the better citizen, who is the better democrat, the man who will work beside any of his fellows, or the man who refuses to work beside the man whose right to earn his living is the same as every other man's? The Federation has just recognized the right of negroes to work, and honored itself thereby. But the right of negroes to work is no better than before the Federation admitted them, and the right of non-Federationists is as clear as that of the non-union negroes was before their admission to the Federation. To the unions seeking domination through class supremacy this may seem an argument against their interest. It is merely an argument that labor shall conform to the rule of reason, as capital has been forced to, and found its interest in so doing. Capital no longer seeks to weaken unions. Rather capital wants unions to be so strong, within their rights, that it shall be worth while to make contracts with them. The Federation has been so conspicuous in keeping unionism within the rule of reason and disciplining unruly unions, that there is reason for hope that it will keep its twenty-four Presidents out of jail and within the law.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Taking Up Life Courageously.

Two competent American observers, one of whom has recently visited many parts of Belgium, while the other has traversed the devastated parts of France, both made highly encouraging reports yesterday in THE TIMES as to the energy and efficiency with which the people of those countries have undertaken the heavy task of restoring in them the normal activities of life. Neither observer made any attempt to minimize the havoc wrought by the Germans, or to deny that both France and Belgium are still in need of help from the outside, but they gave reason for more than hope that at a period not far distant the wounds of war will be healed, and that in time even its scars will begin to fade and ultimately will disappear.

Especially in Belgium, according to Captain MERWIN HART, who was a New York lawyer before he became a soldier, is the work of restoration already advanced to a surprising degree, and except in a few places like Ypres, Louvain, and Termonde, where the Germans carried their terrorising policy to the extreme of complete destruction, not many traces of the war are to be seen. Evidently he found among the Belgians no trace of an inclination to be idle objects of charity. Instead they are hard at work to the extent of their present ability, and by helping themselves are establishing the best of claims for the assistance they must have and have so well earned.

In France, conditions as described by F. G. CROWELL of the Food Administration Grain Corporation are not as good as in Belgium, but only because in France the fighting was more severe and the destruction continued in its most ruthless form up to the very moment of the signing of the armistice. But even there the people are fast recovering from the lassitude and despair to which four years of German occupation in its worst form had reduced them, and now they are doing what they can, which is not a little, to rebuild their towns and villages and to restore to cultivation their shell-torn fields.

A Lesson for Germans to Ponder.

There is nothing in the reports of these Americans to compel a revision of previous estimates of the damage done in France and Belgium by the German invaders. What they do warrant is a revival of confidence that the material injuries inflicted by the war can be repaired, and they illustrate anew the wonderful recuperative powers possessed by industrious and intelligent people.

These reports also teach how empty are the German claims that the terms imposed by their conquerors are such as to make life somewhere between intolerable and impossible for human beings. Severe the terms unquestionably are, but the Germans are far better prepared to meet them than were the French and the Belgians to restore their activities of before the war. No German towns are in ruins, no German factories have been despoiled of their machinery, no German mines have been made inoperative for years, and crops can be planted immediately in all the fields of Germany. If they will, they can pay the part—the small part—of their debts for which a bill has been presented, and their howls of pain and rage are due only to the fact that they are expected to pay anything at all, and don't like it.

Moving to Save the Park.

Public gratitude and commendation are deserved by WILLIAM H. WILLIAMS, who, as a citizen and taxpayer of New York City and as an intelligent defender of its rights and interests, has begun legal proceedings to prevent, if he can, the utilizing of the permission most unwisely granted by Commissioner GALLATIN to the Safety Institute of America to establish itself and its exhibits in Central Park. An order to show cause why this permission should not be revoked has been granted by Justice TIERNEY and it is returnable today.

There is still hope, therefore, that this latest of innumerable efforts to invade the city's most precious pleasure ground and beauty spot will be foiled, and it should also be rebuked as it deserves.

As usual, the justification offered for the proposed misuse of the park is that the privilege is asked for a worthy enterprise. And, as usual, the enterprise in itself really is worthy. Against the American Institute of Safety as an exhibitor of devices to reduce industrial dangers not a word can be said. Its purposes are good, and, wherever it may be housed, its effects will be good, but all its purposes—including that of selling the devices it exhibits—can be attained as well, and all its objects—including that of making profit for some very estimable inventors—can be achieved as well, though not as cheaply, if the institute buys or hires a building not in any park.

Aviators Scare His Hens.

What a fine specimen of conservatism—and insularity—must be the Newfoundlander who has written to one of the St. John's papers a letter of vehement protest against any further use of the island as a starting point for aerial trips across the Atlantic. He writes, of course, over the signature of "Pro Bono Publico," and he recalls ancient griefs suffered by him as well as some new ones. For the bicycle first came to disturb him with its threat to run over him as he walked the roads. Then the motor car appeared and covered him with dust.

But worse was to follow—and has. The airplanes scare his hens by the roar of their engines and the humming of their propellers, and the intolerable result is that they are not laying anything like as many eggs as they did before the invasion of Newfoundland by aviators began. He has had enough of these outrages, and he wants the latest of them stopped at once.

There is an excuse, perhaps, for suspecting that the letter signed "Pro Bono Publico" was written, not by a Newfoundlander, but as a joke by one of the foreign reporters gathered there. That is possible, of course, but it is not likely, while there is much more than a possibility that the letter is an authentic expression of one element of local sentiment. The violent indignation among sometime Newfoundlanders recently excited by a hint in this column that their island is not in the banana belt prevents the giving here of reasons for believing as well as hoping that this defense of the island's hens is sincere, but they can be guessed easily enough by anybody with the courage to do it.

South Slavs and Italians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to Dion. Markanovich-Klajin of the 14th inst. allow me to answer very briefly, which will be my final answer.

I am informed by mail from my native city, Trieste, that the Slovenes living on the outskirts of Trieste are very glad of the change from the Austrian to Italian rule.

Did the Croatian soldiers fight this war to win or lose?

Undoubtedly, if they had won the war for Austria, Serbia and Montenegro would be under the Austro-Hungarian yoke today.

How can Serbia and Montenegro be friendly to those who fought the war against them? Poor Italians, if they should be ruled by the Jugoslavs.

I agree with the writer that President Wilson knows history, but he was misinformed about the sentiments of those Slavs who today are camouflaging themselves as a civilized nation.

No doubt Paris will do justice to Italy, which deserves the most credit for the victories she won and the sufferings she went through to free her Italian sons from the barbarous dominion of Austria-Hungary.

GUSTAVO TOLENTINO.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Pavlovich in your today's paper indulges in some considerations regarding Italy which bear the well known Jugoslavic brand of slander and of base insinuation against my country.

I am not going to give them the honor of an answer, as it is hardly necessary to say that to do so would be tantamount to giving them the importance they don't enjoy; and, furthermore, I would feel unjust toward the readers of THE TIMES were I to believe that they could have forgotten the recent history of the world war and the part Italy played in it.

It is therefore for the benefit of Mr. Pavlovich alone that I wish to remind him that, while Italy does not boast of having saved the world, as Mr. Pavlovich tries to insinuate, she certainly saved Mr. Pavlovich's brethren of the Serbian army from utter destruction during the Albanian retreat by harboring, feeding, and clothing them; and, if Mr. Pavlovich had had the honor of being of their number, the remembrance of our bread he would have eaten, of the warmth of our clothing he would have worn, would allow him to express himself with more respect for history and for truth than he now does.

MUSTARD GAS.

Deadly War Compound More Than Thirty-Years Old.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This morning's issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES contains, in an account of a brief to be submitted to Congress by the Chemical Foundation, the following paragraph:

"He it was [Dr. Hugo Schweitzer] who employed, financed, and guided Dr. Scheele, who in 1913, in Bogota, N. J., discovered mustard gas, and he transmitted its formula to Germany, through von Papen, as soon as the war broke out."

Since a statement of this kind, in an important document to be reviewed by Congress, is likely to be widely circulated, it seems desirable that attention should be called to its inaccuracy. The war gas commonly spoken of as mustard gas (known to chemists as dichlor-diethyl-sulphide) was discovered in Heidelberg, Germany, in 1886 by the German chemist, Victor Meyer, whose research was published in full in the Berichte der Deutschen Chemischen Gesellschaft, a widely read journal which is on the shelves of every chemical library. The articles then published include a statement of a method for its preparation, a statement of its composition, (that is, its formula,) and a remarkably complete investigation of its terrible physiological effects. Whatever Dr. Scheele may have accomplished for the German Government, it is quite certain that he did not discover mustard gas nor transmit its formula (as a discovery) in 1913.

It is difficult to understand how Mr. Garvan and Mr. Choate can have been permitted by their chemical advisers to make this error in statement. The history of mustard gas is known to all chemists who have had contact with problems of gas warfare; indeed, one might say that it is common knowledge with all well-informed American chemists, since the chemical journals of the country have given full accounts of this material upon a number of occasions during the last two years.

PROFITS OF THE LEAGUE.

By reason of the very nature of the pending covenant, the vast expenditure and wastage of thousands of millions of dollars annually of the peoples' money spent for military and naval purposes throughout the world may be saved by the ratification and operation of the League of Nations under its provisions for general and gradual disarmament as rapidly as circumstances permit. This means a great reduction in taxes and cost of living to all the peoples and will enable the nations to devote millions of dollars annually to the beneficent purposes of life, for better and greater educational facilities, for promoting means of combating and preventing disease, for improving the health of the people, for hospitals and sanitary improvements, for welfare organizations and social settlements, for improved housing conditions, for recreation facilities and amusements of the masses, for improving all labor conditions. In fact, everything that goes to enhance the joy of living can be fostered with the funds saved from rendering army expenditures unnecessary through the provisions of the League of Nations.

We must also consider the millions of lives sacrificed and the sufferings of the wounded so needlessly caused when the motives of war may be averted and controlled by the League of Nations.

That the League may not be perfect in the beginning may be true, as it was also of the Constitution of the United States, but it establishes a new era of development of better understandings between nations and fosters a new spirit of universal brotherhood and love of mankind, which it would be a crime to deny the people by failure to ratify the pending League of Nations.

A great body of the Republican constituency deplore the present action of the Republican Senators who are taking the repulsive course of making it a party issue, prejudiced by political partisan motives.

Great Story of a Great Adventure.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Not one novel in five hundred contains as interesting and as well-written material as the account of the get-away of Alcock and Brown as given in your Sunday issue.

The high adventure features of the undertaking may have furnished the writer with a degree of inspiration that acted like magic upon his pen. However that may be, the fact remains that a "story" like that serves the double purpose of giving the reader great pleasure and of strengthening his belief in the resources of the English language.

Portugal Has a Frontier Claim.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am going to express the hope, in the name of Portugal, that the American delegation to the Peace Conference will back the Portuguese cause of adjusting our frontiers with Spain by securing the return of our dear Olivenca, an ancient Portuguese city fifteen miles southwest of Badajoz, in the Province of the same name. It still bears the Portuguese arms and inscriptions on its gates. The powers themselves promised in 1815 to restore it to Portugal, as they recognized our rights over it.

THE FLIGHT.

My thoughts go back to Etricourt,
The City of the Dead.
I hear old "Jerry" droning
In the moonlight overhead.
I see the streams of radiance
Sweep vainly thro' the night,
And tracer bullets streaking
Like stars in fiery flight.

The bombs come hissing downward
Like serpents in the gloom.
"O Mother Night, what horrors then
Were lurking in thy womb.
I see the upturned faces—
The bravest of the brave.
I hear the broken whisper,
"That was a damn close shave."

And now I see an Art of War,
The bombing aeroplane,
Fulfill a nobler mission
In a trip across the main;
And Hope comes surging back once more,
The noble sacrifice—
The cost—the bitter pain of war—
Was not too great a price.

'Tis out of Evil Goodness springs,
Like lilies from the mire;
Folly always Reason brings
And Faith is forged in Fire.
Dear hearts across the tragic sea,
Whose sons have made the flight,
Our hands are clasped in love once more—
The men who stand for Right.

LET IN THE SERVANTS.

Immigration Laws Should Not Exclude Needed Help.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the proposed legislation covering future immigration into this country one very serious problem seems to be overlooked. I refer particularly to the domestic servant question. Apparently no provision is to be made for remedying a condition which we all know is becoming more and more serious. There is at present a crying need for domestic help of all kinds; even the rich who can afford to pay a cook $100, a waitress $55, and a nurse for one child $70 must needs spend day after day scouring the intelligence offices in weary search. For the people of lesser means and for unfortunate commuters there is apparently no way out. By enacting legislation restricting immigration Congress will be interfering with the universal law of supply and demand.

There is a great demand in this country, but we are unfortunately dependent upon lands across the sea for the supply. As we all know, the reason for this is that the second generation of those who emigrate to this country will not hire themselves out as servants. They have become imbued with the American spirit of personal liberty and prefer to work in factories for a smaller wage and less comforts, but when their leisure time is their own. For the past four years we have had practically no immigrants, which in some degree explains the present shortage.

I would suggest that in view of the present situation there be started a country-wide movement to instruct our representatives in Congress concerning our needs along this line. There must surely be some way of letting down the bars so as to admit this invaluable class of people to our shores. There must be a superabundance of women in all foreign countries who would be only too willing to come over to escape conditions such as exist abroad today.

I think that if all to whom this matter is of vital importance, (and I know their names are legion,) should instruct their Representatives by personal letters some proper legislation might be enacted.

"NEVER AGAIN."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is one sentiment that has been voiced by all, be he statesman, civilian, or doughboy, which is expressed in two words: "Never Again." All are agreed that, so far as human foresight can provide, such a disaster as the recent war must not be permitted to recur. Those who remember the activities of Viscount Grey during the critical month of July, 1914, to prevent war cannot but look upon his recent remarks as having special significance, for he speaks with the authority of an expert in diplomacy. An extract from his speech reads:

"Refuse to listen to those who regard the League as an impractical ideal. It is a choice between life and death to the world. Any future war will be vastly more terrible than the last owing to inventions and the progress of science. Hence there is need that we work for an ideal, namely, world peace."

It was not the diplomat who failed, but the entire system of diplomacy. He suggested plan after plan only to see them one and all rejected because their acceptance or rejection depended on the will of Germany. The great world outside the circumscribed limits of the Central Powers had no organized machinery to bring to bear against her. This is what the League of Nations furnishes. This surely is not a case where we can leave well enough alone, but just the reverse, for it was relying on this "well enough" arrangement that caused civilization to tremble in the balance for four years. Hence the burden of proof rests on those who oppose the League, not on its supporters.

No one can foresee how the League will work, but our hindsight makes clear to us its necessity. Undoubtedly each nation must forego some fringes of its accustomed prerogatives for the common interest, or rather for its own preservation, which, after all, is its most vital interest.

JETSON.
Washington, D. C., June 14, 1919.

Daylight Saving Down East.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We here at the East are a conservative people and resent any liberties taken with old Father Time. Why those who wish to use one hour earlier in the morning cannot do so without disturbing the rest of the world is a mystery. All will acknowledge. I am sure, that the farmers are the people who should be considered first, for they are the backbone of our country. Very early in the morning the dew on the fields and lawns in Summer is too heavy to permit of any work with scythe or sickle, and often it is quite impossible to plan for a pleasant or unpleasant day at that hour. No wonder that one farmer said to me, "Congress and the State Legislatures could employ their time to better advantage than by using it to discuss the question of putting the clocks ahead."

Where we once took our evening meal at twilight, we are now obliged to have it with the afternoon sun streaming in across the table, and then follows the long lonesome "evening," so called.

Many will remember the standard and local fight, when the time had to be changed to standard to accommodate the railroads and the traveling public. Some of those people who objected have never changed their clocks. Imagine the examples in arithmetic which have to be calculated in order to meet their engagements with other people. Call it unprogressive if you will, but there is no reason why the prejudices of a conservative people should not be respected and poor old Father Time let alone.

Lithuanians Not Bolshevists.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of June 8 there is mention that the growth of Bolshevism is found among foreign-born residents in this country. In that Lithuania was a part of the old Russian Empire this might lead one to think that the Lithuanians are pro-Bolshevist. The million Americans of Lithuanian descent who live in the United States are a democratic people and have lent their full support and aid to all war work.

Ever since 1905 the aspirations of 6,000,000 Lithuanians in Lithuania were and are for a free and independent Lithuania. The present Lithuanian army and its battles with the Bolshevist forces prove that the Lithuanians are not on the same side of the question, and their coalitional battle against the Poles proves that the Lithuanians are a liberty-loving people and have no imperialistic desires. As a native American and also a descendant of Kosciuszko, the great Lithuanian warrior for freedom and founder of West Point, I can say that the Lithuanians are not with Bolshevism.

60 CLASS REUNIONS AT YALE EXERCISES

DENIES CHANGE IN IDEALS

Corporation Announces Gifts and Votes to Give Degrees to Students Killed in the War.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 17.—More than sixty classes were represented at commencement meeting of the Yale alumni, and the attendance was the greatest in the history of the university. President Hadley made his annual address, and other speakers were Professor Perrin, '69; Irwin New, '80, of Chicago; G. S. Chappell, '90, of New York, and Major Morris Hadley, '16, of New Haven.

"We welcome you to a Yale which is at once new and old; a Yale changing rapidly in externals, but essentially unchanged at heart," said President Hadley. "The new Yale is not going to lose its old Yale spirit. The changes in the course of study do not mean an abandonment of the things for which Yale stood in the past. They mean doing them better and doing them on a larger scale than ever before."

President Hadley spoke of curriculum revisions. Older graduates had complained bitterly about the abandonment of the classics "at the demand of the idle rich." He said that the demand did not come from that quarter. The people who want to study other things than Latin, he said, are largely boys from the public schools of the West.

Changes to Suit Western Boys.

"Shut out the Western boys," he said, "and Yale ceases to be national." The President did not believe cutting off Latin and Greek in entrance examinations will lower intellectual standards, nor the university lose in idealism. He said it was the fault of the old-fashioned college course that it made but slight appeal to the practical man. The new course makes a wider appeal. "If there is one lesson that we learned by the war," said President Hadley, "it is that the work of the specialist means less to a nation in the long run than the intelligence and the ideals of its citizens as a body."

The spectacular side of the day was the parade of several thousand alumni in costume to Yale Field for the ball game between Harvard and Yale.

The Sheffield Scientific School class of 1909 marched in black undertakers' suits, "mourning" for future boozeless Yale commencements, as one placard read. Other banners carried by the class expressed similar regrets. One was, "Abolish Harvard and we won't need prohibition." Another read, "over the top and under the table." Still another, which was carried by the class of 1918, said, "Only thirteen shopping days left." Another declared, "We're for Wilson's fifteenth point, wine and beer." Others read, "Only first our minds will be ——," "Our decennial was the year of the great thirst," and "Did you ever see a jolly crowd around a pump?"

Typifying the spirit of Yale commencements under the prohibition régime, a cow, a goat, and a camel were led in the parade by different classes. The cow was halted in front of the grand stand and milked.

Alumni Elect Officers.

The Alumni Advisory Board elected George Grant Mason, '88, Chairman, vice the Rev. S. C. Bushnell, '74, of Arlington, Mass., whose term expired. Vacancies on the Executive Board were filled by the election of R. C. Ballard Thurston, '80, of Louisville, and C. H. Hamill, '90, of Chicago. It was voted that recommendation be made to the corporation that the rules regarding voting for members of the corporation be so amended as to provide that all steps be taken or all acts be performed prior to sending out of official ballots; that a committee report next year whether or not an effort be made whereby members of the corporation other than the six alumni Fellows may be selected by the alumni at large.

The Alumni Board also recommended the erection of suitable tablets in memory of Yale men who gave their lives in the war, to express the alumni sentiment, rather than to serve any utilitarian purpose.

The corporation meeting later advanced by one month the machinery of electing alumni Fellows as recommended by the Alumni Board, and adopted the recommendation as to war memorials. It provided for a committee to proceed with plans for such memorial tablets.

At its commencement meeting the Yale Corporation voted to give the decrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Philosophy on all members of Yale College and the Sheffield Scientific School who satisfactorily completed at least two years of undergraduate work and who have given thheir lives in the service of their country.

New gifts to the university announced at the same time were:

Securities worth $54,000 from Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Keer of Chicago, in memory of Henry B. Keer, who died in the war, with the suggestion that the fund be used for an infirmary endowment.

Fifty thousand dollars from Henry B. Latham, 1917, for an addition to the athletic club house building fund.

CLASS ODIST STIRS HARVARD AUDIENCE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 17.—Robert Tyng Bushnell, the class odist at Harvard, threw tradition to the winds and caused a stir in the crowd in Sanders's Theatre today, when, after reading his ode, he launched into a denunciation of disloyalty.

He attacked Bolshevism, anarchy, and socialism, and warned all against following those that masquerade as patriots. He was vigorously applauded at the close of his remarks.

Mr. Bushnell said that there was a misconception as to what an ode really was; in the minds of many it belonged in the category of the classical, and was something to be set to music, but he was possessed of such convictions on a matter of the greatest importance that he could not let this occasion pass without sounding a note of warning.

He sharply criticised pacifists, slackers, conscientious objectors—who today were boasting of what they did to keep the country out of war, but none claim to have had a great part in winning the war.

The demagogues of the present day claimed to be friends of democracy, he said, whereas they were enemies of everything truly democratic and American, and their utterances were encouraging the friends of Germany to manifest themselves in a pronounced manner. They are the ones who today were raising the cry that Germany was being oppressed.

Class day had resumed today something of its traditional splendor, in contrast with the subdued gayety that marked its observance a year ago in war time. In place of the navy blue and the khaki that predominated in the line of seniors last year, the regulation class day costume of flannels and caps and gowns was generally worn.

Not all the men of 1919 were present. Two hundred are still scattered in training camps in this country and a score, representing the toll of war, lie dead in France, but the 200 who marched in the procession made a brave show, and the attendance of graduates and other visitors was equal to that of former years. Many of the men in line had only recently laid aside their uniforms.

In the exercises in Sanders Theatre the dead were not forgotten, and during the day four graduate classes also held memorial services in Appleton Chapel.

Francis W. Hatch of Medford gave the first undergraduate part. He made a plea that America should not forget her obligations to do her part overseas for the preservation of the world's peace now that the war was ended.

The Ivy Oration, written by Frederic M. Warburg, son of Felix Warburg of New York City, was given in the stadium at 4 o'clock. A lively confetti battle followed.

WELCOME ARSENAL SUIT.

Safety Institute Wants Status in Park Building Defined.

Directors of the Safety Institute of America yesterday expressed themselves as pleased with the action to prevent the institute occupying the arsenal in Central Park brought by William H. Williams, as a taxpayer. Plans had been made to spend $150,000 in restoring the arsenal to its original condition, but nothing further will be done until the suit has been tried.

"We are anxious to have this point determined before we proceed further," said James Speyer, Chairman of the Directors. "For several weeks Arnold W. Brunner, an architect, has been working on the exterior plans, preparatory to the occupancy of the arsenal by the institute, and we have even arranged with the contractor who is to rebuild the arsenal. The only opposition has come from the Park and Playgrounds Association."

At the Hotel Marlborough the institute gave a dinner last night at which certificates were awarded to inspectors of various State Industrial Commissions who attended a course of safety lectures conducted by the institute last Winter. The certificates were presented by Arthur Williams, President of the organization, to inspectors who attended nine or more lectures. R. M. Little, Director of the Safety Institute, presided.

Wedding Announcements.

Nathaniel Peniston Davis, a son of Professor John Davis of the Princeton Theological Seminary, and Miss Sarah L. Collins, daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Collins of Purchase, N. Y., were married yesterday at the home of the bride's mother, Professor Davis officiating. The bride was graduated from Bryn Mawr in 1917. Mr. Davis was graduated from Princeton in 1916, and after the war broke out he went to Russia as a Y. M. C. A. worker for a year. On his return he became a commissioned officer in the aviation branch of the Signal Corps. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will live in Philadelphia.

The marriage of Albert M. The bride wore a white satin robe and a tulle veil. Her only attendant, gowned in blue, was her sister, Miss Marion Geiger, whose engagement to Eugene Messner has just been announced. Carl Stern was Mr. Roland's best man.

Miss Rita Deevy, daughter of Jefferson Deevy, was married yesterday in All Saints' Church to John A. Galvin. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward J. Deevy, a brother of the bride, and a wedding breakfast followed at the home of her father at 109 West 129th Street.

Miss Marjorie Sinsheimer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Sinsheimer, was married to Jesse D. Gidding last night at the home of her parents, 28 Hamilton Terrace, by the Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise. Miss Anna Sinsheimer was maid of honor for her sister, and Lieutenant Leonard E. Gidding acted as best man for his brother. The pair will make a tour of Canada and the Great Lakes.

Miss M. Josephine Maguire, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Maguire of 35 Fort Washington Avenue, and Frederick Dudley Hobbs of Roselle Park, N. J., were married yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Majestic. A luncheon and dancing followed the ceremony.

STEVENS INSTITUTE GRADUATES 36 MEN

Smallest Class in Thirty-six Years, Due to Heavy Enlistments in War.

ADMIRAL GRIFFIN HONORED

Rear-Admiral Robert S. Griffin, Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering of the Navy, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering, and thirty-six students received the degree of Mechanical Engineer at the forty-seventh commencement of the Stevens Institute of Technology at Hoboken yesterday. Admiral Griffin received the honor for "having been connected longer and more intimately with the design and construction of the machinery of our new navy than any other one man." After paying a tribute to the twenty-nine institute men who lost their lives in the war, President Alexander Humphreys attacked Bolshevism.

"Bolshevism is not confined to countries across the sea," he said. "We have it here, call it what you may, Bolshevism, anarchism, or socialism. The evil is real. It has been characterized as the freedom to destroy freedom.

"The world has no use for the dilettante idealism that prates and poses and meets in luxurious drawing rooms in evening clothes to flirt with Bolshevism as a dangerous but fascinating pastime. These persons are enemies to this Republic, and they should be dealt with as enemies. Let us remember that representative government based upon a written Constitution, which marked a new era in government and human liberty, has been our protection for 150 years."

Gordon Ross Milne of Newark delivered the address of welcome and Eugene McDermott of Brooklyn made the farewell speech. Henry Y. Braddon, Australian High Commissioner to the United States, spoke on the need for a more intimate relationship between this country and Australia and said that the great lesson of the war was that "the individual or nation that adopts underhand ways is doomed to failure."

This year's class is the smallest in thirty-six years, because almost 80 per cent. of those who entered four years ago left for war service. The graduates were:

Abbott, James, Jr.	Horn, James M.
Ackerman, Garrett J.	Kinkel, Andrew A.
Adler, Abie.	Lane, Robert S.

TO STOP USING BRIDGE.

Surface Car Operations on Queensboro Called Too Expensive.

Great surprise was occasioned in Queens yesterday when it became known that the New York and Queens County Railway officials were contemplating abandoning the service of its cars across the Queensboro Bridge from Long Island City to Fifty-ninth Street, Manhattan. The information was given out in a communication from President William O. Wood of the company to Borough President Connolly. Formal notice of the intentions of the company has also been served upon the Board of Estimate.

This company, which is a subsidiary of the Interborough Company, operates all the surface trolley lines on the north side of Queens from Long Island City to Flushing. According to figures furnished to the Public Service Commission, the company, from May 17 to June 7 of the present year carried 1,929,352 cash passengers. About one half of this number, according to the estimates of the officials of the company, cross the Queensboro Bridge.

In the letter to Borough President Connolly, President Wood said:

"Our company did not want to operate over this bridge in the first place. Bridge operation is very expensive and it was only at the solicitation of business men of Queens, members of the Board of Estimate, and officials of Queens that we finally decided to go across the bridge. This operation cost us $20,000 a year in payment to the city. Many changes in conditions have arisen since we started operation. The Pennsylvania tunnels have been opened, the Queensboro Subway has been put into operation. The Second Avenue elevated trains run across the bridge, and shortly the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company will have a station at the plaza. At the present financial condition and present rate of fare we cannot afford to continue to pay the high price of operation over the bridge."

Silberman, in cream-colored satin, and by the Misses Blanche and Ida Claster, Sara Levetan, Rebecca Luria, Sara Smith, and Blanche Benn, who were in blue silk and pink tulle. The little Misses Mildred Claster and Fannie Luria were flower girls. Lester Claster was best man, and the ushers were Samuel Silberman, Ben Tietzer, Abe Shapiro, Max Claster, Samuel R. Claster, and J. Kalin. A dance for 300 guests followed. The pair will pass their honnymoon in California.

TELLS SOME RATE PROBLEMS

Clark Says Commerce Board Should Control Water Carriers.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Some rule of law governing the present application of the long-and-short haul clause of the Interstate Commerce act is necessary, the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee was told today by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Clark.

"The commission's task at present requires it to deal with conflicting interests of communities and territories when those interests are completely irreconcilable," he said. "The present act lays down no rule of law which can be followed."

Commercial competition, not the cost of service, underlies rate making, Mr. Clark said.

"That's the reason most of the railroads in the country are 'busted,' today, isn't it?" asked Senator Robinson, Arkansas.

"It has had a great deal to do with bringing about their financial difficulties," Mr. Clark responded. "Traffic had been built up without any consideration for the return or lack of return which its creation has brought the roads."

Power to prescribe minimum rates and to control water as well as rail carriers would assist the commission, Mr. Clark said, adding that the commission's rate policy had been based partially on the theory that healthy competition between rail and water carriers was to the best interests of the country.

McKAY FIGHTS FOR JOB.

Brings Action Against Magistrate McAdoo for Reinstatement.

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo was served yesterday in his office with an order to show cause why a peremptory writ of mandamus should not be issued reinstating George D. McKay, former Deputy Chief Probation Officer. The order was signed by Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney, and is returnable today in Special Term, Part I. The Chief Magistrate will be represented by Abraham S. Gilbert and Mr. McKay by County Clerk Joseph M. Callahan of the Bronx.

This is the second attempt to obtain the writ. The first action was withdrawn after several adjournments. McKay asserts that the charges upon which he was forced to resign were frivolous. He first was dismissed by Chief Magistrate McAdoo on Jan. 6 after charges had been brought against him by Chief Probation Officer Edwin J. Cooley. He asked permission to resign, and did so a few hours after his dismissal.

The Chief Magistrate accepted the resignation, which was to take effect Jan. 20. Upon reconsideration, McKay wrote that he had changed his mind, was withdrawing his resignation, and considered himself part of the Magistrate's Courts again.

Magistrate McAdoo informed him he had ceased to be an employe of the courts. Shortly afterward David Hirschfield, Commissioner of Accounts, began hearings on McKay's dismissal, at which testimony by women probation officers regarding McKay's conduct was given.

UPHOLD VOTE CONVICTIONS.

TRENTON, N. J., June 17.—The conviction of Louis Unger, William F. Looney, and John P. Kelly, members of the Hudson County Board of Registry and Elections for the Second District, Second Ward, of Jersey City, was sustained today by the Supreme Court.

At an election held in Jersey City on Oct. 7, 1917, to fill a vacancy on the City Commission, caused by the death of George F. Brensinger, it was charged that the three men "fraudulently received votes from persons they knew were impersonating voters; aided and abetted persons to vote in the names of others, and refused and neglected to obey the law requiring the comparison of signatures in the registry and poll books."

WRAPPING AT MEAT PRICES.

Senate Wants Net Weight Marked on Packages in Future.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—"American people who bought ham, pork, and bacon have been paying out $7,000,000 to $8,000,000 annually for wrapping paper and string at ham, pork, and bacon prices," Senator Kenyon of Iowa told the Senate late this afternoon. Following this statement, the Senate added an amendment to the Agricultural bill placing wrapped packages of meat under the restrictions of the Pure Food act and requiring the net weight to be marked on the package.

"I am told that in some instances the weight of this paper and string amounts to between 1 and 2¼ cents per pound on bacon," said the Senator.

Senator Sherman of Illinois agreed that the amendment was a good one, but said the pure food law had never been enforced in the provisions requiring full weight. He declared he had never got more than 196 pounds of flour in a barrel or 14½ ounces in a pound of rice.

"I'm in favor of this amendment affecting the meat," declared Senator Sherman. "But I'm not wholly a carnivorous animal. I'm herbivorous and something of a vegetarian, too. I want full weight in the other things besides meat. I've been paying food prices for pasteboard, string, and other inedible substances since 1907."

MRS. GREER DIES, WIDOW OF BISHOP

Nearly Fifty Years Married, She Survived Her Husband by Less Than a Month.

PRAISED FROM HIS PULPIT

Mrs. Caroline A. Keith Greer, widow of the Rt. Rev. David Hummell Greer, who was Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Bishop's House, Amsterdam Avenue and 110th Street, after an illness of some months, in her seventy-fourth year. The funeral will be private. Surviving are four children, William A. Greer, Lawrence Greer, Mrs. Thomas McLane, and Miss Jean Greer, all of this city.

Mrs. Greer was seriously ill at the time of the death of Bishop Greer on May 19 last, and on account of her weakened condition she was not told of his death until the day of the funeral. Her condition continued serious, the patient gradually growing weaker, until last Monday morning, when there was a decided change for the worse and she sank rapidly. She remained conscious until the last.

Had Bishop and Mrs. Greer lived until the 29th of this month, they would have celebrated their golden wedding, having been married in Covington, Ky., June 29, 1869. Mrs. Greer was a daughter of Quincy Adams Keith of Covington. They had lived in this city since 1880.

Mrs. Greer was active in church work until the last few years, when her health failed. The illness that terminated in her death began shortly after Christmas with bronchial pneumonia. Mrs. Greer was a member of the Colonial Dames.

Bishop Greer gave to his wife the credit for having been his greatest help and inspiration in his achievements. Speaking at a service in St. Bartholomew's Church in January, 1914, in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of his consecration, and after several speakers had paid personal tribute to him and told of his labors and achievements, Bishop Greer, who was visibly affected by the praises referred to Mrs. Greer, who was present, as "the best suffragan in the world."

"You don't know and I don't know," he continued, speaking to the clergy of his diocese, "how much she has meant to you through me. Only God knows that."

City living conditions account for much of the time lost from business, for they contribute largely to the illness that has become so prevalent

The daily rush of business, the daily travel in crowded trains and cars, the lack of opportunity for healthful exercise—all are conditions of city life

3,000,000 people sick on any given day—

Eight hundred million dollars wasted annually

STATISTICS show that the average man and woman in the United States can expect to be sick in bed more than a week out of every year. On the average, three million persons are ill on any day. The annual wage loss from illness is at least $800,000,000.

Who suffers the greatest part of this terrific loss?

People who live in cities!

The city dweller travels from home to office in crowded cars or trains. He seldom walks, or takes other exercise. Usually he works indoors, stooped over a desk, a machine or a counter. Indeed, medical men state that the average city worker uses no more than a third of his lung capacity—that about 400 muscles in his body have actually become weakened through disuse.

What is the result of this kind of life? Is it surprising that sickness is so prevalent? Is it surprising that the death rate in the city is higher than in the country by 21%?

The leather heel has outlived its usefulness—it is doomed. It has no more place on modern pavements than the wooden sandals of ancient days.

Why city dwellers avoid walking

Walking, the one great exercise which every man should enjoy, has become a burden. Too often it contributes directly to that over-fatigued condition which makes the city dweller an easy prey to illness.

In his usual routine the average city worker takes 8,000 steps a day, on hard, modern floors and pavements. If you wear nail-studded leather heels, you give your body 8,000 jolts and jars a day—for every step with hard heels on still harder pavements acts as a hammer blow to your entire nervous system. The constant repetition of these shocks exhausts your energy, helps to bring an overfatigue, with its ever-present threat of serious illness.

With every step on leather heels you are pounding away your energy

Yet walking on hard pavements need not be any more fatiguing than walking on turf. Walking can easily be made a pleasure and a benefit.

Modern pavements are built for modern traffic. You can't bring back the yielding dirt streets of many years ago—the streets for which leather heels were made, but you can cushion your feet against the jolts and jars that make walking a burden. You can replace hard, old-fashioned heels with O'Sullivan's Heels of live, springy rubber.

What gives a rubber heel "life"

Rubber, as you know, can be made hard and brittle as in fountain pens or soft and crumbly as in pencil erasers. To secure the resiliency and durability of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are "compounded" with the best toughening agents known. The "compound" is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

By this special process the greatest resiliency is combined with the utmost durability.

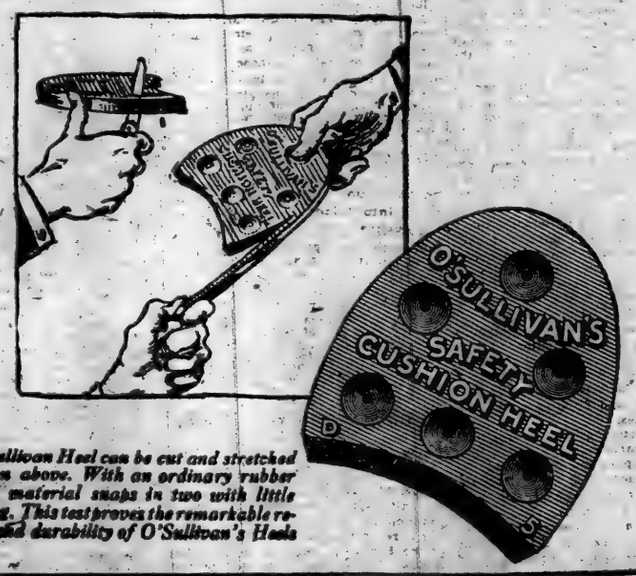
It is this special process that has, since the making of the first rubber heel, established O'Sullivan's Heels as the standard of rubber heel quality.

Guaranteed to outlast any other heels

O'Sullivan's Heels are guaranteed to wear twice as long as ordinary rubber heels; and will outlast three pairs of leather heels.

Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

O'Sullivan's Heels are furnished in black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Specify O'Sullivan's Heels, and be sure that you get O'Sullivan's—avoid the disappointment of substitutes.



An O'Sullivan Heel can be cut and stretched as shown above. With an ordinary rubber heel the material snaps in two with little stretching. This test proves the remarkable resiliency and durability of O'Sullivan's Heels

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

INQUIRY TO COVER WAR'S COST ABROAD

One Sub-Committee Is Named to Visit France and Investigate Expenses.

FOUR OTHER BRANCHES

Aviation, Camps, Quartermaster Corps, and Ordnance Will Form Special Divisions.

FOOD SURPLUS ANOTHER

Congress Is Expected to Make a Separate Study of Disposal of Stocks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Sub-committees to investigate the conduct of the war were appointed today by Chairman Graham of Illinois, following a meeting of the special committee appointed by the House in conformity with the Republican program to inquire into contracts awarded during the war and the general administrative conduct of war activities.

Five sub-committees were named to investigate different phases of war activities, while the general committee is expected to go into the expenditures of the General Staff of the Army. One of the sub-committees will go abroad to investigate the expenditures made abroad by the American Army officers.

Expenditures Abroad—Representatives Johnson, South Dakota, Chairman; Bland, Indiana, and Flood, Virginia.

Await Baker's Reply.

Indications are that the investigation will not be undertaken until Secretary Baker has replied to a questionnaire, which Chairman Graham has formulated. This questionnaire will be submitted to the full committee tomorrow, and if approved Secretary Baker will be requested to furnish the various subcommittees with certain information which will enable them to make an orderly and systematic investigation into the different activities. This questionnaire will require the total appropriations and expenditures for each of the various departments, the list of contracts awarded, and the names of the contractors and the business connections of the civilians and officers who awarded the contracts.

Until this information is received, perhaps in another two weeks, Mr. Graham said, the sub-committees cannot begin their inquiries.

Mr. Graham, in a statement, outlined the scope of the investigation, and the work assigned to the respective subcommittees. His statement follows:

"The investigation of the subcommittee on aviation will be over all expenditures and contracts of the Signal Corps and for aviation generally, whether such supplies were purchased or contracts made by the Signal Corps or by any other subsequently organized bureau or division of the army. This will include all aviation expenditures in the United States and until the supplies for which such expenditures are made are landed in foreign countries. By arrangement between subcommittees No. 1 and No. 3 this subcommittee may make investigations in its work as to activities in foreign countries. Included in the work of this subcommittee will be the Spruce Production Division and all aviation fields of the military establishment of every kind, with their supplies and equipment.

To Investigate Locations.

"The Subcommittee on Camps and Cantonments will have jurisdiction of all camps, cantonments, hospitals, temporary buildings, and military posts in the United States, including the District of Columbia, Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippine Islands, and all contracts in connection with the acquiring of said camps and cantonments and all matters covering sanitation, operation, and location of such camps and cantonments, including waters and sewers, and all expenditures in connection with the construction and maintenance of such camps and cantonments. This subcommittee will also include in its functions the power to investigate all activities of the so-called Construction Division not specifically assigned to some other subcommittee, and also have jurisdiction over expenditures in the Adjutant General's office and the office of the Judge Advocate General.

The sub-committee on foreign expenditures will have jurisdiction of all expenditures made since the commencement of the war with Germany in France, Belgium, England, Italy, and Russia. This will only include such expenditures as were made in those countries, and will not include ordnance, Quartermaster's, and other supplies which were purchased or manufactured in the United States and shipped abroad. As to such supplies, the sub-committees heretofore given jurisdiction over such supplies will continue to have jurisdiction over them until they were landed on foreign soil. From the time of landing, all expenditures on all supplies will be within the jurisdiction of this sub-committee. It will be understood that the sub-committee also has charge of all camps, factories, hospitals, and other buildings and fixtures erected in foreign countries.

"The jurisdiction of the sub-committee on the Quartermaster's Corps will include all supplies purchased and expenditures made which are included within the meaning of the general term 'Quartermaster's supplies,' services and transportation, and all contracts relative to expenditures made in the purchase of such supplies and in the conduct of the Quartermaster's Corps of the army. Quartermaster's supplies shall be such as were recognized by law and the regulations of the army prior to the present army organization of the Division of Purchase, Storage, and Traffic; wherever such supplies are now handled and disposed of through the Purchase, Storage, and Traffic Division this subcommittee will be held to have jurisdiction, irrespective of any change of administration from the Quartermaster's Corps to the Division of Purchase, Storage, and Traffic.

Includes Remount Depots.

"In addition, this sub-committee will have jurisdiction of all Quartermaster's camps, stores, and warehouses. Within the jurisdiction of this sub-committee will also be specifically remount depots and the purchase and disposition of horses and vehicles, both horse and motor, including tractors and trailers, except tanks, and including also the Motor Transport Corps.

"There will also be included within the jurisdiction of this sub-committee all supplies and stores purchased for the Surgeon General's Department and the Engineer Corps, and for temporary buildings occupied by their respective departments in the District of Columbia.

"This sub-committee will also have jurisdiction of all expenditures and contracts relative to the transportation of troops in the United States, and until such troops were landed in foreign countries.

"The Sub-Committee on Ordnance will have general jurisdiction of all supplies and contracts of the Ordnance Department. It will be understood that the term 'ordannce supplies' refers to all such supplies as were ordinarily deemed ordnance supplies before the present reorganization of the army and the passage of the so-called Overman act.

Extends to Private Plants.

"This sub-committee will have jurisdiction of all ordnance depots, warehouses, and ordnance plants, including nitrate plants, picric acid plants, and powder factories located in the United States, whether such plants were operated by the Government directly or through private parties under contract with the Government.

"It will also include expenditures and activities of the Tank Corps and Chemical Warfare Section in the United States.

"Each sub-committee will, in addition to the matters above specifically enumerated, have all the general powers of the standing Committee on Expenditures in the War Department in the particular branch of investigation assigned to that sub-committee. This will include, if desired, an examination of the personnel, organization, retrenchment, economy, efficiency, and any other matters which the sub-committee may desire to investigate and with the general powers heretofore referred to.

"The expenditures and activities of the General Staff and the organization of the military establishment can be more properly investigated if necessary, by the entire committee after the various sub-committees have conducted their various investigations and with the light which such investigations shall afford. The committee will then be in position to more properly make general suggestions or criticisms. Such matters are, therefore, expressly reserved for the action of the principal committee."

WASHINGTON, June 17, (Associated Press.)—A separate and immediate inquiry into the disposition of surplus food stocks by the War Department was indicated today by developments in both House and Senate Committees. C. W. Hare, Director of Sales in the Department of Demobilization Organization, was questioned at length by the Senate Military Committee in this connection during the hearings on the Army Appropriation bill and later a resolution calling on Secretary Baker for detailed reports as to quantities of foodstuffs held in storage was introduced in the House by Representative Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts.

The resolution seeks information not only as to the food stocks on hand, but also as to offers received for the surplus and details as to contracts under which these stocks were acquired. Director Hare dealt with some of these matters before the Senate Committee. His statement that the Food Administration had refused to purchase War Department surplus stocks of bacon, but later had bought similar supplies consigned to the Italian Government, drew the attention of committee members, and Mr. Hare agreed to give details of the transactions later. He told also of an agreement with the National Canners' Association under which a huge store of canned vegetables owned by the Government is to be marketed.

Director Hare estimated the value of the war materials in this country owned by the Government at $2,000,000,000, but did not know the proportion regarded as surplus.

Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate Military Committee announced tonight that hearings on the Army bill would close tomorrow, and that the committee hoped to have the bil ready to report to the Senate late this week.

519 AUTO DRIVERS IN TRAFFIC COURT

CALL SOME CASES "FLIMSY"

McAdoo Urges Increase in Traffic Squad by 500 Men with Special Training.

The police have returned to their crusade against traffic violators, as was amply evidenced yesterday when 519 defendants appeared in the Traffic Court. The number of complaints established a high mark, and four Magistrates were needed to dispose of the cases.

When Magistrate House appeared to open court he found the courtroom and Mulberry Street presenting an appearance which he compared to the crowds that gathered five years ago when the radicals were attacking churches. There were at least 200 policemen on hand, and most of them were on seats which Magistrate House directed them to vacate in favor of the public. Great grumbling greeted this order, and the Magistrate, informed of it, announced that he would take summary action on grumblers. Magistrate House remarked on the "enormous increase in the activity of the Police Department," and said that so far this year the Traffic Court had disposed of 11,900 cases, as compared with 13,000 during the entire previous year.

Shortly after court opened, Chief Magistrate McAdoo and Magistrates Mancuso and Brough were drafted to assist. After his colleagues had opened the three other parts of the court, Magistrate House expressed the opinion that most of the charges were "flimsy."

"I have disposed of thirty cases so far," he said, "and I fail to see in one of them any relation between safety of the pedestrian and other motorists. I am making a careful record in each case—it may be of some good in the future—and not in one ofthem so far, so the officers testified, were there any other vehicles or pedestrians crossing, nor the possibility of a collision."

The only grain of humor that entered in the Magistrates' busy day came when Bicycle Policeman Abraham Tourette of a Brooklyn precinct arraigned Edwin M. Kratch of 619 West 175th Street, a cashier, on a charge of violating the eight-foot ordinance. The bank official pleaded guilty. Then Tourette related how Kratch, moving alongside of a car in motion, had actually gotten within three feet of the side of the trolley.

"You mean to say," said Magistrate House, "that he was actually moving abreast of the street car?"

"That's what he was doing, your Honor," replied Tourette.

"Now, officer, I want you to be sure of this," said the Magistrate, and when the bicyclist said he was certain of it, the Court said:

"I permit the defendant to withdraw his plea of guilty, permit him to plead not guilty, and find him so. That shows how careful a Magistrate must be when disposing even of pleas of guilty. As for you, officer, you'd better study up the traffic laws a little more before you come back here with any more cases."

The eight-foot ordinance prescribes that distance as the stopping place for an automobile behind a street car that halts to take or discharge passengers.

While the court was convened the adjacent streets were jammed with cars, whose owners were waiting their turn for trial. Men from the Elizabeth Street Station promised many of the car owners with summons unless better parking plans were followed. The children in the neighborhood grew rich from tips obtained for "minding" cars. In addition to calling in all available Magistrates, every clerk, stenographer, and fingerprint expert that could be enlisted was used to handle the crowd.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo announced, after court closed, that he had received a letter from Third Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis announcing that steps would be taken immediately by the Police Department to fit up the additional court room to which Magistrate McAdoo called attention in his recent letter to Commissioner Enright. The letter was also interpreted as indicating the decision of the police to keep on the alert for violators.

"The present drive of the police," said Magistrate McAdoo, "for violations of the speeding ordinance and rules of the road has developed facts that are of public interest. In the first place, the defendants are nearly all drivers of commercial, small touring cars or taxis. From the beginning of the present activities, the number of drivers or owners of cars indicating well-to-do people have been almost negligible, which would simply argue that the latter are strictly obeying the ordinance because, otherwise, it would be a serious reflection on the police.

"A great number of cases brought here today were for failing to keep on the right side of the road or making short turns at corners. The complaining officer, in many cases, was a man taken from post and without experience, who stationed himself on a busy corner and looked for the short turners. As a matter of fact, at that particular crossing, which probably ought to have a regular man on it all the time, those drivers have been accustomed to making that short turn for years. This, of course, does not condone that very dangerous practice, and the ordinance ought to be enforced, notfitfully, but consistently and continuously, if thousands of drivers in this city are to be educated to obey the law.

"With considerable experience, I have no hesitation in saying that if the public safety is to be conserved the Traffic Squad should be increased by at least 500 additional men, thoroughly trained for the work and with vocational aptitude and liking for it. There must be at least 150 dangerous crossings in this city now unprotected. If these dangerous places were covered continually, as they should be, the number of these cases brought to this court would undoubtedly decrease at once."

TO END LYDIG DIVORCE CASE

Mrs. Philip M. Lydig Going to Paris to Sign Final Decree.

Mrs. Philip M. Lydig of 14 Washington Square North will be a passenger on the French liner Espagne, which sails on Saturday for France. While in Paris, Mrs. Lydig will sign her final decree of divorce from Major Philip M. Lydig, U. S. A., from whom she has been separated for several years. The divorce proceedings were instituted in 1914, but were not pressed until the end of the war. James Gordon Battle is Mrs. Lydig's counsel.

In 1895, when only sixteen years old, Mrs. Lydig married W. E. D. Stokes, from whom she was subsequently divorced. Although the divorce papers awarded the custody of W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., to Mrs. Lydig, she relinquished the son to his father shortly after her marriage to Major Lydig. Young Stokes, however, returned to his mother and enlisted at the outbreak of the war. He is now Lieutenant Stokes of the destroyer Claxton.

Major Lydig is a member of the Knickerbocker, Union, Harvard, New York Yacht, and Racquet and Tennis clubs. Mrs. Lydig is prominent in philanthropic and art movements. Some time ago she sold her rare art collection for several hundred thousand dollars. She was a member of the Mayor's Committee on National Defense and of late has been active in the plans to help drug addicts.

Judge Rosalsky Criticises Magistrate; Sets Aside Night Court Conviction

In discharging two young women of proved respectability who had been convicted of disorderly conduct before Magistrate Francis X. Mancuso, on the word of a policeman, Judge Otto Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday denounced Policeman John F. Gunson and advised the women to bring a civil suit against him. Miss Lillian Kahn, who lives in Brooklyn, and Miss Sallie Cobin of 214 Henry Street, who is employed by the Army Quartermaster Corps, were arrested by Gunson, at Broadway and Forty-second Street, on the night of March 4.

"Your sister and my sister are not safe if men like you on the police force are allowed to go on without hindrance," said Judge Rosalsky to Gunson. "Your action cannot be too strongly condemned. The magistrate should be rebuked. Your action was wholly unwarranted by the facts. The conviction of these two girls by the magistrate was wholly unwarranted by the facts. There was not a scintilla of justice in what you did."

Turning to the two young women, Judge Rosalsky said:

"You young women, both of you respectable, both of you enjoying a good reputation, have suffered through the action of this policeman, and, I am sure, if you bring a civil suit you will collect damages."

Miss Cobin and her friend went to the Metropolitan Opera House on the night of their arrest to hear President Wilson speak. Unable to get in, they walked to Forty-second Street, and were waiting for a car when Gunson arrested them without evidence and against their protests. Arraigned in the Women's Night Court, Magistrate Mancuso found them guilty on the unsupported word of the member of the Vice Squad. They were released on a suspended sentence after they had been locked up for four days. Their relatives at once laid the case before General Sessions, which is the court of review in cases brought before magistrates.

WAR'S END TO MARK JULY 4 CELEBRATION

Mayor, in Proclamation, Urges City to Join in Expressions of Gratitude.

WANTS DAY MADE SAFE

Declares That Police Will Enforce Law Prohibiting the Use of Explosives.

Mayor Hylan issued his Fourth of July proclamation yesterday, calling attention to the usual regulations prohibiting fireworks and firearms to be used in the celebration. He also called attention to the fact that this year the celebration was particularly significant in view of the fact that American arms had triumphed in battle. The proclamation reads:

"To the people of the City of New York:

"On July 4 our citizens will celebrate the signing of the Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress, as has been done on each recurrence of the anniversary for the past 143 years. This year our Independence Day celebration will be especially significant. The world war is at an end. American arms have triumphed. Peace is in sight.

"In this city arrangements are being made for an unusual demonstration in the way of a victory parade, in addition to the customary musical concerts and patriotic exercises. Such forms of celebration appeal to all. They are sane, enjoyable, and fitting to commemorate the birthday we celebrate.

"Explosives are not necessary for a proper celebration of the day. Their use is dangerous and prohibited by law. The fire commissioner will issue no permits for their display or use. The police will see to it that the law in this regard is observed.

"The great toll of suffering and death, which has always followed in the wake of celebrations of which fireworks and firearms were a part, is alone sufficient reason for the discontinuance of their use.

"Attention is, therefore, directed to the great danger to life and property attendant upon the use of explosives as a means of celebration, and to the liability to arrest and punishment which will follow their use or display.

"The co-operation of all inhabitants of this city is requested in order that the celebration of Independence Day this year may be safe and sane, and significant of our gratitude for the brilliant successes of our military and naval establishments.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the City of New York to be affixed.

"Done in the City of New York, this thirteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, nine hundred and nineteen.

"By the Mayor.

"JOHN F. HYLAN."

TO PERFORM OPERATION ON NORTHCLIFFE TODAY

Publisher's Letter to Capt. Alcock on Success of Atlantic Flight Arouses Comment.

LONDON, June 16.—Lord Northcliffe on Wednesday undergoes an operation which it is believed will re-establish his health, and on all sides hopes are expressed that the fruits of his foresight and enterprise in offering the prize of $50,000 for a transatlantic flight will be an excellent tonic to help him through the operation.

Lord Northcliffe has addressed to his editorial staffs a letter concerning the conduct of the papers, which is described as the "vade mecum of the young journalist," to whom it makes a special appeal.

Lord Northcliffe's letter to Captain Alcock is the subject of much comment. The Westminster Gazette says:

"For America the flight of the Atlantic may be the same kind of portent as the flight of the Channel was for us. Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown take one step more in breaking down the isolations of the world, but whether for good or evoil is yet to determine.

"Lord Northcliffe foresees as a comparatively merciful consequence, that London newspapers will be delivered in New York on the same day and American papers in London the next day. We may survive that, but it will, very seriously, be a problem for both continents to see that neither the outward nor the inward giant airplanes of the future are freighted with more explosive cargoes."

PASS HUDSON TUNNEL BILL.

Compact Between New York and New Jersey Is Approved by Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Senate today passed the bill introduced by Senator Edge of New Jersey, giving the States of New York and New Jersey the right to enter into a compact for the joint construction of a vehicular tunnel under the Hudson River. Federal legislation was considered necessary to meet a provision of the Constitution that no State, without the consent of Congress, enter into any pact or agreement with any other State.

Under the bill, Congress would consent to the compact between the two States for the construction, repair, and maintenance of a tunnel or tunnels between the Borough of Manhattan, New York City, and Jersey City for the joint operation and for regulating and collecting all tolls and charges and the regulation of other such details.

The project was given impetus while Senator Edge was Governor of New Jersey. When he came to Washington he drew the enabling act, introducing it soon after his induction as a Senator.

Cleveland Bandits Get $65,000.

CLEVELAND, June 17.—The five armed bandits who yesterday held up employes and customers and robbed the West Cleveland Bank secured $65,000, according to a statement today by K. S. Bailey, President, after checking up the bank cash. The bandits escaped in a stolen automobile.

Commissioner Bitterly Attacks Those Who Oppose Amendment to Sanitary Code.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner of this city, speaking at the dinner of the Allied Medical Associations of America last night, pointed out to the physicians present the great numbre of cases of malnutrition among the children of this city, due, he said, to the excessive price of milk, and he also told of the narcotic drug situation here. In this connection he attacked the members of the New York County Medical Society, who are calling a meeting for next Monday night to protest against the proposed amendments to the sanitary code.

"There are doctors in this town," Dr. Copeland asserted, "so blind to this evil and so 'Rip Van Winkle' in their narcotic sleep that they do not know there is an evil. The New York Medical Society is even going so far as to call a special meeting for this coming Monday night to protest against our amendment to the sanitary code.

"In spite of the New York Medical Society and even if every doctor on the face of the earth believes it their way, I intend going right through with my program so long as I hold office.

"If there is any hell, there are some doctors that will sizzle to the end of time, and if I have to go there, too I hope that my assignment will be to shovel the coal under them."

The Commissioner gave statistics on the quantity of narcotic drugs used in this city last year, stating that 470,000 pounds of crude opium had been brought to this country, which, he said, was ten times as much as there was in any other country on earth.

Speaking on the subject of malnutrition among children, he said that 700,000 out of the million school children in this city come from tenement homes, and of this number 19 per cent., in 1918, were under weight due to the lack of sufficient food.

"By reason of the high prices of food and the high cost of milk, I have no doubt," he said, "that under-nourishment of the children in this city has increased 15 to 20 per cent. during the last six months. That condition is common everywhere in the United States, and even throughout the world, and it is one of the problems which the medical profession has to face."

Other speakers were Dr. W. Wallace Fritz of Philadelphia, Dr. L. M. Ottofy of St. Louis, Dr. Charles H. Duncan, Dr. E. S. Lane of Poughkeepsie, Dr. Benoni A. Bullock of Detroit, Dr. J. C. Bateson of Scranton, and Dr. J. E. Siegelstein of Detroit.

The Allied Medical Associations of America will today reconsider the resolution a tits session on Monday that 2.75 per cent. beer and also light wines are necessities in the treatment of certain patients of the members. Dr. Dinshah P. Ghadiali, who was absent when the mater was voted upon, asked for this action.

Dr. Ghadiali, who is Governor of the Police Reserve Aviation School, announced yesterday morning in the convention chamber at the Hotel Pennsylvania that when he had read of the action of the society he was very much amazed, and, he said further, that he would introduce a resolution today opposing light wines and beer. This will be taken up after he has read his paper on "Scientific Misconception and Oriental Occultism."

NEW CRUISERS TO PACIFIC.

Expect Speedy Battle Craft to be a Special Unit.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—All six of the high speed battle cruisers under construction for the navy probably will be assigned, when completed, to the reorganized Pacific Fleet. Navy officers believe that the characteristics of these vessels render them peculiarly suitable to conditions in the Pacific and anticipate that they will be grouped as a special division of the Pacific Fleet.

Secretary Daniels announced yesterday the general purpose of assigning half of the main fleet to each coast, but the disposition to be made of the battle cruisers was not mentioned. They will not be ready for service for two years or more. Because of the great distances to be covered in the Pacific, however, and the speed and long cruising radius of the cruisers, officers feel certain that these ships will be based in Pacific waters.

There are now no drydocks of sufficient size on the Pacific to care for them. While they are to be modified so as to increase their turret and other protection somewhat, with a resultant decrease in speed below the original thirty-five-knot design, they will retain their main batteries of ten 16-inch guns each and tonnage of more than 32,000 displacement. The ships are regarded as the most powerful of their type ever designed, and no nation has as yet projected similar vessels.

TO STUDY TRACTION NEEDS.

Taft to Speak at Federal Commission's Meeting Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Federal Electric Railways Commission, appointed by President Wilson to make a study of the street railway situation throughout the country, will hold its first hearing at 10 o'clock on Thursday morning, in the hearings room of the Public Service Commission, 49 Lafayette Street, New York City.

Ex-President Taft, who gained much information concerning the street railway situation as Chairman of the National War Labor Board, will open the discussion. The meeting has not been called to discuss conditions in the New York City district especially. The subject will be discussed as a general proposition. The meeting will be open.

RUSSIA FAILS TO PAY $50,000,000 BONDS

Unable to Meet Credit Which Matures Today, Banks Notify Holders.

FLOATED IN THIS CITY

The banking group interested in the flotation here three years ago of the issue of $50,000,000 Russian Government 6½ per cent. bonds, which mature today, sent out last night to holders of these bonds a letter giving excerpts from communications from S. Ughet, Chargé d'Affaires ad interim of Russia and Financial Attaché to the Russian Embassy, and from Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk, explaining that it will be impossible to meet the maturity.

The banking group, which is composed of J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City Bank, the Guaranty Trust Company, Lee, Higginson & Co., and Kidder, Peabody & Co., says that steps are being taken to form a protective committee to conserve the interests of the bondholders.

The letter from S. Ughet says that "due to circumstances beyond my control, I shall be unable to provide funds to meet at maturity the Imperial Russian Government $50,000,000 6½ per cent. three-year credit.

"I have been in communication with the All-Russian Government in Omsk, under Admiral Kolchak, and, while I have received no reply as yet, the published accounts of Admiral Kolchak's communication to the allied Governments clearly state that the external obligations of the Russian Government issued prior to November, 1917, will be recognized. I am sure this matter has been given earnest and serious consideration, and I am confident that the holders of this obligation may reasonably expect arrangements to be made for the payment of this debt as soon as the All-Russian Government is formally recognized."

The banking group further announces that the subject has been taken up with the State Department, and quotes from a letter received from Mr. Polk, in which the acting Secretary says:

"Owing to the present confusion in Russia it is not practicable at this time for the State Department to make any presentation of the legal claims of American citizens against Russia. The people of America are most sympathetic with the Russian people and eagerly desire to see them work out for themselves a stable form of Government, and when that time comes the State Department will use its good offices to call such claims to the attention of that Government.

"With reference to the $50,000,000 credit, it will be remembered that this money was advanced in good faith when Russia was fighting for her life, and that the credit was primarily for buying supplies which were sorely needed by the Russian people for military and civilian needs at the time.

"Whatever stable Government may ultimately assume control in Russia, it is to be expected it will follow the practice which enlightened Governments have always followed, of recognizing the legitimate external loans of prior Governments."

The bond issue is one of two external offerings made in the United States. The other is the $25,000,000 issue of 5½ per cent. five-year Russian Treasury bonds, due Dec. 1, 1921, interest payable June and December. On June 1 the interest on these bonds was paid at the National City Bank.

Bankers yesterday refused to comment on the possibility of these bonds going to default, preferring, as one put it, to await events. It is believed that before the next interest date a definite arrangement or understanding may be had with a stable Russian Government.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Acting Secretary of State Polk today authorized the statement that there was no action which the Government could take at this time regarding the default of the payment of principal and interest on the $50,000,000 Russian credit due tomorrow.

The Omsk Government has decided to place the greater part of orders for its military supplies in the United States, and the total to be expended in this country in the first ten months is estimated at $164,000,000, according to a cablegram received by the Russian Embassy today from the Omsk Foreign Office.

There has also been founded a committee on economic policy which is elaborating the fundamental plan and general direction of the financial economic policy. The different kinds of money that have flooded Russia are to be got rid of and replaced by a uniform currency. Exchange is to be stabilized through a committee which will collect raw materials for export and prepare them for shipment.

ACTIVE BRAZIL PROPAGANDA

Newspaper Is Publishing Matter Hostile to United States.

RIO JANEIRO, June 17.—An extensive propaganda against the United States, begun a month ago in paid notices in a local morning newspaper, is still going on. These notices and articles reach approximately 2,000 words daily. Usually there is one lengthy article and one of smaller dimensions, freshly prepared.

Dispatches unfavorable to the United States are also being published. Fiume and other matters vitally concerning the Italians are frequently the topic, with vitriolic attacks on President Wilson, who seems to be the chief target, though virtually everything North American has been included.

GREEN VAPOR TINTS VILLAGE

Special to The New York Times.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., June 17.—The Moody Pond section of this village was enveloped yesterday by a green vapor from the forests. This section is bordered by one of the finest growths of pine in the Adirondacks, and from this wood all of a sudden came great whirling clouds of thick, murky green vapor.

So unusual was the appearance of the clouds that many persons became alarmed. Mothers hastened to gather up their children, while scores left their homes to watch the phenomenon.

All homes were invaded by the emerald clouds, which settled on the houses and tinted the furnishings. The color clung to metal longer than to anything else, and many roofs were colored with it hours after the clouds had dispersed.

It is thought by many that the phenomenon was caused by great masses of pollen being detached from the big pines and carried by the wind. When examined closely the vapor appeared to be composed of countless minute fragments of some vegetable matter.

CZECHS TURN ON MAGYARS.

Drive Soviet Forces Back and Capture Several Villages.

GENEVA, June 16.—Czech forces, under command of General Hennocque of the French Army, have begun a counter-offensive against the Hungarian Soviet troops and have captured several villages after ten hours of fighting, according to a Prague dispatch received here.

Two cannon, several Maxim guns and a quantity of ammunition are said to have fallen into the hands of the Czechs.

The War Minister of Czechoslovakia has decided to increase the army to 14,000 officers and 243,000 men.

Senate to Hold Night Sessions to Pass Appropriation Bills

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Night sessions of the Senate to insure the passing of the remaining bills authorizing appropriations needed before July 1 were determined on today by the Senate Republican leaders.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican whip, formally gave notice late today that the program of night sessions would begin tomorrow, with the District of Columbia appropriation bill first to be considered.

COMMITS SUICIDE AFTER SHOOTING TWO

TROUBLE OVER PROPERTY

Wife Had Bequeathed Apartment Houses to Daughter Who Married Without Father's Consent.

Morose because of wrongs he fancied he had suffered, Julius Goepferech, 61 years old, a retired piano maker, yesterday shot his daughter, Mrs. Hilda Licuasi, and her husband, Matthew, as they were asleep in their home at 1,405 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn. As the son-in-law, with a wound in his head, sprang up to seize him, Goepferech ran to a bathroom and locked himself in.

As he was leaving the house to call a policeman, Licuasi heard the report of a third revolver shot. Returning with Policeman Oelson of the Wilson Avenue Station, Licuasi tried to force the bathroom door. He collapsed in the attempt, and he and his wife were taken to the Wyckoff Heights Hospital, where it was said both would recover. The policeman found Goepferech dead on the floor, with a wound over his heart.

According to the police, Goepferech came from Germany to this country as a poor boy. He worked as a piano tuner, then opened an instrument store and finally began manufacturing pianos. He saved his money and finally invested it in the apartment houses at 1,403 and 1,405 Jefferson Avenue. After the deal Goepferech transferred the property to his wife, who died, bequeathing it to the daughter, Hilda.

The police said that the pianomaker opposed the marriage of his daughter to Licuasi, an Italian barber, because of the difference of nationality. Apparently embittered against his daughter because she refused to follow his advice and because the management and ownership of the houses had passed from his control, Goepferech planned his crime, the police said.

LAND BANK BOND ISSUE.

$54,000,000 4½ Per Cents at 100½ to Investors.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The Farm Loan Board today announced a forthcoming issue of $54,000,000 in 4½ per cent. bonds of the Federal Land Banks. The present issue will be sold at 100½ direct to investors by the twelve Federal Land Banks and by a nation-wide group of investment banking houses.

The last general offering of these bonds a year ago was absorbed quickly and the securities went to a considerable premium. The forthcoming issue anticipates the needs of the land banks for some months and no further offering is expected before December.

The new bonds, which will be virtually tax exempt, will be issued in denominations as low as $25 to make them attractive to small investors. They will be payable in five years and due in twenty years. Up to May 31, the Federal Land Banks had issued $207,500,000 in bonds.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, June 17.—Leopoldo F. Miro, a Cuban arrested in New York at the instance of the American postal authorities and delivered to the immigration officials at Ellis Island for deportation to Cuba as an undesirable alien, thus avoiding delay if he fought extradition, is wanted here for defalcation in the stamp sales department of the Havana Post Office.

While charged simply with defalcating the "sum of $600," it is understood the defalcations run into thousands. Miro disappeared from Havana about two weeks ago.

ROYALTY AT ASCOT RACES.

Another Pre-War Function Revived —Record Display of Dresses.

LONDON, June 17.—Another pre-war royal function was revived today with a visit of King George, Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, and Princess Mary to the Ascot races, where they headed the semi-state procession in a four-horse carriage, with postilions and outriders.

The "Royal Ascot" is a designation of this week's racing on the prettiest course in England, and is the opening event of the social season in England. It is usually the signal for the display of the latest creations in dresses, and, after a lapse of five years through the war, today's spectacle exceeded anything previously known in the matter of hats, dresses and general brilliancy.

An excellent programme has been arranged and members of the royal family will be present each day this week.

TO SEND ALIENS HOME.

British Government Plans Step Following Negro Rioting.

LONDON, June 17.—In consequence of riots at Liverpool, Cardiff, and elsewhere, in which colored men have participated, the British Government has decided to repatriate at the earliest possible moment all aliens who came to England during the war, according to The Daily Mail. The bulk of these are Chinese, the others including Swedes, Danes, and Norwegians.

Many negroes who are in England are British subjects and cannot be deported against their will, but an attempt will be made to induce them to go by offering free passage and money.

TO END POSTAL CENSORSHIP

British Office Will Probably Be Closed on Saturday.

LONDON, June 17.—The office of the postal censor, it became known today, probably will be closed Saturday after having been in operation throughout the war.

ARMY HAS CHARTS OF RED ACTIVITIES

Says Intelligence Officers Have Anarchists and Bolsheviki Under Surveillance.

TELLS OF SUCCESS IN WAR

Declares Our Agents Got Into Germany and Gathered Information Behind the Enemy Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Military intelligence officers of the army are keeping under surveillance the activities of all Reds and other radicals in all the large cities of the country, Brig. Gen. Marlborough Churchill, head of the Military Intelligence Division of the army, informed the Senate Military Affairs Committee this morning. He showed the committee maps of New York and Brooklyn on which were charted the haunts of Bolshevists, anarchists, and other extreme radicals. Permission to reproduce the maps was refused, but they were carefully studied. General Churchill said they were duplicated by surveys of other great cities.

"Investigation of disloyal persons by the military authorities has been discontinued since the armistice," General Churchill testified to the committee which is conducting hearings on the Army bill, "but without going outside of our proper sphere we can keep track of those societies that are endeavoring to break down the morale of enlisted men and discharged soldiers. There are societies in the United States which are trying to form councils of soldiers and sailors similar to those in Russia."

Urges Appropriation for Work.

General Churchill appeared before the committee to urge an appropriation allowing the military intelligence division to continue studying foreign and radical movements. He intimated that the radical menace in this country was by no means confined to the proletariat, but that the "parlor group" was also to be feared. This idea was substantiated by the maps, which showed not only markings of houses and halls in the east side and near Washington Square and Brownsville, but displayed black crosses in some of the best residential sections of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

German propagandists are busy trying to undermine the morale in the American Army of Occupation, General Churchill told the committee.

While discussing the efforts of the German intelligence system, General Churchill disclosed to the committee confidential reports from the American Intelligence Service, showing that the Germans attempted to place at least one representative of their secret service in every brigade, division, and large unit of the army. However, General Churchill said, despite the heterogeneous composition of the huge draft army, A. Bruce Bielaski, former Chief of the Department of Investigation of the Department of Justice, was able, by working with the Military Intelligence Service, to balk the German scheme at many turns.

Comparatively small success was achieved by the German spies in the American Army, according to the witness, while, as a contrast, he said the American service was extremely successful in ascertaining what the Germans were doing and in deceiving them as to American military operations. Agents went into Germany by way of the neutral countries and American officers went through the German firing lines. Reports that the German morale was breaking were given to the American Army long before the outside world realized this fact. The American military intelligence system, which had grown from two officers and two clerks, in the pre-war period, was easily the match of the boasted German system before the war ended, General Churchill said.

Supplied Maps for Siberia.

Part of the testimony dealt with the work of the Siberian expedition. General Churchill said that his division of the War Department concentrated entirely upon that work when General Graves went to Vladivostok. The expedition was equipped by the intelligence service with the only accurate map of Siberia extant. Maps of the Trans-Siberian Railway, the Murmansk and Archangel fronts, were also supplied. Fifteen intelligence officers, half of whom spoke Russian, were sent with General Graves.

The work of collecting data regarding foreign countries and their military plans was, necessarily, before the war, done through foreign attachés.

"These attachés," General Churchill informed the committee, "were generally selected chiefly because they were men who had the means with which to live abroad. Some of them proved excellent intelligence officers, but that was quite by accident. Now they are selected strictly for their qualifications. We have 33 attachés and 68 assistants. On the peace time basis, there should be 41 chiefs and assistants, and we are now demobilizing on that basis."

Daily and weekly summaries of the world situation are now being produced by the Intelligence Service. One issued last Saturday for the benefit of the army and navy "shows 11 wars now going on," according to General Churchill. He explained the difference in policies between the Department of Justice and the military intelligence division. The Department of Justice regarded crime as an individual affair, seeking to capture and prosecute individual criminals, while the military intelligence division considered it desirable to study in their largest relations such radical movements as Bolshevism, anarchy and others that were threatening the country.

YANKS HOLD PLACE BY BEATING BROWNS

Shore at His Best, but Wavers at End and Is Saved by Sturdy Support.

HOME COACHING AT FAULT

Score of 5 to 2 Might Have Been Increased by Better Base Running —Leviathan Crew Sees Game.

The Yanks gave the St. Louis Browns another lacing up at the Polo Grounds yesterday, Ernie Shore joining the ranks of successful pitchers by turning the Burke boys back by a score of 5 to 2. As the White Sox trimmed the Athletics at the last moment, the Yanks are still running a plucky second in the league race. The Cleveland Indians, who come here today to make trouble, are now right in the thick of the scramble because of their double victory in Boston. With three clubs galloping neck and neck, the American League race has the baseball fans scratching their heads.

Lanky Mr. Shore pitched the best game he has shown this season, and although he was hit lively in the last few innings, good support kept him out of trouble. Wellman, who did the flinging for St. Louis, was easy for the Yanks in the fourth, fifth, and sixth, when he retired in favor of Wright. Sisler, who is still sporting a black eye, got a couple of hits off Shore. If he can get two hits when his lamps are foggy, what would he do if his eyesight was normal?

While the Huggins clan got enough runs to win by a comfortable margin, they might have had a couple more if the traffic regulations at third has been more carefully arranged by Paddy O'Connor, who was coaching. Sam Vick was racing around third in the fifth on Peck's single when the coach tried to hold him up. The blockade put Sam out of his stride and he was out at the plate. Again in the sixth, when Derrill Pratt spanked a long hit to right which should have been held to a three-bagger, O'Connor sent the runner through to the plate only to be tagged out.

Home Team Plays with Vim.

There was confidence and snap to the work of the Yanks yesterday, which was plenty to offset the persistent aggressiveness which Manager Burke has injected into his hired men.

Much of the support afforded Shore was airtight. In the first inning, after Austin walked and went down on Gedeon's sacrifice, Pratt came to Shore's aid by making a couple of fine stops on hot smashes off the bats of Tobin and Sisler, retiring both at first in jig time.

Wellman met with little disturbing influence until the fourth inning, and in that stanza Roger Peckinpaugh brought delight to the Yankee fans by cudgeling a home run among the steerage passengers who sat in their shirt sleeves in the left field bleachers. There was more in store for Wellman, and in the fifth endeavor at the bat the Yank bats started to wave in triumph.

Pratt beat out a bounder to short, and went to second on Bodie's single to centre. Both runners took a big lead off the bases and Severeid made a quick throw to first to catch Bodie napping. The throw was wild and Pratt raced to third. Hannah deposited a Texas leaguer over back of third and Pratt registered. Shore laid down a pretty bunt and Wellman scooped up the ball and turned to make a force-out play at third, but lo and behold! Jimmy Austin was nowhere to be seen. He had wandered far away from his balliwick and Wellman then had to change his mind and throw Shore out at first. Vick rolled to Austin, who threw Bodie out at the plate. Peck came through with another hit and pushed Hannah over the plate. On this hit Vick also tried to score, but he was temporarily checked in his flight by O'Connor coaching at third and he was out at the plate, Tobin to Severeid.

Many Bingles Worry Wellman.

This sort of treatment had Wellman worrying. In the next inning he walked Baker, and Lewis flied to Austin. Pipp forced Baker at second and then Pratt slammed a mighty wallop into deep right field. Pipp scooted home and Pratt came tearing around like an express train. The ball was promptly relayed back, Smith to Gerber to Severeid, and Derrill died in a cloud of dust at the platter.

The Browns began to tickle Shore in their half of the sixth. Austin got an infield hit which bounced over Wellman's roof, and Gedeon whacked a hot single between first and second. As Austin was traveling that beat, the ball leaped up and smote him on the anatomy with such force that Jimmy took a large flop. Of course, he was out, and that was another lucky break for Shore. Tobin forced Gedeon at second and Sisler forced Tobin.

In the seventh the Browns went into the scoring business. Jacobson got an infield hit to short and went around to third on Smith's drive to right. Gerber sent Baby Doll Jake home with a single to left. Ray Demmitt was then inserted into the pastime to hit for Wellman and died at first. Austin flied to Lewis and that little troublesome inning was ended.

Wright succeeded Wellman in the box and Peckinpaugh nicked him for a single in the eighth. Baker drew a pass and Lewis sent both runners along with a sacrifice. Pipp ambled, and when Pratt forced Pipp at second Peck scored. With two men aboard the sacks, Ping Bodie endeavored to crash the ball out of the lot and almost did it, for his long fly was gobbled by Smith in right field.

Browns Make Dying Kick in Ninth.

There was another kick left in the Browns. In the ninth inning Gerber skied to Vick and Peck tossed Severeid out at first. Yale Sloan was pushed in to bat for Wright and jammed a single to right field. Austin got a pass, and Joe Gedeon, who has blossomed into a hitter since he left these parts, cracked a single to centre and scored Sloan. Shore was slipping, but pulled himself together, and Johnny Tobin ended the game when he lofted a fly to Bodie.

The rain began to fall in the ninth, but the dampness cooled off the gathering and all hands sat through the matinee until Bodie made his catch. The officers and enlisted men, who make up the crew of the Leviathan, attended the game and cheered the Yanks for every good play they made.

IN THE BASEBALL CALCIUM.

The Yanks will have a job on their hands today. Cleveland is here gunning for the lead.

Lee Fohl's troupe is striking fear into the American League pitchers this season. Johnston is second to Cobb in the league standing with over .350. Elmer Smith, Wambsganss, and Gardner are all hitting over 300. Tris Speaker is only hitting .260.

The Polo Ground crowd was jubilant when glances at the score board indicated that the Athletics would beat the White Sox. The fans had visions of Huggins's men going back into the lead. The White Sox victory spoiled that dream.

Wallie Pipp is making a desperate effort to break out of his batting slump. He got only a scratch single yesterday, but landed on base every time he came up. He got on the second time up through Austin's high throw, the third time up he forced Baker, and the next time up he walked.

The management of the Yankees is making a commendable attempt to stamp out betting at the Polo Grounds. Every day some of the chance-taking gentry are shown to the gate. Whenever there is a loud cheer for an error by the home club it comes from a gambler—a local renegade—who has his money on the visitors.

Muddy Ruel hasn't had a chance behind the bat for the Yanks in some time. Truck Hannah's timely hitting is keeping Ruel out of a job.

When Duffy Lewis was called out on strikes in the fourth he took exception to the decision of Umpire Ollie Chill. Ollie's answer was couched in terms as frigid as his name.

The increased interest in the welfare of the Yanks is noticeable at every game. The daily attendance is much larger than in former years, and if they keep up their present pace the club is in for its most successful season in Manhattan.

Derrill Pratt at second base is playing the ball of his career. There is more life and dash in his work than ever before, and his hitting power is growing daily. Peck and Bodie are also hitting at the proper moments.

The two pitchers who were on the mound yesterday, Wellman and Shore, are the first pair of twirlers opposed to each other lately in Harlem who do not resort to trick pitching. The game wasn't delayed every few minutes while the players and umpires examined the pellet looking for secret stuff.

If Washington will only oblige now by taking a couple of falls out of the White Sox, the Yanks may be in the lead again before the week is over.

CUBS TURN AT LAST AND DEFEAT GIANTS

Causey Suffers in First Victory of Season for Westerners Over League Leaders.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 17.—The Chicago Cubs finally turned on their oppressors, the Giants, today and scored what they considered a singular triumph by winning their first game of the season from the league leaders. This victory, which came in the final game of the series here, was the breaking point in a string of seven consecutive defeats, four in New York and three here. The score was 7 to 2.

The opportunity which the Cubs had so long been looking and hoping for came in the fifth inning today, and they made the most of it. They also gave Cecil Causey, one of McGraw's most dependable pitchers this year, a few very uncomfortable moments and hit him so hard that he was driven from the box. It was the first time this season that Causey had been defeated in such a convincing manner. A home run by Dode Paskert with two men on the bases was the final blow struck against the New York pitcher. It was the beginning of a bad inning, in which the Cubs scored five runs before they were retired and clinched the game. Pat Ragan, who came to the rescue, was little improvement over Causey, as the Cubs were in the midst of a batting bee.

The Giants started off like winners again today. In the second inning they scored two runs, their total for the day, by timely hitting, and as Causey was then going at his best it looked like the Giants would make a clean sweep of the series.

Kauff started the trouble in this inning after Doyle had been retired. Benny coaxed a pass from Alexander and Zimmerman promptly doubled, putting the outfielder on third base. Chase hit to Deal, who threw Kauff out at the plate, but Zimmerman moved up to third on the play and scored a moment later when McCarty singled. Chase took third on the hit and McCarty went to second on the throw to the plate. Causey walked, filling the bases, and Burns came through with a single which scored Chase.

Mitchell had some worries for Alexander, who is seldom effective against the Giants, but decided to leave him in the box. Alexander proved that the faith of his manager was well placed, for he pitched good ball thereafter and once in the lead was never in danger again.

Flack started the rally which swept the Cubs to victory in the fifth. After Alexander had been retired, Flack singled and Pick followed with a base hit. Causey was having some trouble and apparently had weakened. Merkle followed with a single, which scored Flack and advanced Pick. It was then that Paskert came up to the plate. He hooked one of Causey's deliveries and sent the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run, scoring Pick and Merkle ahead of him.

That sounded the doom of Causey. Ragan came to the mound. He had not had time to warm up and was soundly thrashed before he got the side out. Deal, the first man to face him, singled and Kilduff doubled, scoring Deal. O'Farrell finally brought the inning to a close with a fly to Burns.

The Cubs added a run in the seventh and another in the eighth. Ragan improved after the fatal fifth. But the Giants were unable to hit Alexander when hits counted. McGraw's team left for St. Louis tonight.

YALE NINE BEATS HARVARD.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 17.—Before a record-breaking crowd of 15,000 people, Yale defeated Harvard by the narrowest of margins today in the opening game of their annual series. The score was 2 to 1.

In attendance the throng was the biggest ever gathered in Connecticut to witness a match on the diamond. The affair surpassed as a spectacle all the previous gatherings ever seen at a Yale commencement. Fifty-six alumni classes, headed by thirty brass bands or drum corps paraded the field previous to the opening of the game, the younger classes bedecked in costumes sumptuous in coloring or eccentric in design.

Following the game, the jubilant procession blared a pandemonium of triumph parade from Yale field through the city streets to the campus where 4,000 alumni celebrated the victory in the first reunion banquet held in three years.

More sensational and spectacular baseball never greeted a Yale throng. One error, an overthrow of first base by Third Baseman Prann, was the sole misplay for both teams, but the Eli infielder atoned for his blunder in the ninth inning when his sizzling single to right field drove home Rabbit Sawyer with the winning run.

Aside from the almost faultless support given the pitchers, the twirling of Clark Selleck, Yale's third string pitcher, was the feature. Selleck held the Crimson batsmen helpless with the exception of the first inning, while Babe Felton, for Harvard, was extricated from hole after hole by his brilliant fielding support. He passed seven batsmen and made two wild pitches, but yielded only five singles. Yale's total of nine base runners stranded attests to the excellent fielding behind him.

Selleck yielded only four hits, and passed but two batsmen. After the first inning, only two hits were made off his delivery, and no Harvard batsman passed second base. From the first to the seventh he retired the Cantabrigians in order.

In the initial inning, after Selleck had fanned Hallowell, an incurve brushed Batsman McLeod, whose claim to being struck with the ball was allowed by Umpire Johnstone after a protest by Yale. Emmons's bounder was tossed to second by Prann, McLeod again getting a close decision in his favor.

Knowles fanned, and Frothingham skimmed a grounder to Murphy in deep right, McLeod scoring, while Frothingham was credited with a hit. Perkins singled to left, again filling the bases, but Bond failed to respond to duty's call, his grounder to Selleck allowing the Yale pitcher to run to the plate for a put out ahead of Emmons. This closed the inning and also ended Harvard's tampering with the delivery of the substitute pitcher, who had the call today because of his brilliant achievement in twirling the Elis to victory at Princeton last Saturday.

TIPPITY WITCHET TAKES RAINBOW

Handicap at Six Furlongs to Son of Broomstick in Fast Time—Four Choices Lose.

John Sanford's Tippity Witchet joined the comeback brigade with a wild hurrah yesterday when he resurrected his marvelous speed of two years ago and carried off the honors in the Rainbow Handicap, at six furlongs, that was the feature of the Jamaica card. The success of the son of Broomstick proved another hard blow to the talent, which had plunged on S. C. Hildreth's Lucullite as though Handicapper Vosburgh had made a rare mistake. Under ordinary circumstances Lucullite might have justified the confidence bestowed on him, but a slight stumble at the start, while Tippity Witchet was breaking, open-mouthed, for the barrier, had the favorite in trouble from the very first jump.

Some were inclined to blame the starter, while others insisted that Lyke's handling was responsible for Lucullite's tardiness. Whatever the reason, the fact remained that after Tippity Witchet and Lion d'Or had winged their way out in front and the field had settled down Lucullite was eight or ten lengths behind the leaders. Tippity Witchet sailed along the back stretch with a swift, easy motion that betokened perfect condition, and he opened a gap of three lengths at the end of the first quarter of a mile, with Lion d'Or leading Lucullite by about the same distance.

Once in his stride Lucullite began to close the gap, and he showed a truly remarkable piece of running in the next quarter of a mile, traveling much faster than Tippity Witchet, which was restrained a little by Davies after his brilliant opening flight. Rounding the turn Lucullite made a great impression on the spectators as he drew nearer and nearer to the leaders, until, as he approached the stretch, he was only three lengths behind Tippity Witchet, with Lion d'Or still splitting the pair.

This grand exhibition of sprinting aroused the backers of Lucullite to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and as he passed Lion d'Or, an eighth of a mile from home, there were wild exhortations for Lyke to ride him home and overtake the nimble Tippity Witchet. The effort had tired Lucullite somewhat and, though he struggled gamely, he never had a chance to get close enough to be dangerous, as Davies let out a link on Tippity Witchet, which sprang away like a frightened deer and then was eased slightly at the finish to score by a margin of a length and a half. Tippity Witchet's time of 1:11 4-5 equaled the track record, which is held by Lucullite, and there was much discussion as to how fast Lucullite ran the distance after his bad break. Lion d'Or hung on well and was beaten only a length and a half for the place.

The defeat of Lucullite was but one of many surprising incidents, as favorites were toppled over with great regularity, four of the six choices being beaten. The day started well for the backers, as James W. McClelland served up a hot favorite in Phantom Fair, a son of Peter Quince, which was supported so strongly that he closed an odds on choice for the opening scramble for two-year-olds at five furlongs. Phantom Fair showed a flash of the speed that made his sire famous, and in the first quarter of a mile dashed into a lead of five lengths that left the only interest in the struggle for second place. This was a nip and tuck affair through the stretch with T. H. Wilson's Tattle nosing out R. L. Gerry's Indiscretion, the extreme outsider.

O. W. Foreman's King Herold was the first to disappoint the talent. He started the second race at six furlongs with a burst of speed that quickly earned him a lead of three lengths. Meantime B. Seitas's Elected II. had been pulled back from the early pace, but on turning into the stretch he closed on the favorite to sweep by him at the eighth pole and win easily by three lengths.

Waiting tactics also led to the undoing of another favorite in the third event at a mile and seventy yards. Lyke, on Albert A., the public choice, went out for a speed duel with Our Nephew, while the Woodland Stock Farm's Benevolent was apparently out of the running. The leaders ran each other into the ground by the time they reached the stretch, and Benevolent ran over them to win by three lengths from Our Nephew, which beat Albert A. by a neck.

MATCHES IN WOMEN'S NATIONAL TENNIS TITLE TOURNEY NARROW FIELD TO PLAYERS OF NOTE

MISS ZINDERSTEIN BEATS MISS BALLIN

MISS GOSS AN EASY VICTOR

Gets Strokes Working Well and Defeats Mrs. Huff—Mrs. Wightman and Miss Cassel Win.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—The rapid elimination of the weaker players in the opening rounds of the women's national tennis championship brought today's matches at St. Martin's up to a really high standard, with the better known contenders steadily forging ahead. Miss Marion Zinderstein of Boston received her first effective opposition from Miss Florence Ballin of New York, who, after losing the opening set at 6—1, ran into a lead of 5—4 in the second, and succumbed only after a bitter struggle by the score of 8—6.

The heat seemed to affect the West Side star more than her Hub rival, and it was lack of endurance that eventually accounted for her defeat. As long as her strength lasted, Miss Ballin traded drive for drive with the winner, and it was at no stage a one-sided contest.

Miss Walsh Puts Up Fight.

Mrs. George W. Wightman also had no easy time in disposing of Miss Phyllis Walsh of Philadelphia, although the latter was able to register only two games in each set. The local star made good use of her reach, and succeeded in getting many of the Bostonian's well-placed shots, even when a return was impossible. Mrs. Wightman's varied assortment of strokes, however, kept her always in the lead, and she gave the loser no opportunity for a sustained rally.

Miss Clare Cassel's morning victory over Mrs. De Forest Candee was surprisingly one-sided, the sets going at 6—2, 6—1, with the Pennsylvania State champion in the best form she has shown this season. Mrs. Candee started with the evident determination to rush the net, but Miss Cassel's cool, well-placed driving quickly upset these tactics.

Unable to win by volleying, Mrs. Candee tried to match her backcourt game with that of the recent Ardsley winner, but here she was even less successful. Miss Cassel combined speed with accuracy and also used her head consistently, a combination which proved irresistible. She meets Miss Mary Thayer in the third round tomorrow.

Miss Goss at Top of Game.

Miss Eleanor Goss of New York also displayed an impressive game in her victory over Mrs. M. B. Huff, one of Philadelphia's strongest players. After dropping three games in the first set she found the range of the court and whipped over her stinging drives for a quick finish to the tune of 6—1.

Tomorrow's big singles match will bring Miss Goss against Mrs. Wightman, and in view of the stirring battle which these two recently had in the finals of the Metropolitan championship, a large gallery will be on hand to see if the Bostonian can repeat her sensational victory.

The youngsters entered in the senior event fell by the wayside today, the brilliant Miss Elizabeth Warren, Richmond's 16-year-old prodigy, bowing to the more mature experience of Miss Anne Townsend at 6—2, 6—3. While Miss Katherine Gardner fell before the steady driving of Miss Marie Wagner, although putting up a gallant fight in running the sets to 6—2, 6—3.

Miss Eleanora Sears defeated her fellow Bostonian Mrs. T. H. Cabot in handy fashion at 6—1, 6—2, while Mrs. Gilbert Harvey, another local star, advanced by the default of Mrs. S. Fullerton Weaver.

Mrs. Le Roy Weakens at End.

The afternoon's play began with an upset in the singles, Miss Anne Townsend of the Merion Cricket Club defeating Mrs. Robert Leroy in a heartbreaking match, which ran to three sets, 3—6, 9—7, 6—1.

The New York base line expert began like an easy winner, making few errors and cutting the corners with her deep, fast drives, but in the second set she began to tire and the dependable steadiness of her game gradually deserted her. Several times she still seemed to have the match within her grasp, but when the set eluded her at 9—7 she wilted visibly, whereas Mrs. Townsend gathered strength and confidence with every stroke. The rubber went with surprising quickness, Mrs. Leroy taking only one game, the winner thus becomes the first entry to secure a fourth-round bracket.

The women's doubles and mixed doubles began this afternoon, with a number of strong combinations in the draw. Several of the most prominent teams took the courts at once, Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Clare Cassel pleasing the gallery with a clean-cut victory over Mrs. L. G. Morris and Mrs. Nathaniel Niles at 6—2, 6—1. The winners not only displayed individual skill, but gave an edifying exhibition of intelligent teamwork.

Champions Win Easy Match.

The national doubles champion, Miss Eleanor Goss, and Miss Marion Zinderstein found little opposition in Mrs. E. C. Duble and Mrs. Alex Chisholm, romping through two sets without the loss of a game.

When Miss Mollа Bjurstedt and Mrs. S. F. Weaver appeared on the grand stand court, opposing Mrs. Rawson Wood and Mrs. Robert Leroy, the largest crowd of the day was on hand ready for some spectacular rallies. Although the national champion and her partner won in straight sets, 6—3, 6—3, this match fully came up to expectations and there was a constant succession of brilliant shots on both sides. Miss Bjurstedt generally stayed back and let Mrs. Weaver do the volleying, while the other team divided the court similarly, with Mrs. Wood at the net and Mrs. Leroy on the back line.

Mrs. Wightman and Miss Eleanora Sears, the redoubtable Boston pair, were among the other winning contenders in the doubles, their victory coming rather easily in straight sets over the youngsters Miss Peggy Ferguson and Miss Virginia Carpenter.

TILDEN WINS NET TITLE.

Captures Pennsylvania Championship by Defeating Johnson.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—William T. Tilden of the Germantown Cricket Club again won the tennis championship of Pennsylvania on the course of the Merion Cricket Club this afternoon, defeating Wallace Johnson in the final round, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3, 6—8, and 6—2.

The loser played throughout the match at the top of his form, his top strokes working with deadly effect on the turf and having Tilden in constant difficulty. During the fourth set it seemed that Tilden would close out the victory without further efforts, but Johnson rallied strongly, as in the second session, and squared the match by the most stubborn defensive play. Tilden was forced to use all the shots in his repertoire to get a winning edge in the rubber, and only a streak of sustained brilliancy carried him through successfully. The doubles event was not completed, the finalists being Tilden and Carl Fisher and Johnson and Craig Biddle.

THROCKMORTON OUT OF TENNIS TOURNEY

Return of Old Injury Disables Player While Well on Road to Capture Brooklyn Title.

The return of an old injury to his right arm caused the elimination of Harold Throckmorton from further contention in the Brooklyn championship tennis tournament when play in the fixture was resumed yesterday on the courts of the Terrace Club. Throckmorton was well on the road to the fourth round when, as a result of a hard running forehand stroke in the deep court in his match against H. Oakley, the Borough Hall contender, wrenched his arm in such a way as to revive pain from an old injury. The accident compelled Throckmorton to retire from the court.

Throckmorton had taken the first set from Oakley without serious opposition. He was the master throughout and turned loose a variety of net attack which overwhelmed Oakley's comparatively weak efforts. In the second set Throckmorton had run the count up to 5—2, and 40 points to 15, within one point of a straight-set victory over his rival, when the accident befell him. The pain in his arm caused Throckmorton to concede the match, automatically withdrawing from the tournament just when it seemed inevitable he would take his third round match.

Throckmorton had previously been through a stiff match in the second round. His rival was J. W. Anderson, who carried Throckmorton to extra games before losing in straight sets. The scores were 8—6, 7—5. Throckmorton drew a bye in the first round.

Further evidence of the interest in the tournament among Brooklyn's men, juniors and boys, was furnished in the second day's play. A total of forty-nine matches were scheduled, the majority of them being fought on the courts, for, while defaults were more numerous than on the opening day, still the number was held to a minimum in comparison with other tournaments. In the men's tournament thirty-four matches were decided; in the juniors' title competition there were ten, and in the boys' fifteen.

Frank T. Anderson advanced to the round before the semi-final and was the most successful member of this tennis family. Frank vanquished G. Groesbeck in his third round match by 6—4, 6—4, and in the fourth round disposed of Robert Shearer by 6—4, 6—3. In neither match was the youthful tennis player forced to extend himself to his limit. Papa Fred Anderson and Fred, Junior, clashed in the second round, after both had gone through the first flight by grace of defaults, the senior member of the family advancing at the expense of B. Landeau, while Fred, Junior, was favored by W. A. Hartye. In the second round the play developed into a family quarrel, which ended in favor of the junior Fred after three hotly contested sets. The scores were 6—3, 3—6, 6—1.

The southpaw strokes of S. Howard Voshell landed the former indoor champion in the fourth round. Voshell made his first effort in the third round, for he went sailing through the second flight on a default from P. B. Keen. In the third round Voshell drew as his opponent Louis B. Bailey, Jr., who went down in defeat by 6—1, 6—2. Allen Behr also advanced through the third round, as did S. Kashio, the Japanese rival of Kumagae.

Cecil Donaldson advanced to the fourth round in the struggle for the junior title, vanquishing S. Adelstein by 6—1, 6—0, in the second round, and Teddy Le Gros by 7—5, 6—2 in the third flight. In the first round Donaldson was aided by a default.

T. Van Kuyck attracted attention in the chase for the boys' title by gaining the final round. Van Kuyck passed the second round on a default from L. B. Bailey, Jr., and in his third round match defeated M. Keller by 6—3, 6—2.

WESTERN POLO TEAM WINS.

Santa Barbara Riders Easily Beat Meadowbrook.

Special to The New York Times.

MEADOWBROOK, L. I., June 17.—Santa Barbara's polo team, composed of G. C. Moore, William Tevis, Jr., A. Galen, and E. Boeseke, Jr., with a team handicap of nine goals, defeated the Meadowbrook Magpies this afternoon on the International Field at Meadowbrook by a net score of 14½ goals to 3½.

The Long Islanders, although they conceded three goals' handicap to the Californians, were slight favorites before play started. The coast team, however, did not play a defensive game as anticipated, but started in with such aggressive and fast team work that the Meadowbrooks were at times carried almost off their feet by the fast and effective combinations of the winners.

The Western riders appeared always on the ball at the necessary time. They seldom missed and were rarely off in direction. Playing on an exceptionally fast field, the California team had the additional speed asset of being finely mounted on thoroughbred coast ponies.

In the second period, during a lively melee, Galen, the pick of the stable of William Tevis, was struck by a mallet, which caused the fracture of a leg. The pony, which Mr. Tevis refused $2,000 for before the commencement of the match. After some delay play was resumed.

The fifteenth goal was the most sensational of the match. Messrs. Cowdin and Loew were alternating in carrying the ball to Meadowbrook territory, when Boeseke shot through the Long Island players at the goal posts, turned the ball, and with the field stringing in the rear made a beautiful drive and scored his goal at a most difficult angle. Tevis made a somewhat similar play in the last period. Cowdin did the best all-round work for Meadowbrook.

DEMPSEY'S WEIGHT SURPRISES FRIENDS

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 17.—Jack Dempsey, matched to meet Jess Willard for the heavyweight championship here July 4, gave his admirers their biggest surprise today when he weighed himself on a set of tested scales and tipped the beam at exactly 201 pounds. Dempsey was clad only in a swimming suit and boxing shoes, which weighed about a pound.

The weighing was done publicly after a dinner at the challenger's camp, attended by Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest; Mayor Schreiber, C. F. Wall, Director of Public Safety; numerous sporting celebrities, and newspaper men. Even Jack Kearns, manager of the challenger, looked astonished when the beam passed over the 200 mark. He announced yesterday Dempsey would scale about 196 pounds.

The challenger's poundage was considerable of a jolt to admirers of Willard, who had claimed that Dempsey's hard work under a scorching sun would likely to burn him out and send him into the ring against the champion around 180 pounds.

Dempsey appeared to be in perfect condition when he jumped on the scales. There was not an ounce of surplus flesh on his body, which has been burned to a copper color as a result of weeks of exposure to the sun.

Willard boxed eleven three-minute rounds today, one short of the distance he will have to travel if he and Dempsey go the limit in the Fourth of July engagement. Joe Chip, a middleweight of New Castle, Penn., and a brother of George Chip, once middleweight champion, joined Willard's staff of sparring partners and furnished the champion with the most interesting work of the afternoon.

Chip is fast, and speeded up Willard's work to the delight of the big crowd. Willard boxed three rounds with Jack Hempel, two with Chip, three with Jack Heinen, and three with Walter Monahan. He used fourteen-ounce gloves instead of ten-ounce ones to save his sparring partners, who are nursing puffed lips and bruises as a result of the mauling they received yesterday.

HOOFBEATS OF THE RACERS

How easy it is to drop in the social thoroughbred scale was illustrated yesterday when G. W. Foreman's King Herod was entered up be sold for $700. This good looking son of Colin was led into the sales ring at Saratoga two years ago and it was announced that there was a reserve bid of $20,000 placed on him.

A. H. Diaz, the Cuban sportsman who sent a string of horses to race here, will not have an opportunity to see his horses run as he will be detained in Cuba by important business interests. Trainer McDaniel has the candidates in fine condition and two of the three sent to the post have been placed in the money.

The two-year-olds belonging to Harry Payne Whitney which were raced successfully in Maryland are in training again and will shortly be seen in competition. The youngsters caught cold on their way here from Maryland and it is only in the last few days that they have been able to resume gallops.

Just how highly Sir Barton is rated by Handicapper Vosburgh is shown in the weights just announced for the Stuyvesant Handicap for three-year-olds which is set for decision tomorrow. Sir Barton is asked to carry 135 pounds over the mile route, with Purchase, his nearest rival weighted at 128. Dunboyne, 126; Eternal, 125; Billy Kelly, 124, and Sweep On, 124, are the weights allotted to the other cracks.

A bouquet was auctioned in the clubhouse at Jamaica yesterday for the benefit of the Queens County hospitals. There was some lively bidding for the nosegay, and $250 was realised for the charity.

Johnny Loftus did not have a mount yesterday and his followers were all at sea. Loke's effort to take his place was a flat failure, as he rode two favorites to defeat and neither was handled with efficiency.

HARVARD AND YALE CREWS ARE ON EDGE

Long-Distance Trials Are Over, but Oarsmen Indulge in Light Spins on the Thames.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 17.—Long distance speed trials are over for Yale and Harvard's crews, and the respective coaches are striving hard to keep the oarsmen fit for the three races next Friday.

There are no signs of illness in either camp and the 'Varsity eights are holding their positions just the same as they were three weeks ago. The second 'Varsity and freshman boats have had shakeups galore through illness, failure in studies, and other reasons, but there has been good substitute stock on hand to select from and neither Coaches Haines nor Abbott seems to be worried in the least.

Harvard's freshman and second 'Varsity crews were first to put their shells overboard tonight, starting downstream about 6 o'clock, the usual hour, and followed by the 'Varsity crew a half hour later.

Yale's freshman and combination eights were on the course soon after the Crimson men put in an appearance, the Cambridge oarsmen manoeuvring off the submarine base while the rivals monopolised the upper end of the course.

Yale's first and second 'Varsity crews were the last to leave their boathouse and Coach Abbott sent them upstream on time, the 'Varsity rowing a mile and the second crew being tested for half that distance. The time was not given out, the coach stating that conditions were bad and time made was rather slow.

All of Harvard's squad "dolled up" in their best navy uniforms this afternoon and paid their Yale rivals a visit. After an hour's social chat, the visitors returned to Red Top just in time to be greeted with the sad news that Yale won the baseball game at New Haven.

The finish flag that marked the end of the course between the old and new railroad bridge has been moved northward about 150 feet, so that spectators on yachts and along the river banks and passengers on the observation train in particular can have an unobstructed view of the oarsmen when the four-mile struggle ends. Payne Whitney of Yale's rowing committee inspected the finish flag in its new location this morning and approved of the change.

The cars making up the observation train on the New Haven road are in readiness at Norwich and present an unusually attractive appearance. This year they are painted white with black trimmings.

Printers of Quotations Will Satisfy Themselves as to the Status of Issues.

INVESTIGATION GOES ON

Dooling Gathers Information Concerning Certain Companies Operating Here.

The activities of Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling, in charge of the investigation into oil stock frauds, were confined yesterday to gathering information regarding certain companies that have sold their stock in New York. Incidentally he continued to receive complaints from those who bought stock and were left to hold the bag. The story of the operations of certain brokers and promoters is ever the same. They organize companies for the development of properties that hold enough promise to justify a prospectus, then unload the stock on the unsuspecting and get out, leaving the company to get into financial difficulties or die some other kind of death.

Mr. Dooling had a conference at his office yesterday with Frank Bennett, of the Bennett Press, and Henry P. Gibson, of the Curb Quotation Company, both of whom get out stock lists and prices. He said that they both agreed to send to the offices of companies whose stock is listed questionnaires regarding their companies, whether stock offered is treasury or promotion stock, and other information tending to show the legitimacy of their enterprises.

"I talked to both and they came to our view that no legitimate company or officer of a legitimate company would refuse to let the light of public inquiry be turned upon their properties," said Mr. Dooling. "If they are unwilling to do this their stock should be stricken from the lists and regarded with suspicion by all investors."

Among the complaints received yesterday was one from a nurse in the employ of the city, who was persuaded to give up $112 for stock in a zinc mining company with a non-productive mine in this State. She never received a penny in return for the money invested. In exhibiting the artistic certificate of stock Mr. Dooling pointed out that the promoters had stamped in small type in one corner that the stock was not to be disposed of by the purchaser before a certain date. This, he said, was to prevent any attempt to unload while they were engaged in rigging the market.

WANTS PERSHING'S VIEWS.

Kahn Hopes Leaders Will Testify on Army Reorganization.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Representative Julius Kahn, Chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, who went abroad to study military conditions, said today that the most important thing before the committee, now that the Army Appropriation bill had passed the House, was the careful consideration of plans to reorganize the Army.

"The question of Army reorganization," said Mr. Kahn, "is one that should be considered as soon as possible, in order that the necessary legislation can be enacted by Congress. It should be gotten out of the way before the next annual appropriation bill is taken up for consideration. The two subjects should be treated separately.

"It is my earnest hope to be able to commence hearings on an army reorganization bill not later than the beginning of August. By that time I hope that many of the officers who participated in the world war in Europe will have returned to the United States. These officers with their practical experience should be called upon to express their views to the committee.

"I hope that we will be able to hear the testimony of General Pershing, Lieutenant Generals Liggett and Bullard, Major Generals Dickman, Harbord, Rhodes, and other officers who performed valiant services for our country in the various activities of the military establishment. I shall be glad to ask army reserve officers and National Guard officers to give us the benefit of their counsel. It will be proper also to hear from the enlisted men when we prepare to formulate the new legislation. I hope to have the hearings as full and complete as time will permit."

GARDENER WHIPS CROKER.

Son of Former Tammany Leader in Fight with Employe.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., June 17.—Richard Croker, Jr., son of Richard Croker, the former Tammany leader, and Patrick B. Foy, a gardener, fought with their fists here last night to settle an argument over money. The bout was refereed by a Port Chester lawyer. Mrs. Croker, after attempting to prevent the bout, sat back in an automobile, an unwilling witness.

The fight lasted twenty minutes, at the end of which Mr. Croker, with the gardener holding him to the ground, was declared accepted. More than one hundred spectators accepted the official decision. The fight took place in a field on the outskirts of East Port Chester, just over the Connecticut line.

Foy was employed by Croker as Superintendent of his country estate. Declaring that his employer owed him money, Foy quit the job and sued for $150. Foy won a verdict for $95. Croker agreed to meet Foy in the office of a lawyer last night and pay up. An argument followed over a remark alleged to have been made by Foy, and the men decided to cross the line to Connecticut to settle their difficulties.

YORK'S PASTOR REPENTS.

Writes That He Is Sorry He Attended Vaudeville Show.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 17.—Rev. R. C. Pile, Sergeant Alvin York's pastor at Pall Mall, in a letter received here expresses appreciation of the treatment accorded him during his visit to Nashville, but apologizes for being seen at a vaudeville show which he was prevailed on to attend. "It was entirely different from what I expected," he says.

"I am sure my friends meant well, but that was no place for Pastor Pile. I am very sorry I was there and have deeply repented of same.

"I hope to see you all again soon, and if you will pay me a visit I will try to make it pleasant for you. I can't entertain you as highly as you did us, but will treat you nice.

"You may say for me I can't find time to answer all my letters but will answer all I can."

Pastor Pile thanks the people of Nashville for their kindness to the York party, and declares that he is sure he will never forget it.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

Seven Pistols vs a Bald Plot.

WHO DID IT? A farce in three acts, by Stephen Gardner Champlin. At the Belmont Theatre.

Absolom	Roy Briant
Robert Greyson	V. L. Granville
Mary O'Hare	Millie Freeman
Mildred Greyson	Mary Moore
Ethel Tate	Beulah Peynter
Foster Manson	J. Palmer Collins
Frederick Murdock	Francis Morey
Jimmy Norton	Robert Bentley
Agnes Howard	Ernestine Gordon
Jerry Mac Comber	Daniel Jarrett
Nate Hendricks	Arthur C. Morris
Brown	Albert Dexter
Inspector Clancey	Peter M. Lang

If imitation is the sincerest flattery, "Seven Keys to Baldpate" is the recipient of one more bouquet. "Who Did It," (which was finally produced last night at the Belmont after repeated migrations and postponements,) is a mystery melodrama of the Cohan model with pistols substituted for keys, and a particularly bald and arid style of writing in place of the dexterity of the Cohan-Biggers composition.

When the murder is committed the audience sees two pistols and hears them bark. Under examination by the District Attorney and the Police Inspector five more guns materialize, the owner of each of which is in turn suspected. And meantime the corpse, which has been laid on the sofa, disappears and leaves no trace. Eventually it appears that the situation has been framed by a wife who wishes to convince her husband that she is actress enough to go on the stage, and has called to her aid a number of Broadway professionals.

In last night's performance, the casting was not particularly happy. The claims of this lady wife still remain to be proved. But the chief dereliction was on the part of the playwright. A cleverly intricate idea was handled so clumsily as to divest the plot of all credibility and the action of all suspense. Cruder dialogue and characterization have seldom been offered to a metropolitan audience.

At first the audience was politely restrained, but, as pistol after pistol materialized its risibilities got the upper hand, and when the well-riddled corpse disappeared under the nose of the Inspector, hysterics became imminent. As Artemus Ward would have said, it was 2 mutch—too much by five pistols and an ambulating corpse. Our audiences have learned to rejoice in laughing at themselves; but they have not yet learned to find permanent satisfaction in laughing down an author.

Eventually it transpired that some at least of the laughs were intended. But it was too late to save the play. A complete rewriting and recasting might save it, for the basic idea is fresh enough, as such ideas go. But nothing short of a hard Summer's work by an expert play doctor will rescue "Who Did It" from the limbo of forgotten things.

DUCHESS GETS A DIVORCE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—The Duchess of Westminster today obtained her decree of divorce. The case was undefended by the Duke.

The main part of the proceedings consisted in establishing that desertion in the legal sense of the term had preceded the separation, arrangements made in 1913.

No name of the correspondent was mentioned when proof was presented that the Duke had been joined at a Brighton hotel by a woman who arrived from London by a late after-theatre train.

The name registered on the hotel list by the woman concerned was passed up to the Judge, but nothing was said in court to confirm or controvert the common report that she was one of the most brilliant of English musical comedy stars.

LONDON, June 17.—In the divorce hearing of the Duchess of Westminster the counsel for the Duke said a simple denial to the charges had been entered originally, but that upon trial the case had not been contested.

There we no sensational developments at the trial, although a large crowd was present anticipating startling testimony.

The Duchess and her attorney confined themselves in outlining the married life of the couple, which, while not altogether happy up to 1909, had not been marred by any serious quarrel. At that time, however, there was a breach in their marital relations, and in 1913, it was testified, the Duke left his wife.

He wrote her, signing the letter "Ben d'Or," the name of a famous race horse, it was said, and in this letter he stated that their mode of living at that time was impossible, and he offered to give her an allowance of £13,000 ($65,000) a year. This offer the Duchess declined. She said she would do nothing that might reflect upon her position as the Duke's wife and the mother of his children. The Duke, however, expressed a determination that the Duchess should not live either at Eton Hall or at Grosvenor House, their residences.

Eventually the Duke's actions were watched, according to the testimony, and it was alleged evidence had been obtained concerning a meeting with a woman whose name was not given in court.

The Duchess of Westminster was formerly Constance Edwina, daughter of Colonel William Cornwallis-West. She and her husband signed a separation agreement in 1914. They were married in 1901 and have two children. The Duke of Westminster served in Egypt in 1915 and won the D. S. O.

TO MOBILIZE GUARDSMEN.

Mobilization of all units of Brooklyn National Guardsmen except the Thirteenth Coast Artillery and Squadron C, First Cavalry, was ordered yesterday by Brig. Gen. Robb. At the Twenty-third Regiment Armory it was said the hour for the assemblage to be called will be 6 o'clock tomorrow night.

Military authorities said the mobilization is a test, and has nothing to do with the trouble on the Mexican border. It is desired to see how rapidly the men can be assembled in case of local danger and to familiarize the troops with guard duty at vital points, such as railroads, power plants and public buildings where danger might threaten. The men will use automobiles to get to their stations in the quickest possible time.

GEST GIVES PLANS FOR 'APHRODITE'

Century Also to See "Mecca"—"Adam and Eva" and a Passion Play Elsewhere.

14 NEW PRODUCTIONS TOLD

Fourteen prospective theatrical productions, including several spectacles to be staged on a large scale, were announced yesterday by F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest for presentation during the coming season. Chief among these will be the production, already announced, of "Aphrodite" at the Century.

"Aphrodite" is a spectacle of ancient Egypt, made from the novel of Pierre Louys, and was seen in Paris prior to the war. It will be produced at the Century Theatre, according to the present plan, on Saturday, Nov. 1, with a cast of more than 300 persons. It will be staged by E. Lyall Swete, who staged "Chu Chin Chow" in this country, and the costumes are being designed by Percy Anderson and Leon Bakst.

Half a dozen or more offerings are being prepared for production here early in the season. "Adam and Eva," a comedy by Guy Bolton and George Middleton, will begin an engagement at the Longacre Theatre during the week of Aug. 18. "The Light of the World" is a drama by the same authors, based upon a French play by Pierre Sasson, which has the Passion Play as its background. It will also be presented here early in the season.

"Welcome Home," a comedy by Mr. Bolton and Frank Mandel, deals with the returning soldier, and will be another early offering. In the cast of this piece are Ralph Morgan, William E. Meehan, Purnell Pratt, Percy Helton, Harry Harwood, Robert McWade, James Gleason, Sue MacManamy, Beatrice Noyes, Marjorie Poir, Helen Barnes, and Amy Ongley.

The entire London production of an English melodrama, entitled "The Luck of the Navy," written by Mrs. Clifford Mills, will be brought over in September, and will be seen at the Manhattan Opera House early in October. The English company, headed by Percy Hutchinson, will be imported.

The seventh of the Princess Theatre musical comedies, now in course of preparation, will be produced at that house early in the season. "The Cave Girl," a comedy by George Middleton, which was originally produced by Cohan & Harris, has been acquired by Comstock & Gest and will be reproduced in revised form. It is being rewritten by Mr. Middleton and Guy Bolton.

Mr. Bolton is also the author, with P. G. Wodehouse, of "See You Later," a musical comedy which will be presented at the Casino Theatre in August. Jean Schwartz has written the music. "The Checker-Board," a comedy by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, also will be produced.

Two musical plays will be imported from Paris—"Phi Phi" and "Bal Tabarin." The former has been running at the Theatre des Bouffes Parisiens for more than a year, and the latter has been playing at the Cluny.

Additional musical plays of American origin will be made from the old farces "Brewster's Millions" and "The Dictator," the latter the play in which William Collier appeared. Harry Fox will be seen in the musical version of "Brewster's Millions."

"Mecca," Oscar Asche's successor to "Chu Chin Chow," will have its world premiere at the Century Theatre in March, following the run of "Aphrodite." Mr. Asche will come from London to stage the production and will present it later in England.

Practically a new production of "Chu Chin Chow," recostumed, will be seen at the Century in the early Fall, preceding "Aphrodite." Lionel Braham will have the title rôle, and Marjorie Wood, Richie Ling, and Eugene Cowles will be others in the cast.

"The Wanderer" will be continued on tour, entering its fourth season, and "Experience" will be represented by two companies in its sixth season.

"Oh, Look!" will be continued, with the Dolly sisters in the cast, and there will be two companies each of "Leave It to Jane," "Oh, Boy!" "Oh, Lady, Lady!" and "Oh, My Dear!"

DISAGREE IN MURDER TRIAL.

Negro Woman Was Charged with Hiring Boys to Kill a Girl.

After deliberating for five hours and forty minutes, from 5 P. M. until 9:40 o'clock last night, the jury in the case of Mrs. Hattie Dixon, a negress, 36 years old, of 20 West 137th Street, on trial in the Criminal Branch of the Bronx County Supreme Court on a charge of murder, reported to Justice Richard H. Mitchell that they had been unable to agree upon a verdict. The jury was discharged by Justice Mitchell and District Attorney Martin announced that Mrs. Nixon would again be placed on trial.

Mrs. Dixon's indictment grew out of the death of Margaret Morton, also a negress, an 18-year-old orphan who resided with the defendant and whose body was found in a vacant lot in the Bronx on Nov. 16, 1918. Mrs. Dixon's son, Theodore Dixon, 17 years old, was convicted of murder in the first degree for causing the girl's death.

The principal witness against Mrs. Dixon was Theodore Scott, also a negro, 17 years old, of 664 Lenox Avenue, also under indictment on a charge of murder, whose testimony at her son's trial was mainly responsible for his conviction. Scott turned State's evidence and testified both at the trial of Mrs. Dixon and that of her son that he and young Dixon killed the girl. Scott further testified that Mrs. Dixon had promised to pay him and her son $100 each if they would kill the girl, the money to be paid from an insurance policy of $500 she carried on the girl's life.

MUSIC

Samuel Gardner, the violinist, will conduct his composition, "From the Canebrake," with E. F. Goldman's band, at Columbia University, on Friday evening.

Mischa Elman, although his season for recitals has ended, has volunteered to play at the Brooklyn Academy on Saturday for the benefit of the Israel Hospital of Brooklyn.

WRECKED AUTO SAVES LIFE.

Hit by Train, Body of Car Is Crushed Into Coat of Mail About Driver.

LOCUST VALLEY, L. I., June 17.—Andrew Hunt, steward of the Piping Rock Country Club, escaped injury yesterday when a freight train of the Long Island Railroad wrecked his automobile and rolled it over and over along the tracks for fifty feet. Hunt's only injury was a crushed straw hat. Even his eye-glasses were not knocked off, although he was rolled along amid the wreckage of his car.

Hunt had driven to Locust Valley in one of the club's cars, and, returning, was crossing the railroad tracks near the Nassau Club when his engine stalled. At that moment a fast freight appeared. Before Hunt could jump to safety the locomotive struck his machine, demolishing it. The body of the car was crushed in such a way that it encircled Hunt and acted like a coat of mail, protecting him from even a scratch. When the train crew ran forward, expecting to find Hunt's badly mangled body, they discovered him considering his straw hat, which had been jammed down over his head, and was out of shape.

RECEIVES DEATH SENTENCE.

Brooklyn Gunman to be Executed for Murdering Woman.

Michael Casalino of 146 Classon Street, Brooklyn, was sentenced yesterday by Justice Callaghan in the Queens County Supreme Court at Long Island City to be executed at Sing Sing in the week beginning July 27. This was the first time in twenty-two years that a convicted man in Queens was sentenced to death. He was found guilty on Saturday of having killed Mrs. Helen Holbach, wife of a hotel proprietor at South Ozone Park, on Jan. 20 last, when with several Italian gunmen he attempted to rob Joseph Holbach, the hotel owner. The latter was fatally injured in a fight with the gunmen. Five others are in jail in Long Island City indicted for murder in the first degree for participation in the affair.

Two of the indicted men, Michael Chiusano and Tony Bruno, turned State's evidence at the trial of Casalino. When asked by Justice Callaghan if he had anything to say Casalino said that the two men had since his conviction told him that they did not expect that he would be sentenced to death, and that they had falsified in their testimony.

Casalino said farewell to his young wife, Rosa Casalino, in the jail. He was later taken to Sing Sing by Under Sheriff William Desmond and several Deputy Sheriffs.

DR. BUTLER TO TOUR WEST.

Will Visit Nation's Playgrounds as Head of Parks Association.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, has left for an extended trip to the Pacific Coast, it was announced yesterday. He will visit the national parks of the West as an officer of the National Parks Association, recently organized to encourage the popular study of the national playgrounds. In this movement, it was declared, Columbia had taken the leadership among American universities by the establishment of courses in both Summer and Fall sessions.

Dr. Butler, who has been elected Vice President of the newly formed organization, in association with other leading Americans, is said to take a keen interest in the campaign to popularize the park areas of the country. He will first go to the Bohemian Club Grove in California and later to some of the national parks.

Columbia's course in the Summer school this session will deal with a study of the western half of the United States, laying special emphasis upon the interpretation of the country's scenery. This is one of a large group of courses in geology and physical geography which forms part of the Columbia Summer School curriculum. More than 400 instructors drawn from the faculties of the leading universities and colleges will have charge of the instruction.

Burn Wheat to Halt Army Worm.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 17.—Wheat and grain fields in Indiana were being burned today by farmers in an effort to stop the ravages of the "army worm," which has appeared in great numbers in various sections of the State, especially the east central portion. Gangs of fifty to one hundred men have been working together for several days in some places, but their efforts to poison and stop the worms by plowing have, it is said, had little result. No estimate of the loss is available today, but near Muncie alone it is said to exceed $50,000.

State Gets Bunker Hill Monument.

BOSTON, June 17—The Bunker Hill Monument Association voted today to convey to the State ownership of the monument on the site of the Battle of Bunker Hill. The association accepted an act of the Legislature enabling the State to receive the granite shaft and surrounding plot of land.

BOLD THIEVES FAIL IN TWO ROBBERIES

BRAVE BOY FOILS CROOKS

An attempted theft of about $20,000 worth of jewelry from the home of C. Van Rensselaer Cogswell, at 12 East Eleventh Street, was frustrated when the rope which the burglars used to lower a heavy jewelry safe out of a window in the rear of the house broke, sending the safe crashing to the cement walk, the noise frightening the thieves. Mr. Cogswell, who is the Secretary and Treasurer of the United States Cobalt Company, at 35 Wall Street, said yesterday that instead of the $20,000 they might have obtained the burglars got away with only about $900 worth of trinkets.

The burglary happened early Sunday morning, according to Mr. Cogswell, and the fact that it did not become known until yesterday was due to the request of the police, who asked that the man responsible for the crime be not notified through the papers that they were being sought.

"There is one thing I would like to say right off," said Mr. Cogswell, when asked about the robbery last night, "and that is that the police are doing everything in their power to apprehend the criminals. A report has got out that I was asked to keep silent because it might tip other burglars off to possible loot. That is absolutely without foundation. The detectives did ask me not to make the fact of the crime known only in order that they might do their work, they said, more speedily and efficiently.

"I was in Darien, Conn., with Mrs. Cogswell when the robbery occurred. The men evidently came in through a window on the second floor in the rear of the house, climbing a trelliswork to make their entry. Once in, they proceeded to ransack the second floor, first taking the precaution to lock the doors leading from the rooms in which they were working, so as not to be disturbed.

"They picked up some trinkets; pearl stickpins that I had left unlocked, a horseshoe pin of Mrs. Cogswell's, and one or two other things which I can't remember. They also searched my desk. The detectives tell me it was to get Liberty bonds, which are favorite loot these days. Then they found the jewelry safe. It seems to have resisted all attempts to get it open, for the burglars were forced to try to carry it with them.

"They got together all of the clothesline there was in the house and tried to lower the safe out of the back window. Whether the rope was too light or broke, or whether it was too short and the men were forced to let it drop, I don't know—at any rate, the safe crashed to the ground. A man in the neighborhood has been found who says he heard the noise caused by its fall around 3:20 in the morning. This noise seems to have scared the robbers away, for they didn't try to go into any other part of the house.

"The first thing I knew about the crime was when the servants we had left at home telephoned me late Sunday afternoon to say that all the doors on the second floor had been locked. I was suspicious and called up the station house in the 16th precinct. Then I caught the 7:20 train for New York. When I got home I found the detectives already in the house. It was then they asked me to keep silent. Three servants sleeping on the fourth floor of the house did not hear a sound while the thieves were working."

At the 16th precinct police station, in Mercer Street, the desk Lieutenant obeyed the injunction of the detectives to Mr. Cogswell about silence to the letter. He denied that he knew anything at all about any burglary in the precinct.

More Looting Attempted.

An effort at looting a home in this city was foiled last night by the coolness and courage of a fourteen-year-old boy, son of the superintendent of the apartment house at 415 Central Park West. The lad, Howard Elmore, was making his regular rounds to turn out the electric lights when, according to the police, he discovered the open door of an apartment belonging to J. A. Golby. The boy also noticed that the lock bore evidences of being forced.

He entered without hesitation and confronted two men who were packing silverware and other articles into a gunnysack. Young Elmore, without showing the slightest signs of fear, ordered the men to "get out and get quick." They obeyed him, and he followed one of them up Central Park West to 100th Street, where a detective seeing the two, the man running ahead and the boy following him, ended the chase by arresting the man.

The police say that the arrested man charged with attempted burglary is John Buckley of 863 Columbus Avenue, well known to the authorities as "The Mouse." Buckley, the police say, has served several terms both at Sing Sing and Elmira. He was held by Magistrate McQuade in $2,000 bail for further examination. Detectives are looking for his companion.

PLAN CHURCH CAMPAIGN.

Conference of Episcopal Laymen Tonight in Yonkers.

The first of a series of conferences of District Committees of the Diocese of New York will be held tonight at Wallace Lodge in Yonkers to prepare for the preliminary intensive work of the New York every-name canvass and the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal Church. Among those who will attend the conference tonight are Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand, Chairman for lower Manhattan; John J. Watson, Jr., central Manhattan; Stephen F. Bayne, upper Manhattan; Henry D. Patton of the Bronx, and Howell C. Perrin of Larchmonth, William G. Bliss of Katonah, and Eugene G. Alexander of Yonkers.

"In the new order which is emerging from the conflict," the call for the conference announces, "there is a conviction that the Church must play an important part in helping to reap for mankind the greatest benefits from the changes which are in process. Practical and efficient religion is a prerequisite to this, and to muster the full resources of the Church for this effort the Diocese of New York plans an every-name canvass so that the diocese may play its proper part in the nation-wide campaign of the Episcopal Church."

CLOSE ARMY HOSPITAL HERE

After six months' use, the Grand Central Palace closed yesterday as an army hospital. It was called Debarkation Hospital No. 5, and it is the first of the large hospitals established by the War Department in this city to be closed. During the six months of its service 18,902 wounded American soldiers were treated.

On Dec. 2, after the Palace had been converted from an amusement centre to a thoroughly equipped modern military hospital, the first patients were received. They were 774 officers and men who arrived from Brest on the steamship Mongolia. Until recently, when the numbers of wounded decreased, the hospital was well filled. Officers who were in charge of the hospital are proud that the death rate at the hospital was less than 1 per cent. Besides the various wounded men there were many pneumonia, influenza, and diphtheria patients, and thirteen blind soldiers.

SUICIDE AFTER SHOOTING.

Lannigan Jumps Into the River After Shooting at Stranger.

William Rouleau, whose address was not learned by the detectives, owes his life to the poor marksmanship of Simon M. Lannigan of 141 West Sixtieth Street. He was at the foot of Fifty-eighth Street and the North River yesterday afternoon, he said, when Lannigan walked up to him and exclaimed, "You are not going to live if I don't." Lannigan, it is said, then drew a revolver and fired five shots at Rouleau at close range, all of which missed fire, and Rouleau was none the worse off for his experience.

When Detectives Clarence Daly and Thomas Brady of the West Forty-seventh Street Station, attracted by the pistol reports, went to the scene of the shooting they found Lannigan had jumped into the river. A rope was thrown to him by the bystanders and he was dragged ashore. "He didn't do as I told him and I shot at him," was the only explanation Lannigan would make when he was arrested. When arraigned before Magistrate McQuade in West Side Court on charges of felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan law, he was held in $1,500 bail for General Sessions.

Hailstorm Damages Suffern, N. Y.

Special to The New York Times.

SUFFERN, N. Y., June 17.—A hailstorm caused thousands of dollars' worth of damage here this afternoon, flooding many houses and breaking many windows. Valuable trees were blown down and people became so excited that they ran everywhere for assistance. The fire department was also called out, preventing a serious fire near Mahwah.

WITNESS PROVOKES PROTEST BY WILKINS

ASSAIL BURGLAR THEORY

MINEOLA, L. I., June 17.—The trend of questioning today by the prosecution indicated that the State hoped to break down the story of burglars told by Dr. Walter Keene Wilkins, on trial for the murder of his wife. This drift was plainly evident during the examination of witnesses who faced Justice Manning and the jury in the court here.

Captain Patrick Tracy, Chief of the Long Beach Police, for thirty-three years a member of the New York police force, testified that fifteen minutes after he had talked with Dr. Wilkins he was convinced that the physician had killed his wife. He said that he had not arrested Dr. Wilkins then because the county officials had taken the matter out of his hands.

The defendent lost some of his poise while Mrs. Cassius Coleman, wife of Justice of the Peace Coleman, was being examined. She testified that Dr. Wilkins had told her that he had been struck over the head by a burglar who used a piece of lead pipe.

"Nonsense, nonsense," said Dr. Wilkins, but no notice was taken of his interruption. Justice Coleman, who followed his wife, testified that he had not observed that the furniture was in disorder when he went to the Wilkins home immediately after the murder was reported. Justice Coleman also testified that he was in the Wilkins home some days after the crime with Louis Freese, one of the physician's counsel, and Detective Allan Meyer. The latter was questioning Dr. Wilkins.

"Do you remember what Mr. Freese said," asked District Attorney Weeks.

"Yes," answered the witness, "he said to Dr. Wilkins, 'don't talk too much, you will hang yourself.'"

Dr. James L. Mangano, who treated Mrs. Wilkins immediately after she had been struck, testified to finding her lying on the floor with her hands raised as if to ward off a blow. She was semiconscious. Dr. Mangano testified that she twice said, "don't hurt me," and moaned continuously. He scored for the prosecution when he testified that he had found no hairpins in Mrs. Wilkins's hair.

Frank Barbieri, proprietor of the Lafayette Hotel, Long Beach, took the stand and declared that he went to the Wilkins home on the night of the murder.

"What did the doctor say?" inquired Charles N. Wysong of counsel for the defense.

"The doctor said that he had lost his best friend," replied Barbieri.

"Did he cry?"

"No, I didn't see him do that."

"Did you cry?"

"I did; I felt pretty bad myself," admitted Barbieri.

At this reply the spectators, especially the women, laughed heartily. Justice Manning with indignation said that a repetition of this levity would bring an order to clear the court. "This is a trial, not a matinee," he said.

The trial will be continued today.

FIRE SWEEPS KEELER HOTEL

Patrons Escape Without Injury from Noted Albany Hostlery.

ALBANY, June 17.—The interior of Keeler's Hotel at Broadway and Maiden Lane, one of Albany's landmarks and a hostelry known throughout the country, was completely destroyed by fire in less than two hours early today. The 226 patrons, all men, escaped. One fireman was buried beneath falling walls and killed. The loss is estimated at more than half a million dollars.

The fire was one of the most spectacular in the city's history. Parts of the building had stood on the present site for generations and offered fine material for the flames. The blaze, of unknown origin, was discovered soon after 3 A. M. in the cabaret, a building which adjoins the sleeping quarters on the south. For a time it was confined to this building. This gave opportunity to arouse the patrons, many of whom gathered, scantily clad, in the main lobby of the hotel, only to be driven out into the street. Others who remained in their rooms to dress were later forced to throw their suitcases from windows and make their exits by way of the fire escapes.

ISAAC DEUTSCH DROPS DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, June 17.—Isaac Deutsch, former Common Councilman of the Fifth Ward, dropped dead on the street near his home here today. He was playing with a neighbor's child at the time.

Deutsch was recently convicted, along with five others, in connection with the Fifth Ward election row, which resulted in the murder of a policeman. Deutsch had been sentenced and was awaiting action by the higher courts on an appeal for a new trial.

GERMANS ORDERED NOT TO MOLEST LETTS

PARIS, June 17.—General Gough, chief of the allied military missions in the Baltic regions, the Temps says, has been ordered by the Supreme Allied Council to address an ultimatum to General von der Goltz, the German commander in Letvia, ordering him to cease all operations against the anti-Bolshevist Lettish troops. The Germans also will be commanded to stop all efforts to prevent the establishment of a Lettish Government.

The American and French military missions which have been at Reval, the Esthonian capital, have left there, according to a report from Helsingfors, via Stockholm. The missions are going to Riga and will make an effort to put an end to the fighting between the Esthonians and the German Baltic troops. The British representatives in Lithuania have left there to go to Riga.

The Germans, who were gathering their troops on the Polish frontier in Upper Silesia a few days ago and appeared ready to assume the offensive, have ceased their activities for the moment, says the Warsaw correspondent of the Journal des Débats, in describing conditions on the Polish-German border. He adds:

"The Germans are doing all they can to incite the Polish inhabitants of Upper Silesia and Eastern Prussia. They are imprisoning hostages and making apparent efforts to provoke a revolt of the Polish element. Despite these actions on the part of the Germans, the Poles in territory controlled by the Germans are showing a wonderful discipline and endure without complaint all sorts of vexatious measures."

Denial of the truth of a statement spread by German newspapers that the Poles blew up a bridge between Lissa and Krotoschin, near the Polish border, thus preventing the transport of Polish troops from France, is made by the Szlennik Berliniski, a Polish paper printed in Berlin, a dispatch from Berne says.

An inquiry made by an interallied commission, the paper says, proved beyond doubt that the bridge was destroyed by the Germans. The interallied mission at Warsaw, it is added, compelled the Germans to build a temporary bridge for the passage of five troop trains.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

As was to have been expected after the precipitate decline on Monday, yesterday's stock market session displayed notable improvement. At the opening prices were substantially above where they had left off on the preceding day, mostly because of a considerable volume of purchases by professional traders who had taken the short side on Monday and who yesterday saw profits sufficiently large to tempt them into accepting them. There also was a fair outside buying demand from the inevitable "bargain hunters" who usually come into the market after sharp declines, and probably many of the so-called trading public participated in yesterday's buying as well, for in these days of very large margins it is doubtful if Monday's break eliminated anything like the interest that is usually removed in declines of the magnitude of that of the last few days.

The money market was much more normal yesterday, and quite failed to duplicate the sensational movements of the previous day. At the usual time for opening the demand money market there was comparatively little money offered. However, brokers as a rule were in no hurry about negotiating their bank arrangements and more than a few served notice that they would pay off loans, being willing to risk reborrowing and believing in lower rates. A few loans were made at 9 per cent. for mixed collateral and 10 per cent. for industrial loans, and the renewal rates were arranged at these levels. But the amount of business transacted was small, and no expansion was noted until around 1 o'clock when the banks began to send in funds in large volume. Then the rate declined rapidly, going to around 6 per cent. for the better class of collateral, and then brokers began to fill their requirements. In the late afternoon the rate receded still further, going as low as 5 per cent. for the mixed loans and about 1 per cent. higher for industrial security.

A great deal was heard around the Street all day about the alleged "squeeze" in money on Monday, and the failure of the banks to make large early offerings yesterday was pointed to as substantiation. As a matter of fact, the lateness in getting money on to the Stock Exchange yesterday was probably caused by some delay in getting the morning's business at the Clearing House completed. The clearings yesterday, which ran above $1,138,000,000, were particularly heavy, being swollen by the huge tax payments of the previous day and under the circumstances some tardiness in straightening out the account was to be expected. Thus, there probably was just as logical an explanation for yesterday's event as there was for the flurry of the previous day, but the temper of those who were committed to the stock market was such as to cause them completely to disregard logic when contemplating the quick and costly decline and the equally rapid, but not nearly so financially pertinent recovery.

In the afternoon, after the money market had quieted down, stock prices, which had been temporarily interrupted in the climb at midday, again took up the advance, and by the beginning of the last hour virtually all of Monday's losses had been regained. In the final hour the upward movement became more aggressive and at the close not only had most issues entirely recovered their earlier losses, but many of them were actually higher than the high prices of Monday.

Outside of the money market, Wall Street gave little attention to the news budget. In the customers' rooms hardly any notice was taken of the situation abroad, and as for the recent disturbances along the Mexican border, that was disregarded altogether. What the Street was interested in was the probable course of money rates between now and the end of the month, when another flurry is rather expected, and in the more distant outlook, when the needs for financing the European demand for rehabilitation will begin to be felt.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Market Rebounds.

The recovery of yesterday's stock market from the weakness of Monday was quick, and in a measure quite as spectacular, as had been the whittling down of prices on the preceding day. There was a firm conviction in many minds that money rates would be lower, and shortly after 10 o'clock there was a disposition on the part of those who had put out short lines on the day before to begin covering operations, and the effect of these buying orders stimulated trading on the long side. Money opened at 9 and 10 per cent. with little offered. This was a decided drop from the 15 per cent. rate which obtained on Monday and encouraged further buying of stocks. The renewal rate for money was 9 per cent., but many houses paid off their loans and by 1 o'clock the money rate had declined to 6 and 7 per cent., which was not far out of line with that which had been prevailing for some time prior to the increases of last week and the first day of this week. Many issues during the day regained all or nearly all of the losses sustained Monday.

Technical Position Improved.

The decline in stock market values which began last week, and culminated in the sharp break of Monday, was considered yesterday to have improved the technical position greatly. The weak holders, and those who were timid, have been shaken out and the pyramiding process has for the time being been brought to a close. This improvement has been gained at a loss to a portion of the speculative public, but the operation has hardly been as severe as at times during the past. The effect of the strengthened technical position was to attract some good buying, but there was an inclination toward cautiousness on the part of most traders. The last hour of the market might be described as buoyant, the 5 per cent. money rate having dispelled lingering fears.

A Sign of the Times.

The report of the Chairman by the United States Shipping Board that nineteen steel ships built by the board had been sold for from $210 to $225 a deadweight ton, which cost from $178 to $198 to construct, has been taken by the shipping world to indicate what the future of American shipping will be. The vessels were purchased by Eastern steamship operators and will fly the American flag, and it is believed that their purchase by private interests is a sign of the times in that it shows the confidence of the buyers in what the future holds in store. The terms of the sale, 25 per cent. cash down, 7½ per cent. in the ensuing six months, 7½ per cent. in the following six months, and then 15 per cent. per year for four years, were also considered favorably in some quarters.

Traction Stocks Gain.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Third Avenue, and Interborough Consolidated all moved into higher ground after the market turned yesterday. While much of this gain was attributed to short sellers running to cover when it was evident that the money situation had eased considerably overnight, there were those who drew attention to the report from Washington that the national investigating committee appointed by the President would begin its inquiry into public utility conditions in this city today. Whatever the cause B. R. T. gained more than 3 points, Interborough Consolidated closed with a net gain of ⅝, and Third Avenue moved up 2⅝ points. The traction bonds were also strong.

Conditions Unchanged.

The present bull market has been built up on the opinion that the industrial future of the country was bright. A decline in stock market values could not alter this one jot, especially since it was a decline that had been predicted by bankers and industrial leaders for some time. The amazing fact is that the market had gone along for such a great length of time without having had a reaction such as that of the last few days. The basic structure is, however, unimpaired. The belief still rules among traders that the future holds forth great promise, this being attested to by the prosperity in certain industries.

U. S. Rubber Strong.

One of the strongest issues in yesterday's trading was United States Rubber, the common stock moving up 10⅛ points and carrying with it many of the other rubber shares. The high for the day, which was also a new high for the year, was 125½, and the close was at 123. Just why there should be such a degree of strength shown is somewhat mystifying. The advance from below par has been coupled with rumors of dividend disbursements, but each time they have become current official denials have appeared. Nothing, however, has served to check the advance, and the upward bidding of the stock was insistent yesterday from the opening to the close.

No Crucible Dividend.

Reports have been current for some time that a dividend was soon to be forthcoming on the Crucible Steel junior shares. The fact that a dividend was not declared when the Directors met yesterday might have been taken, under ordinary circumstances, as a signal for selling, for the rise was apparently closely allied with dividend prospects. Crucible, however, moved up more than 3 points.

The Shipping Shares Improve.

One of the strong groups in yesterday's trading session was Shipping. The upturn was led by Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies, which, on a comparatively small turnover, advanced 6 points. This stock formerly was one of the high-priced favorites, and on an exchange of less than 6,000 shares, the stock moved forward. United Fruit closed for the day with a net gain of 3 points, and the Marine shares, both common and preferred, gained more than 2½ points each. In the last-named issue there was a fairly heavy volume of business transacted.

The Bond Market a Surprise.

When prices were falling in the stock market on Monday because of high money rates, the bond market moved in the opposite direction, the average price for 25 railroad issues advancing from 74.95 to 74.96. Yesterday the bond market again moved opposite to the stock market. The average for the same issues dropped from 74.96 to 74.86.

Big Demand for Sail Tonnage.

That sailing ships have come back into their own, when rates from Buenos Aires and other foreign ports have recently been reported at as high as $20 and $21 a ton, is quite generally admitted in these days of too few bottoms to handle the business that is offering. It is also reported in shipping quarters that there is a brisk demand for sailing tonnage for the transport of coarse grains, flour, and coal from Atlantic ports. Less than three years ago the owners of many of the ships were eager to obtain such cargoes as granite, paving blocks, sand, gravel, lumber, and other bulk tonnage at prices which would look ridiculous in the present market.

The Rails Come Back.

Led by Southern Pacific, which regained all of its Monday losses and moved into higher ground, the railroad shares were responsive to buying in yesterday's stock market. It is true that several of the gains were made on turnovers of only a few hundred shares, but the general tone showed decided improvement, most of the issues standing at higher levels when the closing gong sounded than on the preceding day.

CALLS TAX LAW UNFAIR.

Jersey Governor Says New York's Income Legislation is Discriminatory

TRENTON, N. J., June 17.—Following the receipt of hundreds of letters of protest against the Income Tax imposed on residents of New Jersey who transact their business in New York, by the recent act of the New York Legislature, the tax being double that imposed on residents of New York, Governor Runyon today forwarded this telegram to Governor Smith of New York:

"On behalf of many thousands of New Jersey residents who are engaged in business in New York, I desire to enter respectful and emphatic protest against the discriminatory provision of the personal Income Tax law as between residents and non-residents of New York, enacted at the recent session of your Legislature and to ask you in the interests of justice and amity, to lay the matter before the legislators of New York in special session assembled, to the end that these provisions may be eliminated from the law.

"Recent legislation enacted in both States, establishing the vehicular tunnel project and the joint port and harbor development, has laid a basis for closer and more cordial relations between our peoples than have ever existed and it is singularly unfortunate that at this time a piece of legislation so drastic and so unfriendly in character should have become a law.

"Our people feel very strongly in this matter and many are urging decisive retaliatory action on our part.

"I therefore feel justified in appealing to your sense of equity and fair play and in soliciting the exercise of your good office in righting that which we conceive to be a most unfair discrimination against the citizens of a friendly sister State."

PROVE VETERAN'S WILL.

Monitor's Surgeon Leaves Estate to His Son, Sister, and Cousin.

The will of Dr. Grenville M. Weeks, who served as a surgeon on the Monitor when it defeated the Confederate ram Merrimac, in Hampton Roads and was wounded in that engagement, was proved yesterday before Surrogate James F. Norton at the Hudson County Court House. He died at the Soldiers' Home in Kearney on April 15, last.

Dr. Weeks's will directs that his estate be divided in equal parts among his cousin, Cyrus W. Shaw of Mountainville, Orange County, N. Y., who is named as executor; the testator's son, Frank A. Weeks, and his sister, Mrs. Carrie McKenzie. The amount of the estate is not indicated by the will. It is said to be not large.

Buenos Aires Strike Is Settled.

OFFER $54,000,000 FARM LOAN BONDS

National City Bank Heads Syndicate to Distribute Federal Land Bank Securities.

ISSUE IS TAX EXEMPT

Dealers Report Heavy Demands from Capitalists—Similar Issue of Year Ago Oversubscribed.

An issue of $54,000,000 twenty-year Federal Land Bank 4½ per cent. Farm Loan bonds, issued under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board of the Treasury Department, is being distributed by a syndicate headed by the National City Company, Brown Brothers & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Alexander Brown & Sons, and Lee, Higginson & Co. The price of the issue to the public is 100½ and interest, the net return being 4.38 per cent. to the redeemable date, 1924, and 4½ per cent. thereafter until redemption or maturity. The bonds are redeemable at par and interest, on any interest date after five years from the date of issue, May 1, 1919. The coupon and registered bonds, which are interchangeable, are in denominations of $1,000, $500, $100, $50 and $25.

It is planned to distribute the issue through between 350 and 400 dealers in various part of the country. The price to dealers will be a concession of ¼ of 1 per cent. from the price to the public, this to defray the cost of distribution. The same syndicate which is handling the present issue put out an offering of $50,000,000 of 5 per cent. Federal Land-bank bonds a year ago, and the subscription books were closed within an hour after being opened, with the issue heavily oversubscribed.

Bond dealers report that there is a heavy demand from men of large means for tax exempt issues. The present bonds are exempt from all Federal, State, municipal and local taxation, including both income and excess profits taxes, being on a parity in this respect with the Liberty 3½ per cent. issue.

The Federal Land Bank bonds are secured by deposit of an equal amount of United States Government bonds or first mortgages on farm lands cultivated by the owner, which mortgages are appraised and guaranteed by the local National Farm Loan Association, of which the borrower is a member and stockholder. Each stockholder is liable for twice the par value of his stock. Before the loan is made the property must be examined, and a separate appraisal and written report, made by an appraiser appointed by the Federal Farm Loan Board. This appraisal must be finally confirmed by the Directors of the Federal Land Bank of the district, and before a bond issue is allowed, the original application and appraiser's report, upon which each loan is based, must be examined and passed upon by the securities department of the Federal Farm Loan Board in Washington. No mortgage loan may be made in excess of $10,000 nor may it exceed one-half of the appraised value of the land mortgaged and 20 per cent. of the appraised value of permanent insured improvements.

The bonds are legal investments under the laws of many States for the investment of all public and private funds and are permissible investments by savings banks in thirty-five States. Both the Attorney General of the United States and Charles E. Hughes have given favorable opinions on the constitutionality of the Federal Farm Loan act and its provisions exempting the bonds from taxation.

COTTON PRICES SHOW DOWNWARD TREND

MARCH OFF 60 POINTS

Liverpool Reaction and Selling for Wall Street Account Are Principal Factors.

The cotton market opened firm yesterday, first prices being about where Monday's market stopped, and for the initial hour the market did very well. The early advices from Liverpool showed a strong tone there, and this, together with the general belief that the stock market would improve, a belief borne out by the action of that market as soon as it got moving, aided the cotton market by offsetting a very favorable weather map and a forecast for good weather over almost all of the belt.

The firm tone, however, was not maintained after the end of the first hour, when later reports from Liverpool showed a reaction in progress there, and when sales of a good many contracts for Wall Street account began to make their appearance. By early afternoon the market was weak, at that time being down 52 to 50 points for all options from July to March. May, the newest month on the list, was lightly dealt in and showed recessions of only 35 points at the extreme low of the day. This, despite what some bulls tried to show, had no significance because of the lack of speculative interest in the month. March, nearly as far distant and much more active, fell about 60 points.

In the last hour the market recovered from the extreme low levels, closing at net losses on the day of 24 points for July and 35 to 40 points for the new crop months. Spot cotton here was down 25 points to 32.50c., while leading spot markets in the South were easy.

The failure of any Southern ports to send out exports yesterday contributed somewhat to the dissatisfaction of the bulls, who have been counting on a heavy forward movement throughout this month.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Why Stop Investing?

Many persons made their first investments in Liberty Bonds. Why not continue investing? The industries of our country offer splendid opportunities, and they can be purchased by means of monthly payments. Our booklet explains the method.

Famous Oil Fields
"Burke-Burnett"

The new Burke-Burnett oil pool in Texas, the "Burke-Burnett Townsite Pool," is shaped like a fat cucumber. It is about three miles from east to west and at its widest point a mile across. The first well was drilled last July. Now its average daily output is about 40,000 barrels from some 300 wells. The "old" Burke-Burnett pool, about two miles away, with many hundreds of wells, produces about 10,000 barrels daily. The "extension" just now developing is considered by oil men as promising the greatest production of any field ever developed in this country.

FEDERAL LAND BANK
4½% Farm Loan Bonds

Issued under the direction and control of the Federal Farm Loan Board, a bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States

Dated May 1, 1919 Due May 1, 1939

Redeemable at par and accrued interest on any interest date after five years from the date of issue. Bonds in coupon or registered form (interchangeable) may be had in denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, $50 and $25. Coupons are payable semi-annually at any Federal Land Bank or Federal Reserve Bank.

Exempt from Federal, State, Municipal and Local Taxation

Federal Land Bank bonds are declared by Congress to be instrumentalities of the Government of the United States, and as such are exempt from Federal, State, Municipal and local taxation.

These bonds, therefore, have as complete exemption from taxation as the First Liberty Loan 3½% bonds.

The Federal Land Banks were created by the United States Government to meet the agricultural needs of the country, as the Federal Reserve Banks were designed to meet the mercantile and manufacturing needs.

These bonds are acceptable by the United States Treasury at par as security for Government deposits, including Postal Savings Funds. They are lawful investments for all fiduciary and trust funds under the jurisdiction and control of the Federal Government, and are eligible for investment by savings banks in the following states:

Arkansas, California, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming

The Federal Farm Loan Board, which administers the Federal Land Bank System, is a bureau of the Treasury Department of the United States. The Secretary of the Treasury is a member and the Chairman ex-officio of the Board. The continental United States is divided into twelve districts, each having a Federal Land Bank which issues the bonds, secured by bonds of the United States Government, or guaranteed First Mortgages approved by the Federal Farm Loan Board. In order to avoid confusion, it should be noted that the bonds of the Federal Land Banks are issued by banks created by the United States Government, in which banks the Government now owns a substantial amount of stock. All twelve Federal Land Banks are liable for the ultimate payment of all bonds issued by each and every Federal Land Bank. Joint Stock Land Banks, although organized under the same Act of Congress, are owned by private interests, the United States Government holding none of the stock, and there is no liability on the part of one Joint Stock Land Bank for the obligations of the others.

The Attorney General of the United States on behalf of the Government, and the Hon. Charles E. Hughes on our behalf, have approved the constitutionality of the Act and the validity of the provisions exempting the bonds from taxation.

The Federal Farm Loan Board in offering these bonds for sale has anticipated the needs of the Federal Land Banks and no additional bonds will be offered prior to December 1, 1919.

The Market Place of the World

PRACTICALLY the whole world will soon be seeking goods made in the United States. More than 200 new merchant ships—modern American clippers—have been delivered so far this year. New steamship lines are soon to be extended to the ends of the earth.

Active among shippers these 90 years, and keenly appreciative of present day requirements, the Atlantic National Bank provides a thoroughly modern service tempered by long experience and augmented by a well established foreign department.

TESTING UNDERSEA PHONE.

Inventor Believes He Has Submarine and Iceberg Detector.

WELLAND, Ontario, June 17.—The invention of a hydrophone that is said to be able to pick up the faintest sounds through the water at a distance of four to five miles and to show the exact location of the vessel creating the sounds, claimed by J. A. Burgess, formerly Science Master of Bishop Ridley College, St. Catherine, Ontario, is believed to have devised a means of taking the sting out of a submarine.

In peace times he believes the phone whill warn ships of the location and proximity of icebergs, other vessels, rocks or shores in the case of fog. Mr. Burgess has been conducting a series of tests on the North Sea under the direction of the British Admiralty for the last six weeks, with a view to the adoption of his invention for both war and mercantile vessels.

Confidence

Those who believe in the strength of this nation and the future of American industry cannot fail to have confidence in the bonds and notes of corporations for whose products and services there is a steady and growing demand throughout the United States. The fact that these securities now yield returns that are possible only when conditions are unusual should prompt decisive action.

Reports were circulated yesterday that a new import movement from Canada is about to start. Nothing official could be learned regarding this yesterday, but reports had it that the aggregate of the imports would probably be in the neighborhood of $30,000,000.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices were moving forward rapidly during the final half hour of trading on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. Several issues made gains of 10 per cent. or more for the session, while an average improvement of 5 per cent. ensued in the active specialties. The return of money rates to a more normal level was effective in rallying prices, as the reverse had been of the reactionary order. United States Rubber moved widest, that stock being bid up 11⅛, while Goodrich Rubber gained 5⅛, American Ice 6⅛, Central Leather 4⅛ to 100⅛, and American Can 3⅛. The steel shares were briskly advanced, United States Steel common gaining 3 points, Bethlehem Steel B 3⅝, American Steel Foundries 4⅛, while Crucible gained 8⅝ from its early low level. Mexican Petroleum was in demand from the outset, advancing 6⅛, while Royal Dutch of New York moved up 6⅛, Pan American Petroleum 5, Sinclair Oil 5⅛, and California Petroleum 2⅛. Southern Pacific was the best of the rails, that stock rising 3⅛.

HERALD

Its Dominance In Financial Advertising Is Everywhere Recognized

The increase in financial advertising generally and the marked increase in the number of banking houses now advertising in the Herald is most gratifying to us.

Our especial satisfaction, however, lies in the three following facts:

1. That the Herald is included in every financial advertising schedule placed in the Boston papers.

2. That the Herald is selected as the first paper in these schedules more often than any other paper.

3. That the Herald is selected more often than any other paper when only one paper is used.

New Looms but No Weavers.

One dress goods mill that has made an especially good showing on its Fall lines felt, because of the large number of orders accepted, the need for additional machinery to take care of increased demand. For this reason, a short time ago, some twenty looms were purchased and installed. The labor market, however, was not given its proper consideration. As a result the looms have been idle since their installation, no weavers being available.

Collar Prices May Rise.

The collar manufacturers, it is understood, have under consideration a further advance in the price of their lines. The price is now $1.90 a dozen, and some of the smaller dealers have been charging 20 cents, whereas the larger retailers have seen fit to get 5 cents more. The manufacturers do not favor such competition at the expense of their larger accounts, and this fact, together with increased production costs, may lead to another advance in the near future.

Stocking Up Merchandise.

Some of the buyers representing large retail interests have undertaken to accept immediate shipment of merchandise for which the demand at present is most active. In silks, ribbons, and dress goods this policy is especially noted at the present time. Ordinarily, delivery of goods ordered now would not take place for several months or for a longer period, perhaps, if conditions warranted. Merchandise taken as soon as it can be delivered will be stored away until required.

TO WAR ON HOTEL "BEATS."

Proprietors Plan—United Crusade Against Swindlers.

In an effort to reduce to a minimum the enormous annual loss sustained through acceptance of forged money orders, worthless checks, bad accounts and through other classes of professional "dead beats," the Hotel Association of New York City has enlisted the active co-operation of the American Bankers' Association, the Stores Mutual Protective Association, Post Office Inspectors, secret service men of the War Department, New York Police Department, District Attorney's office, private detective agencies, and other interests of the city.

A plan of campaign has been worked out, and the hotel men expect immediate results in the curtailment of the number of swindles, and the arrest of many of the swindlers.

The co-operation of the several agencies took definite form at a luncheon yesterday at the Belleclaire Hotel, Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway, given by the house committee of the association, of which Robert D. Blackman, proprietor of the Belleclaire, is Chairman. Resolutions were adopted pledging co-operation by the hotels in the exchange of information regarding swindlers, and declaring against encouraging compromise with any swindlers who are caught. Among those at the luncheon were: Thomas D. Green, President of the Hotel Association, and proprietor of the Hotel Woodward; James O. Stack, proprietor of the Hotel Imperial; James G. Boggs, Hotel Laurelton; Arthur T. Hardy, Hotel Lucerne; A. Hulle, manager, Waldorf-Astoria; Frank A. K. Boland, counsel for the association; Third Deputy Police Commissioner Porter; F. H. Cross, of the Burns Detective Agency; L. W. Gammon, manager of the Protective Department of the American Bankers' Association; H. P. Wilkinson, manager of the Financial Department of the American Express Company; H. T. Cole, of the American Surety Company, and H. C. Plummer, of the Hotel Association.

RESUME BURNS HEARING.

Detective Testifies Before Deputy State Controller Boardman.

The hearing on the charges against the William J. Burns National Detective Agency, preferred by Edward W. Edwards, Secretary of the Allied Printing Trades Council, was resumed yesterday before Deputy State Controller William Boardman.

In answer to questions, Mr. Burns said:

"My agency does not handle divorce cases, although we sometimes check up evidence for clients. Gaston B. Means told me he was engaged in German interests and that the Federal Government knew all about it. This was after Means left our agency. Means did not report to me that he was interested in the purchase of a paper with German money. If he said that he got instructions from me about the Hamburg-American line I think he was mistaken.

"I went south as a character witness for Means at his trial. I think he is an honorable gentleman and it may interest you to know that he is bringing suit for $1,000,000 against those persons who caused his trouble in the South. Means did tell me that the German Government would pay me $100,000 for the services of our agency, but I told him I did not want it."

Gaston B. Means, to whom Mr. Burns referred, was tried and acquitted of having been concerned in the death of Mrs. Maude A. King in Concord, N. C.

Children's Garments of Jersey.

The "vampire cloth," wool jersey, has finally found its way into children's garments, both for boys and girls, but the innovation came by way of London. One of the local shops now has several suits of the material on display. In the boys suits the trousers are of the loose-knee "knicker" variety, with the jacket made long on the order of an athletic jersey. It is cut close up to the throat, where there is an opening caught by two buttons, and has a turnover collar. The jackets of the girls' suits are cut pretty much the same way, although they lace together at the throat with ribbon, and the skirts are pleated. The leading shades in which they are displayed are navy blue and green.

Women's Shoes for Fall.

In women's walking boots for Fall, straight Cuban heels ranging from 1½ to 2 inches, in mahogany and dark tan, are popular. The trend of the trade in low shoes seems to be along the line of Baby Louis heels running in height from 10.8s to 12.8s, 1¼ to 1½ inches, made in long stylish lines and long vamps. The popular height of shoes is 8½ inches. Buttoned shoes in black and dark brown in this height are said to be running about 15 per cent. better than they have. The predominating colors in women's shoes will be black and Havana brown. Military gray and bronze are also reported to be well up in the demand.

BUSINESS WORLD

Gray Goods Marking Time.

Gray goods are marking time in the local market, pending the decision of the buyers to come in more actively than they have so far this month. The general feeling seems to be, however, that, with the mid-year inventory season at hand, there will not be a great deal of activity before the turn of the month. Most of the business done yesterday was put through by second hands, and consisted chiefly of printcloths for deliveries in the next two to three months. Included in these were some more 38½-inch 64-60s at 15¼ cents and 39-inch 68-72s at 18 cents. There were reports of 25 cents having been shaded for 39-inch 80 squares from second hands, but they were not fully confirmed. Second-hand prices for sheetings continued steady on the basis of 15¼ cents for 37-inch 48-square, four-yard goods. Sales of fine-yarn goods and specialties continued to lag, though prices appeared steady enough.

Cable Delays Hurt Business.

Although business in the local market for crude rubber is somewhat more active than it has been, with both dealers and manufacturers among the buyers, the topic that is engaging the chief attention of the trade is the difficulty in transacting business for forward deliveries that is due to the delay in the transmission of cable messages. The result is that most of the recent business has been of a spot nature. Brazilian rubbers for spot delivery were quoted yesterday at 55 cents for up-river fine, 33 cents for up-river coarse, and 33 cents for upper Caucho ball. The plantation rubbers were held at 41 cents for pale crepe and 40 cents for smoked sheets. The outlook is said to be for higher prices generally.

Ribbon Salesmen Recalled.

Salesmen on the road for one of the leading ribbon houses have been recalled owing to the fact that production has been practically sold up. The advances of 10 per cent. instituted last week have not reduced the demand. There are said to be more buyers in the market for this time of the year than ever before in the history of the trade. Some of the retailers are reported to have paid so much attention to fancy goods that their stocks of staples have been permitted to run out. This has resulted in an unusually heavy call during the past ten days for such staples as satin, taffeta, and grosgrain plain goods. The strength of plaids, which ordinarily are not sold at this time of the year, is also a feature of present buying.

The Biter Was Bitten.

Apropos of the present shortage of white silk hose for men, an amusing incident was told here yesterday in which a local retail concern, in endeavoring to "put something over" on a competitor was really the victim of the scheme. "A," the first concern, operates two shops, and got an order at Shop 1 which it could not fill. Why Shop 2 was not called upon to help out is not really known, but the fact remains that a man from Shop 1 was sent to the store of competitor "B" to get the required goods. The "B" store did not have them, either, but took the order and promised to deliver the hose the same day. A man then went from there to Shop 2 of the "A" concern, bought the hose and made the delivery. In this way the "biting" concern, which apparently was trying to conserve its own scanty stock of the goods in question, was bitten.

Attar of Rose Stocks Here.

The entire supply of Bulgarian attar of roses, which was taken over by that Government in order to pay from the proceeds of its sale for food supplied to Bulgaria by the United States, is now in this country. It came here in the joint custody of the United States Food Administration and a Bulgarian official named L. Getshcoff, and plans for its disposition were made at a meeting held in this city recently. It came out at the meeting that the supply collected by the Bulgarian Government was much smaller than expected, and that there was no possibility of an increase before the new crop reached this country next October. As a result of this the price for distribution by the American representatives of the leading producers of the perfume in Bulgaria was placed at $17.50 an ounce. It is pointed out that the distillation of the Fall crop may effect no reduction in the price, due to the unsettled internal affairs of Bulgaria.

TRY FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTANCY,

OCTOBER, 1919.

AND FOR SENIOR ACCOUNTANT,

OCTOBER, 1920.

October 15 to November 15 is the period during which one-fourth of the year's business changes, readjustments, and building up of staffs are made.

If you have a faculty for figures and the crude stuff for the making of an accountant, there is just about time between now and October 15th this year for you, thru suitable intensive training—during your spare hours at home—to qualify for a Junior Accountancy position that will pay at least $35 a week.

And ample time to qualify, before October, 1920, for position of Senior Accountant, Auditor, or Income Tax Expert, at a salary of at least $75 a week—with possibilities of more than twice that amount.

It is only a question of raw ability and industry, a resolute purpose to devote five spare home hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business-training system ever devised, under the tutelage of a corps of eminent Certified Public Accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

We have given hundreds of ambitious, earnest men and women the start that has put them over the top, and have their records to point to with just pride. We can do as much for you if you are made of the right stuff. It is worth your while to investigate.

Men Who Have the Problem of a Big Income

THIS morning, we call your attention to this fact:—

Present-time excess profits may be put into well selected Manhattan Island property now, in a way that will insure big returns in the future.

∞ ∞ ∞

LONG-HEADED capitalists who will concentrate on this suggestion for an instant will see the wisdom of proceeding further.

∞ ∞ ∞

IF you are a man with Vision, looking past the immediate present—

If your plans today are being laid to bear fruit a few years hence—rather than just this year or maybe next—

If you want to keep your money working—and keep it safe as well—

Then we can be of service to you. Because—

We can intelligently discuss the real property situation—both as to present facts and future possibilities—in a way that will assist and not confuse.

We know the pit-falls to guard against.

We can help you understand and appreciate present opportunities.

For Example

A purchaser of any of the following properties is "99.44%" sure of a profit. And when this profit shall be taken will be under his personal control.

Number 1

A big fireproof business building, which is now under-rented, yet is yielding a net return considerably in excess of six per cent on the price asked.

Number 2

A centrally located corner office building with a personality that has not been developed as it can and should be.

Number 3

A sixteen story office building, on a corner plot 50 x 100 feet, in which its tenants take particular pride. Space in this building is at a premium. It is our best judgment that the gross income from this property can be increased fully one-third. We deem this very nearly our ideal of a business building.

Number 4

A corner plot, in a strategic location, that is under-improved. This property is real "cream" and will appeal to a man with a creative mind, and a half million to work with.

∞ ∞ ∞

THESE properties are not in the open market. Our data regarding them is confidential. Therefore we are in honor bound not to offer them promiscuously.

This is an additional reason, we believe, why the man with a big income should be interested.

A conference with a principal of our organization may be arranged for, at our office or at yours.

Business Occupants for New Buildings to be Built-to-Order

WE are authorized by strong financial interests to make this important announcement:

For concerns of unquestioned standing, having need of new and larger quarters, our client will erect loft or office buildings to exactly meet individual business requirements.

These buildings will be erected on any plot the concern may select, provided only that the plot selected be centrally located and procurable at a reasonable price.

Our client will contract to turn over ready for occupancy a completed structure, in accordance with plans agreed upon with our architect.

Proposals will be entertained either on the basis of a long-term lease, or on the basis of a sale.

In either case, both price and terms can be agreed upon in advance.

Heads of financially sound business enterprises, interested in this idea, are invited to write us, using their business letter-heads.

FIND SOVIET ENVOY AIDED SOCIALISTS AND I. W. W. HERE

CONTRADICT HIS EVIDENCE

SENT LAWYER TO HELP REDS

Documents from the secret archives of the Soviet Russia Mission, seized in the raid on its headquarters at 110 West Fortieth Street last Thursday, were produced at a hearing yesterday before the legislative committee investigating seditious activities and propaganda, to prove that L. A. C. K. Martens, the unrecognized Bolshevist envoy, and other members of his "embassy," were in close touch with organizations in this country pledged to work along militant lines for the attainment of revolutionary aims in America.

This evidence, according to Senator Clayton R. Lusk, the Chairman, gave the lie direct, in black and white, to statements made before the committee by Martens when he appeared as a witness at a secret session on Thursday afternoon. On that occasion, when Martens was asked if the sole purpose of his mission was to purchase supplies and try to bring about friendly relations between this Government and the Government of Soviet Russia, he said: "That is all, sir, absolutely. Positively the only thing with which I am concerned is the purchase of supplies and getting them to the Russian Government to aid it in building up its industries so as to enable the Russian people to live."

Among the documents introduced was a letter from the Socialist Party of the Eighth Assembly District in Manhattan to Martens, welcoming his mission and pledging the organization to "work unceasingly for the propagation of principles, policies, and tactics that will tend directly to the establishment of a Socialist Federated Soviet republic in America." The cordial reply of the Bolshevist envoy was also read into the record. The Secretary of the Socialist Assembly District organization addressed Martens with the Socialist appellative "Comrade," and the same term was used by the latter in his reply.

Another letter, sent by the Young People's Socialist League in this city, expressed the belief that a time would come "when the United States of America will send a representative of their Soviet republic to Russia."

"Until then," the letter concluded, "we are yours for the world revolution and brotherhood."

A joint letter from Russian, Polish, and Ukrainian branches of the Socialist Party in Passaic, N. J., to "Comrade" Martens, which was in Russian and translated for the committee, expressed the hope that "through your activities there will be established a connection between the American proletariat and the Russian revolutionary proletariat Soviet Government."

The replies to the last two letters were not produced at the hearing yesterday, but Attorney General Charles D. Newton, counsel for the committee, said they would be introduced in evidence in the near future.

Martens Aided I. W. W.

Perhaps the most startling evidence yesterday was a series of documents showing that Martens had actively interested himself to the extent of providing counsel in the case of anarchists and members of the Industrial Workers of the World arrested in a May Day demonstration in Chester, Penn. Sixty-four participants in the demonstration were fined, but several are held under indictment for "riot, aggravated riot, inciting to riot and destruction of property." The lawyer retained in their case was Charles Recht, a Socialist, with an office at 47 West Forty-second Street, who appeared for A. A. Heller, "commercial attaché" of the Soviet Mission when he was taken before the committee after the raid on the "embassy" last Thursday. A confidential report written by Recht for the Bolshevist envoy embodied comment on the courts of this country and the Judge who presided over the proceedings that followed the May Day arrests in Chester, which was regarded as startling and extraordinary to come from a member of the Bar.

Evidence was produced to show that Santari Nuorteva, Secretary of the Soviet Mission, acting with Elizabeth Gurley Flynn of I. W. W. fame, had been actively interested in procuring a deportation order in the case of an I. W. W. agitator who is serving twenty years in the Federal prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, who would rather be at large in Moscow, Russia.

Henry W. Grunewald, a private detective of 960 Sherman Avenue, the Bronx, was the first witness yesterday. He was in command of a dozen or more detectives who participated in the raid on the Soviet Bureau. He produced a copy of the Berliner Tageblatt for April 4, which he testified he had found in the

Says British Public Oppose More Transatlantic Flights

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, June 18.—On the ground that public opinion in England is against further attempts at nonstop transatlantic airplane flights, Major Fiske, representing the Boulton & Paul Aeroplane Company of England, was today directed by a cablegram from his company to abandon plans for a transatlantic flight. Major Fiske arrived Saturday and has been seeking a site for a starting field.

"Public opinion against further attempts," said the cable message. "Shall withdraw and put up demonstration elsewhere."

Major Fiske said that he believed the British public were unwilling to see other lives risked in such feats as that accomplished by Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown in the Vickers-Vimy bombing machine.

BRITISH AIR TRAVEL POOL IS REPORTED

Combination of Airplane Makers Said to be Preparing a Worldwide Service.

LONDON-NEW YORK TRIPS

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 18.—The Daily Graphic says:

"A large British airship financial combination with several millions sterling in money at the back of it is already well under course of development. This combine, it is stated in authoritative circles, will be heavily subsidized by the Governments of the various European Powers and will be in active operation before the end of the year.

"Three distinct types of airships are to be constructed at the works of the amalgamated companies, situated somewhere in the North of England. Airships of moderate size and high speed will carry express and mails and passengers. Passenger liners of large size and high speed are to be made for longer distance flights, and large airships of comparatively slow speed and large carrying capacity are to be constructed for general transport.

"Wealthy travelers are to be catered to with small, nonrigid airships maintained at much the same cost as a small yacht."

As The Daily Graphic proceeds:

"The post-war Zeppelin passenger service from Berlin to Constantinople via Munich and Vienna of late received considerable notice in the German press. Recently, too, the Spanish Government decided to make inquiries into the possibilities of an Atlantic airship service from Spain to the United States. In Britain the Messrs. Vickers have been no less active in their preparations for a worldwide system of airship travel which in all probability will be in operation before the end of the present year.

"The Vickers passenger airships under contemplation will be of 3,500,000 cubic feet capacity, will be housed comfortably in existing sheds, and carry fifteen tons of passengers and mails for a distance of 4,500 miles at a speed of 60 miles an hour.

"The main airship routes and times of travel in this scheme will be as follows, all voyages starting from London: To New York, 2½ days; San Francisco, 4½; Cairo, 1½; Colombia, 4½; Perth, Australia, 7; Nairobi, 3½; Cape Town, 6½; Rio de Janeiro, 4.

"The British western system, to take advantage of the prevailing winds, will consist of two main lines direct and via Lisbon and the Azores to New York and thence to San Francisco. The London to Rio de Janeiro route will be by way of Lisbon and Sierra Leone.

"The Messrs. Vickers have already announced a provisional fare of $240 per passenger to New York, and mail rates at 3½ pence an ounce."

BERLIN PAPERS RESUME.

End of Strike Enables the People to Get Peace News.

BERLIN, June 17, (Associated Press.)—The strike of newspaper employes, which forced the Berlin papers to cease publication, was settled by arbitration late tonight.

All the papers will reappear Wednesday morning, giving Greater Berlin the first news in five days of the latest peace developments.

POULTNEY BIGELOW ILL.

KINGSTON, N. Y., June 18.—Poultney Bigelow, writer and traveler, is critically ill with tetanus at the City Hospital here. Mr. Bigelow contracted an infection in a finger while repairing a stone wall on his farm, Malden-on-the-Hudson.

Mr. Bigelow is widely known as a traveler and author. He is a son of John Bigelow, who was Ambassador to France under President Lincoln. Mr. Bigelow made his first journey around the world in a sailing ship in 1875 and 1876, and was the first to take a canoe through the Iron Gates of the Danube. He studied tropical colonization in nearly every colony in the world. He has lectured at principal universities on modern history and colonial administration.

For more than twenty-five years Mr. Bigelow was a close friend of the former Kaiser, but their friendship was terminated some years before the war on account of some of the writings of Mr. Bigelow, which displeased the Emperor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Strong representations have been made by American officials in Mexico to the Mexican Government, on instructions from the State Department for the protection of Americans in the disturbed areas. After announcement to this effect had been made at the State Department today a statement was issued at the Mexican Embassy by General Candido Aguilar, confidential Ambassador to the United States, in which he referred to the crossing of American troops at Juares as a closed incident.

"The Mexican Government," said the Mexican statement, "considers as closed the incident brought about by the crossing of American troops into Mexican territory, and has approved the manner in which this matter was treated before the Department of State by confidential Ambassador Aguilar and Charge d'Affaires ad interim Rojo."

Details of the representations made to the Mexican Government, which were described by the State Department as "strong," were not made public, but they are believed to have made it plain to the Carranza Government that the United States viewed with concern the revolutionary situation in northern Mexico and insists upon immediate action being taken by Mexico City to assure the safety of foreigners.

From intimations dropped today it was gathered that the United States did not at this time contemplate any broad military movement into Mexico, but was looking to the Mexican Government to afford protection to Americans.

It is understood to be the purpose of the Washington Government through the use of troops on the border to protect Americans along the American side to the fullest possible extent, and that the orders to the troops along the border permit them to cross into Mexico whenever necessary to drive away bandits. Whether under such circumstances American forces would be sent further into Mexico on a broader scale expedition will depend on developments. The Mexican Government is expected to reply immediately to the American representations.

Violation of Sovereignty.

The Mexican Embassy yesterday forwarded to the State Department a copy of General Aguilar's statement to the press protesting against the alleged violation of Mexican sovereignty by American troops. Officials, expecting a formal protest, were not surprised by the Aguilar statement, but as it was informal no reply was required. While Carranza contended that the entrance of American troops into Mexico was a violation of Mexican sovereignty, it was pointed out that United States sovereignty was violated when shots from the Mexican side fell in American territory. The further point is made that America has the right of taking any action necessary to protect its sovereignty.

It is generally accepted that the prestige of General Carranza has suffered as a result of the invasion of Juares by American troops, as it was a demonstration of the inability of the Carranza Government to hold an important and loyal town against rebel attack, and revealed the failure of the Mexican Government to make good its promise to suppress such uprisings as that which necessitated the American invasion of Mexico.

It was made plain by officials today that the United States was playing no favorites in Mexico and was not supporting any faction or interfering with any internal movement, but merely taking measures for the protection of the border. Recently there was protracted firing over the border at Naco, which the American authorities tolerated. It has only been when the lives of American citizens were imperiled that United States troops have been sent across the border. As gathered from Administration spokesmen, Villistas or other rebels may capture every town in Chihuahua State without interference from the United States, but they must not violate American sovereignty in prosecuting their military operations.

Effect Upon Villa.

The effect upon the fortunes of Francisco Villa of the severe military reverse suffered by him at the hands of the American soldiers is thought here to be problematical. While he is believed to have lost some of his most faithful followers in the Carranza expedition at Juares, he has involved the Carranza Government in a fresh incident with the United States and succeeded in damaging Carranza's prestige. He went against the advice of General Felipe Angeles, his most prominent supporter, in attacking Juares.

Senator Gore Upset in Auto, But Escapes Serious Injury

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 18.—Senator Thomas P. Gore of Oklahoma was injured late this afternoon when an automobile in which he was rushing from Mitchell to Sioux Falls overturned, throwing the Senator out on the ground.

The Senator was not painfully injured, according to physicians. His shoulder was bruised, but he received no internal injuries.

A front wheel of the automobile caught in a rut, overbalancing the car. The Senator plans to continue his trip tomorrow.

$25,000,000 TO END COLOMBIA DISPUTE

APOLOGY DEMAND DROPPED

Minister Agrees to Accept the Proposed Terms—Early Action Expected.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has before it a new treaty with Colombia that is expected to end the controversy over payment for the Panama Canal rights, which has continued for sixteen years. Under the terms of the treaty it is proposed to pay Colombia $25,000,000, although no definite decision has been reached as to that sum.

In the years of controversy over this question Colombia has insisted that the United States, besides paying for the strip of land taken, must apologise for having taken it. Senator Lodge, now Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, and other Republican leaders of the Senate, have fought against making any apology to Colombia, and Mr. Lodge has also opposed, until the present time, paying any such sum as $25,000,000.

The State Department has been in consultation lately with the Colombian Government through its Minister here, and the latter has agreed that the apology so long insisted upon be eliminated from the treaty. Colombia, its Minister said, was anxious to have the dispute ended and would accept $25,000,000 in full settlement.

Senator Knox, who was Secretary of State under President Roosevelt, and opposed making any apology to Colombia, favors the new treaty. He and Mr. Lodge have been in conference with Acting Secretary Polk regarding the treaty, and have agreed to try to bring it before the Senate at an early date.

When the Foreign Relations Committee took up the new treaty a few days ago several members, including Mr. Borah, objected to paying Colombia as much as $25,000,000. Mr. Borah thought that $10,000,000 was ample. He recalled that Colombia at one time had been willing to take $10,000,000, then had raised the figure to $15,000,000, and now wants $25,000,000.

There was no indication to-night as to when the committee would report the treaty, but a final vote upon it will be attempted within a few days.

Colombia's demand for payment for the Panama Canal rights was put in after Panama, through an over-night revolution, set up its own Government and then yielded rights upon the Isthmus to the United States. Ever since that time Colombia has insisted that the United States practically confiscated the land through which the canal was projected.

AUSTRIANS MAY GET FULL TREATY SATURDAY

Voluminous Objections to Partial Terms Are Now in Course of Translation.

PARIS, June 17, (Associated Press.)—No decisions were reached at today's sessions of the Council of Five, and all reserved subjects were put over until Friday, when it is hoped that final disposition will be made of them. The missing clauses of the Austrian treaty may be delivered to Dr. Karl Renner, head of the Austrian mission, on Saturday.

The Austrian observations responding to the fragmentary treaty first communicated to the Austrian delegation were today undergoing translation for submission to the Council of Five. They make a document so formidable in size that they cause wonder regarding the length of the answer that would have been delivered had the Austrians been in possession of the complete treaty.

The Austrian reply will be made public only in connection with the Allies' rejoinder.

GERMAN ENVOYS TELL THE CABINET TO REJECT ALLIED PEACE TREATY; CLERICALS MOVE TO HAVE IT SIGNED

WEIMAR CONFERENCE BEGINS

STRONG FEELING EXPRESSED

CHANCELLOR FOR OPEN MIND

BERLIN, June 18. (Associated Press.)—The German peace delegates have drafted a memorandum, recommending that the Cabinet refuse to sign the peace treaty, according to a Weimar dispatch to the Zeitung am Mittag.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the delegation, the Tageblatt says, will resign, as well as other members of the delegation unless this view is adopted.

A pronounced movement in the ranks of the majority members of the Assembly at Weimar in favor of signing the treaty is reported in a despatch received here late tonight.

Sentiment among the Clericals and Left Wing Democrats under the leadership of Baron Von Richthofen is also reported to be crystallizing in that direction.

"Sign the treaty and be through with the agony," was the gist of the comment of the people of Berlin today.

After the wrath, provoked by the moral indictment contained in the covering note of the allied answer, the residents of Berlin seemed to have resigned themselves to the inevitable.

"Rather the end with terror than terror without end," was the way one small merchant put it today.

No surprise was reflected in the Boerse today at the nature of the allied reply to the German counterproposals, as indicated in the covering note submitted with the text, which alone was available when trading opened this morning. There was nothing in the dealings to indicate anything even approaching a panicky feeling, and trading proceeded quietly throughout the session, with firmness displayed at the end.

BASLE, June 18 (Associated Press).—The German peace delegation at this morning's meeting at Weimar advised the Cabinet to reject the Peace Treaty, according to a dispatch sent from Weimar by the correspondent of the Frankfurter Zeitung.

The correspondent added that the experts with the delegation also were of the opinion that the treaty should be rejected.

WEIMAR, June 18, (Associated Press.)—The Cabinet today debated the peace terms of the allied and associated powers. It was officially announced that no decision had been arrived at.

The full original French text of the Entente answer, including the covering note, was finished this morning by the printers and was to be distributed this afternoon.

While no statement has been issued by the Cabinet on the allied reply, The Associated Press learned yesterday that sentiment in the Cabinet was unanimously against signing the treaty, the only objection being the possibility of Bolshevism and chaos in Germany.

The Cabinet met yesterday noon and continued its session until late in the day. The Peace Commission began deliberating on the Entente answer at 6 o'clock last night.

Scheidemann Urges Calmness.

Philipp Scheidemann, the German Chancellor, in speaking to the Peace Commission of the National Assembly today, said that the allied reply to the German counterproposals, without the complete text, did not yet permit of final

British Grand Fleet is Again Ready for Action; Report R-34 Cruised Over Berlin Yesterday

LONDON, Thursday, June 19.—The morning newspapers make a feature of British naval and other preparations in the event of Germany refusing to sign the Treaty of Peace and print under big headlines several unofficial reports current during the night.

The Grand Fleet has again been placed on a war footing, it is reported, and is ready to sail for German waters at a moment's notice.

A telegram from Copenhagen reports the arrival there of a dozen British cruisers and several destroyers prepared to enforce the blockade.

It is also stated that the dirigible R-34 has been diverted from her transatlantic trip, equipped with bombs and machine guns, and has been sent or is going to the Baltic, while her companion aircraft, the R-33, similarly equipped, left Wednesday for a cruise, which will include the Kiel Canal.

According to some reports, the R-34, which is over the Baltic, is not armed nor loaded with bombs, but is undergoing final trial preparatory to an Atlantic voyage.

The Daily Sketch says the R-34 was over Berlin at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

BERLIN EXPRESSES FEAR OF UPHEAVAL

BERLIN, June 17.—The covering note in the Entente's reply has simply stupified those who read it in Vorwärts, the only paper which has so far made its reappearance, its managers having come to an agreement with the strikers.

According to a well known politician, though the people were pessimistic they never expected such a "wholesale heaping of insult upon injury."

If such a thing as public opinion can be formed within a few hours, since about 20 per cent. of Berlin's population have become acquainted with the contents of the Entente reply, the general view is that such opinion is decidedly against signing the treaty. Even among the Independent Socialists none can be found today who advise accepting such a peace. Hasse himself declared to his intimates that the Versailles reply was unacceptable.

The disappointment among the Independents and Communists is very great, because they believe that the Entente's reply will enormously strengthen the hands of what they call the "Camarilla," in which term they include the leading military men, certain militant junkers and captains of industry, and a few members of the Government.

The Independents actually fear that the Entente's reply will provoke the masses to such a degree that the nationalist movement, already quietly spreading, will cause a general upheaval which will create an atmosphere propitious for a military dictatorship, and that then a turn against Poland and the "inner enemy," meaning the Independents, Communists, and anarchists will become inevitable, and that its developments will be more cruel than the world war ever was.

It is asserted by the Independents that the "Camarilla" has prepared a list of over 3,000 persons who will be immediately arrested when opposition against military rule is asserted. The Independents assume that the present Government, because it is unable to solve the peace problem, will be overthrown within a very short time.

The conditions are too complicated at present to judge adequately how much truth or exaggeration there is in all these predictions and assertions, but the general view is that the worst may be looked for within the near future.

Most of the leaders of the regular Socialist Party being absent at Weimar, only minor chieftains were encountered at various organization headquarters today. They all echoed Friedrich Stampfer's leader in Vorwärts, telegraphed from Weimar to Berlin, which concludes:

"Within the next four days the most important decision in our history will be taken, but whatever that be, it will not be final; not final, because the German people cannot give up the battle for right and life. May they be strong enough to continue the battle powerfully by opposing unacceptable and dishonorable demands of Entente capitalism with an unswerving 'No.'"

This undoubtedly represents not only the opinion of the Socialist Party leaders, but also that of most, if not all, the members of the Government.

In mercantile circles the worst is feared for the German rate of exchange in the next few days. The Stock Exchange remained unaffected because the news was not known until after its close. At Reichroeders, where of all Berlin banks the largest stock of war loan securities is held, large blocks were

READY TO RESUME INVASION ON ORDER

Allied Armies Will Advance at 5 A. M. Monday if Germans Refuse to Sign.

PLAN FOR 3-DAY MARCH

It Would Carry the Allies 130 Miles East and Seize the Richest Industrial Regions.

COBLENZ, June 18.—I am able to give a semi-official synopsis of the military movements to be undertaken, should the Germans fail to sign the allied peace terms.

The armistice will end at 5 o'clock in the morning. At that moment the allied armies will move forward in an easterly direction between the junction of the Rhine and Lippe Rivers on the north and Mannheim on the south. Orders had been issued from Marshal Foch's headquarters to be ready for this move on the morning of the 21st, but a telegram received last night put the date two days later. In other words, under the latest plan the movement is scheduled to start at 5 A. M. Monday should the Germans not sign or should no further delay be ordered.

The average advance of the allied armies between the given northerly and southerly limits, as the troops moved in a direction generally northeast by east, would be for the first stage 100 kilometers from the eastern limits of the respective bridgeheads, or to a line approximately 130 miles east of the Rhine, or, roughly, 100 miles beyond the river. This movement would be completed in three days.

On the first day the advance forces would be sent out in trucks to the limits as laid down. On the second day supporting forces would reach these limits, and on the third day the artillery and supply movements would be completed. That would constitute the first move. Plans in advance of that are in the hands of the Allied Supreme War Council.

This movement would more than double the amount of German territory in allied hands.

For military reasons I will not give the exact line to be taken up by the Allied armies at the end of the 100-kilometers' advance. Roughly speaking, the English advance would [deleted by the censor].

One has but to trace this line on the map of Germany to see that the Allies would take possession of the richest part of Germany and millions of its inhabitants. Into British hands would fall the great Ruhr territory, with its important coal mines and industrial centres. Essen, Solingen, Düsseldorf, Barmen, and Elberfeld, constituting the industrial heart of Germany, would come under the Union Jack.

Wooded Regions on Our Front.

It so happens that the territory in front of the Americans would not yield us any large cities. Ours would be mostly wooded and agricultural territory. We would occupy Siegen, Giessen, (with some 35,000 inhabitants,) Marburg, (with 25,000,) and Wetzlar.

The French advance would bring an enormous German population under French control. Frankfort, with 1,000,000 inhabitants, is of course the largest city. Mannheim, a great industrial centre; Darmstadt, Aschaffenburg, Offenbach, Hanau, Bad Nauheim, and Friedberg are some of the other towns the French would take over.

Looking more closely at the American effort: After an advance we would hold a front of 100 kilometers, roughly from [deleted] on the south to [deleted] on the north. The country between the Rhine and this line has been carefully mapped, and details of what is expected of it have been furnished to each unit.

The advance will be made, of course, by the 1st, 2d, and 3d Divisions, with

FRENCH COUNT ON ARMIES

Believe Fear of Invasion Will Finally Force German Agreement.

HAVE PROJECT IN RESERVE

This Would Be the Making of Separate Peace and Creation of Buffer States.

BELGIANS LESS HOPEFUL

They Looked Forward Pessimistically to More Expenses by New Operations.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—The French belief at the beginning of this last week of negotiations is that Germany will sign on the day or day after orders are given to the allied troops to march.

One of the arguments supporting the French belief that Germany will finally submit rather than have the country invaded is found in the recent separation movement in the Rhine provinces. Whether the republic proclaimed by Dorten was genuine or not, the principle holds good that one great danger Prussia has to fear is the possibility that other German States may separate themselves from her and become independent. This applies to Baden, Württemberg, Bavaria, Westphalia, and Hanover. Any one of them might prefer separating itself from Prussia if by so doing it might escape long occupation by the allied troops and become instead of occupied enemy territory an independent buffer State with troops passed through and beyond its frontiers into Prussia.

Furthermore, one of the devices which the French Foreign Office has had in reserve for a last resort in an emergency is to offer a separate peace treaty to each of these non-Prussian German States. As they were put together at Versailles forty-eight years ago, France would delight to pull them apart in the same place.

In sharp contrast with the feeling of assurance at the American and British headquarters and the French Foreign Office, there is a gloomy certainty among the Belgian delegates to the Peace Conference that the Germans will not sign the Peace Treaty. The Belgians are not doubtful. On the contrary, they feel sure that there will be no signature. They are even more fixed in their pessimism than are the other delegations in their optimism, but apparently they can give no reason other than that they feel that way.

"There is in our opinion not the least likelihood that the Germans will sign," said one member. "By next Monday you will see the allied troops resuming their march toward Berlin. There must be a new Government at Berlin and a new German delegation at Versailles before we can finish the war. And with a new group of Germans to deal with, the work of the last six months must be done all over. But the present Government and the present delegation cannot be superseded in a week's time, so you will see the allied troops resuming their march toward Berlin."

Asked how many days' march would be required to compel the signing, he replied:

"I don't think the invasion will be much of a factor in coercing the Germans to sign. They are very clever. They will not offer the slightest opposition to the allied troops, but will tell them in effect to come in and assume the responsibility of police work for the whole country at the expense of the Allies. We cannot kill them, cannot destroy their fields and houses in a march of invasion which is not opposed. We cannot take revenge for their march into our countries. We shall not be able to starve them into submission by making use of our blockade power because the most dominating and powerful statesmen among ourselves will not tolerate their starvation.

"The longer we cause them to postpone resuming their normal industry the longer we postpone such redress as we are to get. We shall not be able to retain permanently such territory as we may occupy. We shall not be able to make them pay the costs of invasion, for if Germany, when completely defeated militarily, cannot be made to sign this treaty, she will not sign one carrying still greater financial burdens.

"We have ample physical force. Our position on paper seems impregnable, but we will not let ourselves use that force.

"Germany has won much since the armistice by our delays, by our ambition to do too much in the construction of the Peace Treaty. She will win the rest

Activity Revives About Ex-Kaiser's Refuge, Presumably in Connection With Peace Crisis

AMERONGEN, June 17, (Associated Press.)—The former German Emperor's place of exile at Ameropgen Castle again became somewhat animated last night, after a long period of uneventfulness.

Lieut. Colonel Hoefer of the Dutch Army dined at the castle with William Hohenzollern and Dr. Kriege, Director of the German Foreign Office, who had returned to Amerongen from Berlin.

Today Colonel von Esebek, dressed in civilian clothes, was brought by General von Esdorff to the castle from Arnhem, where he had arrived direct from Germany. The reason for the visit of the Germans has not been ascertained, but it is generally assumed that it is in connection with the situation existing in Germany after the announcement of the reply of the Allies to the German counterproposals to the peace terms. General von Esdorff is about to leave for Germany.

The former Emperor expressed great interest recently when informed that a party of twelve American Navy sailors from Rotterdam had visited Amerongen and taken snapshots of the castle and its surroundings. He asked the attendants what ships the Americans came from, and was exceedingly annoyed when informed that they had not noticed the names of the vessels.

QUICK WORK IN GIVING GERMANS MORE TIME

Dutasta Informed Them of Grant of Two Days' Concession as They Were Departing.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 17.—The circumstances under which Germany obtained an extension of the period of grace allowed her to indicate whether she would sign the treaty are interesting and somewhat dramatic. Herr Simon, who received for the Germans the notification from Dutasta, Secretary General of the Peace Conference, expressed his chagrin and astonishment over the short time granted, and said it would take two days for the German plenipotentiaries to get to Weimar and two days to return, which would leave only one day for consideration of the allied final notes.

M. Dutasta was impressed and returned to Paris by automobile at the rate of seventy miles an hour, and laid the case before Premier Clemenceau. The latter communicated with President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George by telephone, and it was arranged to extend the time two days. M. Dutasta returned to Versailles at a seventy-mile gait and informed the German delegates of the extension just as they were taking their special train for Weimar.

One of the interesting disclosures today is that of the helpful exchanges which have been taking place between the allied and German plenipotentiaries through the medium of the allied and enemy economic experts, who have been obliged to have personal meetings to arrange the details of the economic features of the treaty. Messrs. Lamont, Baruch, McCormick, and Davis of the American mission participated in these meetings. In the most informal manner each side expressed its views concerning possible treaty modifications, and as a result the allied plenipotentiaries were made aware that certain changes which they had made would be satisfactory to the Germans.

M. Clemenceau has sent a note to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau expressing his regret at the hostile demonstration made at Versailles when the German delegation was leaving.

The belief that Brockdorff-Rantzau will not return to Versailles is strengthened by the knowledge that the British have conveyed a strong hint to the German Government that he is unacceptable as the enemy's chief representative. His arrogant address to the allied plenipotentiaries and the fact that he represents the Junker element are responsible for this attitude on the part of the British.

CLEMENCEAU MAKES APOLOGY TO GERMANS

Writes That Officials Will Be Removed for Permitting Versailles Demonstration.

PARIS, June 18.—Premier Clemenceau, as President of the Peace Conference, has sent the following letter to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, President of the German delegation, expressing his regret for the recent demonstration against German delegates at Versailles:

"Mr. President: I have been informed that at the time of the departure from Versailles of the German delegation last Monday night a crowd gathered at the doors of your residence, and that some noisy incidents followed. I hasten to express to you my full regrets for acts which are so contrary to the laws of hospitality. These manifestations could only have happened because of the absence of a certain number of police officials who had been called away on duty in the neighborhood of Versailles.

"The Prefect of the Seine and Oise Department will offer an apology to Herr von Haniel [Haniel von Haimhausen] and will be relieved from office, as well as the Police Commissioner, for not having taken appropriate measures, which had been ordered.

"I beg you to accept, Mr. President, the assurances of my high consideration.

"CLEMENCEAU."

The demonstration, according to the Petit Parisien, apparently had its inception in the crowd's interpretation of some gesture by a German typewriter or secretary as a provocative act.

The throwing of stones and sticks, which struck two Germans, occurred as the automobiles of the Germans passed through Chesnay, Roquencourt, and Bailly, suburban points, on their way to the railway station at Noisy-le-Roi. At Versailles the demonstration was confined to hooting and jeering. Two French military chauffeurs, struck by bricks, were more seriously injured than were the German delegates.

AMERICANS IN SIBERIA SPLIT WITH JAPANESE

VLADIVOSTOK, June 16, (Associated Press.)—Differences in the policy of the American and the Japanese military authorities here toward attacking bands has resulted in a suggestion that some authority other than a military representative take the initiative as a means of co-ordinating the various policies. One of the differences noted is the disposition of the American forces, who are guarding vital points on the railroads, tunnels, and bridges, to declare armed bands to be outlawed as Bolsheviki only after such forces actually have attacked the guarded railroad points, while the Japanese have been accustomed to proceed against the Bolsheviki whenever they believed attacks were contemplated.

Relations between the American and Russian officials, it is generally remarked, are better now than at any time since the American representatives arrived in Siberia, although agitators still are continuing their anti-American propaganda campaign.

OMSK, June 12, (Associated Press.)—A conflict of authority between Colonel C. H. Morrow, commander of the American guard at Verkhnie-Udinsk, in the Lake Baikal region, and General Semenoff, which threatened complications, has been adjusted amicably, according to official informtion here.

"There is nothing new in the general accusations made against the German people," said the Chancellor, "but we must note with regret that the Allies have rejected the proposal for the establishment of a neutral tribunal which alone should impartially examine these accusations. It is also lamentable that the whole nation should be charged with the offenses and crimes alleged.

"This charge is to constitute justification for the heavy conditions which, according to the second section of the covering note, are to be imposed on the German people.

"The justification put forward for the projected settlement of affairs in the East permits of little hope that we can reckon on substantial conciliations in the detailed memorandum. That also holds good for the remaining territorial questions, many points regarding which and also those regarding financial and economic questions referred to in the covering note are still quite obscure.

Pleads for "Open Mind."

"In view of the obscurities at present, and the fact that all the material is not yet at hand, a decision cannot be taken today—Tuesday. Only the final and complete text of the enemy's answer can furnish a basis for deliberations between the Government and the peace committee.

"The German nation, the National Assembly, and the Government are confronted with the most momentous decision. It is, therefore, their duty, whatever as individuals they may think of the peace question, to approach this decision with an entirely open mind. No one must have any doubts that the nation is confronted with very hard times."

Herr Scheidemann deplored the absence of adequate protection for the German delegates on their departure from Versailles. He said that a protest had been made, but that the Government would reserve its attitude until an official report had been received.

Growing Hostility to Treaty.

COPENHAGEN, June 18.—The amended peace terms have aroused a sentiment of growing implacability in Germany and armed intervention by the Allies is regarded as inevitable, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Politiken.

It is reported that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the head of the peace delegation, and Mathias Erzberger, Chairman of the Armistice Commission, have reconciled their differences. The correspondent says that if the report is true the reconciliation will have an important bearing on the acceptance or non-acceptance of the terms.

The Fremdenblatt of Hamburg says it learns that the allied terms have caused great excitement in Eastern Germany, where the population is ready to reopen the fight.

Vorwaerts Assails Terms.

BERLIN, June 17, (Associated Press.)—In concluding a violent denunciation of the treatment given to Germany by the Allies, the Vorwärts says:

"If the Entente's covering note describes the war as the greatest crime against humanity, it is certain that there is yet another and greater crime against humanity. That is this so-called peace."

The Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"Whatever we do will be terrible. Germany is in no position to refuse to sign the treaty when the signature is forced by an ultimatum. Let us resign ourselves to the inevitable and hope for a better future."

PARIS, June 17.—The Matin's editorial comment on the allied reply to the German counterproposals is substantially a warning to Germany not to be misled by appearances into supposing that defiance will be of the slightest avail. Like other leading French newspapers, the Matin complains that the original treaty did not give France adequate reparations and guarantees. The revised treaty, it says, "actually reduces these guarantees and reparations yet further."

The Journal says:

"The Clemenceau letter attempts to remove by firmness of language the impression of weakness produced by concessions that are only too real."

The Echo de Paris remarks:

"The vigor of the accusations contained in the letter is in striking contrast with the basic weakness in the actual treaty. We find in this long apostrophe the splendid of articles and speeches that re-echoed in the press and Parliament during the four years of war. The memory of them sometimes makes one want to cry: 'How glorious was peace during the war!' But the articles of the treaty, when they are known, will prove all too poor a conclusion for so superb a proem."

But, the writer continues, the Germans will make a great error if they imagine that the length of the negotiations, or the economic troubles produced in France thereby, or the failure of the allied statesmen to settle all the problems before them justify them in resistance. "Let them not think that because they as victors would have acted very differently, therefore perhaps the Allies are not really victorious, after all. Let them not argue from that that their refusal to sign would cause internal trouble in France such as they have been hoping for since Aug. 2, 1914. Have they not yet learned the lesson that when occasion demands Frenchmen stand together, solid as a rock, behind their chiefs? What if the treaty gives France only a minimum of the guarantees and reparations? Then all the more is that minimum irreducible. Because we find that our negotiators are too weak, that is no reason for us to weaken them yet more. The treaty realizes only incomplete justice—then it is not for Germany to complain, but for France.

"So far as pure right is concerned, we might wish that Germany would refuse to sign. Then France would be authorized to do, for instance, to Essen what has been done to Rheims, to revise the treaty and introduce more severe conditions. That is the only result that can come from Germany's refusal to sign. Let her abandon hope of dividing Frenchmen. To force Germany's obedience, they are all behind their Government."

As if to emphasize this warning the Matin reprints a German caricature published in the Lustige Bilderkalendar in 1872. It represents a spike-helmeted soldier with a menacing sword holding the French cock over a platter containing objects marked "Alsace-Lorraine; five billions." The caption is: "Prussian Soldier to Gallic Cock—Swallow bird, or die!" To throw back that taunt in Germany's teeth is France's answer today.

LONDON PRESS AT ODDS.

The Times Suspects "Highly Dubious" Concessions to Germans.

LONDON, June 18, (via Montreal.)—Commenting on the final terms to the Germans, The Daily Telegraph says:

"The original terms have stood an unexampled fire of criticism from every imaginable quarter and have survived it fairly well. They will be imposed substantially unchanged. All the modifications now conceded have only one purpose, namely, to render the character of justice they display still more unmistakable."

The Times thinks there is a suggestion of some highly dubious concessions made through German importunity. It is not surprised at French doubts concerning the admission of Germany to the League of Nations at an early date.

The Daily News says that in so far as the terms have been modified they have been modified to Germany's advantage, but they remain substantially as in the original draft. Refusal to sign, it says, would be a disaster for Germany and a misfortune for the whole world.

The Daily Graphic says:

"The Germans escape full financial responsibility despite all Lloyd George's promises during the last election, but it is satisfactory to note that the Allies are firm on bringing the Kaiser to trial, which, if fairly conducted, will do more to prevent further wars than a dozen Leagues of Nations."

LONDON PRESS URGES ACTION ON IRELAND

Unofficial Commission of Americans Suggested to Report Impartially on Conditions.

MACPHERSON IS CRITICISED

LONDON, June 18.—A Dublin dispatch to the Daily Mail says that Sir Horace Plunkett, Chairman of the Irish Convention, in speaking of a recent remark by Viscount Northcliffe in which the latter referred to the "future Dominion of Ireland," said:

"I believe things are moving that way. Of this we shall know more a fortnight hence."

While several newspapers welcome the statement made yesterday by James Ian Macpherson, Chief Secretary of Ireland, as a "complete and crushing refutation of Irish-American falsehoods," the Daily News thinks he would have done better to let the charges made by Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne "answer themselves, as some of their allegations could only be believed by those who wish to be deceived."

"As it is," the newspaper continues, "the public will note halting admissions in some of Mr. Macpherson's denials. His statements scarcely conceal the fact that the present government of Ireland is purely a military occupation and that the bulk of the population is organized against it. The power of the Sinn Fein is written all over Mr. Macpherson's reply."

The London evening newspapers, while indorsing Mr. Macpherson's refutations of the American committee's charges, generally conclude by urging the Government to settle the Irish question.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:

"Irishmen have been commissioned to devise a policy and to draft a constitution for Ireland and have failed. Is it not time the Government took the matter into its own hands?"

The Westminster Gazette says:

"There is only one answer which will meet the case, and that is a settlement of the Irish problem, or, at least, an honest attempt to settle it."

The Evening Standard suggests the American Embassy should be approached with a view to the appointment of an unofficial commission of Americans to report impartially on Irish conditions.

PARIS, June 17.—Frank P. Walsh and Edward F. Dunne have received notice from the Secretary of the conference that the resolution on the Irish question passed by the United States Senate has been presented to the conference. They have also been informed that their previous report on atrocities has been forwarded to the State Department in Washington for transmission to Congress.

TO TELL GERMANS LATER OF SOME CONCESSIONS

Shipping Agreement and Plans to Supply Raw Materials to be Told in Detail.

PARIS, June 17.—The memorandum handed to the German plenipotentiaries Monday was printed textually here today, but added little to the general knowledge of changes in the treaty. The memorandum deals hardly more precisely with alterations and amendments than did the official summary cabled Monday to the United States.

Those familiar with the amended treaty maintain that the German authorities can, on the basis of the amended instrument, make out a "telling argument for signature based on concessions obtained through negotiations."

It was originally contemplated to include in the reply given the Germans Monday a definite and detailed statement on these concessions. For tactical reasons, however, the Council determined to avoid precise advance assurances to the Germans and thereupon made in the portion of the response devoted to reparations a general declaration as follows:

"The rebirth of German industry implies the possibility for the German people to receive supplies of food and for German manufacturers to receive necessary raw materials, as well as the means of transporting them from overseas to Germany."

Added to this was a formal statement of readiness to accord these facilities to Germany in the common interest.

The French also agreed to concessions, giving the Germans the right to purchase on favorable terms minette ores obtained before the war from French and German Lorraine, which must be mixed with German low-grade ores to obtain a good quality of iron and steel.

ALREADY DISCUSSING DISARMAMENT PLANS

Committees Are Preparing Reports for Presentation at October League Meeting.

PARIS, June 18, (Associated Press.)—The indications are that the initial project for the limitations of the armaments of the great naval and military powers will be ready for presentation at the first meeting of the League of Nations in Washington in October. While the plans are subject to the signing and ratification of the treaty several committees are preparing a general outline of work which will include, besides organization, many important subjects under the direction of the League, including disarmament.

The allied reply to the German counter proposals made the definite statement that the Allies intended to begin "immediate negotiations" for the limitation of armaments. It was explained in conference quarters today that the immediate negotiations contemplated were to be under the League of Nations, and that a plan would be ready for presentation at the October meeting.

The plans for limitation apply to American as well as European countries.

BEATEN OFF FROM CASTLE

Escaped Prisoners' Attack Revealed by Premature Shots, Which Rouse Troops.

BERLIN, June 18.—A semi-official statement today gives this account of disorders which took place at Weimar last night:

"At Weimar last night sixty military prisoners and a few criminals escaped from prison and disarmed the military guard. A fusillade ensued in the neighborhood of the castle, several being wounded.

"The plan made to force a way into the castle failed. Some of the prisoners were recaptured, while others surrendered this morning."

WEIMAR, June 18, (Associated Press.)—Fifty Spartacide and Communist prisoners, released from the Weimar jail, attacked the castle, where the members of the Government live, shortly after midnight this morning. They were repulsed by a lone guard, who stood by a machine gun until he had driven off the mob.

The attacking party made a surprise descent upon the castle and disarmed the guards at the entrance. They indulged in firing through the windows, and this aroused the castle troops.

It was apparently the intention of the party to seize President Ebert, Premier Scheidemann, and Gustav Noske, the Minister of Defense, but they were foiled through their premature shots, revealing the attack to the troops within the building.

The casualties in the fighting were five Spartacides and one Government guard, while twenty-eight Spartacides were captured. The men who attacked the castle had hidden a number of loaded rifles in the bushes surrounding it.

Later in the night further shooting was heard, which at first was a mystery, but later it was learned that the firing had been done by Government troops sent out to repulse an attack by Erfurt Spartacides, who had planned a raid on Weimar simultaneously with the attack on the castle. The connection of the Erfurt Spartacides with the whole plot has not been cleared up.

The situation was calm this morning, but at all the public buildings the guards were increased. The officials refused to give any information as to the attack.

LONDON, June 18.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen says that the Spartacide attempt at Weimar was more serious than had been supposed.

The Spartacides, it is asserted, had the entire castle in their possession and were on the point of arresting the Ministers when General Maercker, who was engaged at the station directing the movement of troops, heard the firing and led the troops to the castle, arriving there in time to frustrate the Spartacide plan.

Reuter's Berlin correspondent confirms the statement that General Maercker's troops, who were about to entrain to suppress trouble at Erfurt, saved a critical situation at Weimar, though it is stated that the castle had not been actually invaded, the heavy iron door having been closed in time by the guard. Maercker's men occupied the castle, the post and telegraph offices, and prevented further developments.

FRENCH CABINET VICTORY.

Chamber Expresses Confidence in It by 349 Votes to 157.

PARIS, June 17.—Confidence in the Government was voted in the Chamber of Deputies today, 349 to 157, following a tumultuous session during which the mutiny of the sailors of the Black Sea fleet was discussed.

Closing the debate for the Government, M. Pichon, Foreign Minister, declared the trouble was due entirely to Bolshevist propaganda and said the Chamber "must decide between the democratic inter-allied policy and the policy of the Socialists, who want France to abdicate before the Bolsheviki."

offered but refused because a terrific drop is expected.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent had a telephone interview with the military authorities at Münster, who said that they had prepared some time ago for an allied invasion and removed all valuable army property to Central Germany. Of course, no defense is planned. The German troops will simply evacuate the Rhenish garrison towns as soon as the Entente army is set in motion if that is done.

Rhenish industrial circles are dispairing or resigned in the belief that they will be ruined anyway, either by the continuous strikes of German workmen or the prospective military measures by the Entente, for none of them, it is said, expects that any German Government can be found willing to sign the Versailles conditions.

Yesterday afternoon a rumor spread in Berlin that the German Armistice Commission had already left Spa, but the Foreign Office denied it.

The Catholic organ, Germania, which reappeared late this afternoon, refrained from any comment but headed its account of the note "As Bad as We Expected."

ERZBERGER RALLIES FORCES FOR PEACE

He Is Strongly Backed by Moderate and Conservative Elements at Weimar.

BY GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WEIMAR, June 15.—Here in Weimar it is difficult to believe that a week of historic and tragic import for Germany is opening.

This classic town has nothing of the tense political atmosphere of Berlin. Its historic buildings are set in Summer's brightest green. Everywhere are the myriad hues of June's flowers and the eternal tapestries of varicolored mosses.

Here it is as if war and revolution had never been save in some distant past. Here one is back in the times of Goethe, Schiller and Liszt. One may sup in a garden known to the Teutonic knights, walk where Wieland walked or listen to service in the vast church which was that of the poet-preacher Herder. But it is here that the tremendous decision, resulting from the war and the revolution, will have to be made.

The entire Government is now here and is housed in the vast circle which Goethe helped Duke Karl August to build in those romantic days of more than a hundred years ago. The Government, which appears to have a fairly accurate notion of what the fateful news from Versailles will be, sits, it may be said, in almost continuous cabinet session.

Leaders Committed Against Terms.

The moment Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau receives the reply of the allied and associated Governments he will bear the gist of it to Weimar and then the whole German peace delegation will follow here. The National Assembly will at once meet and discuss the reply.

What its attitude will be is, of course, known to the Government, which has been in consultation with the heads of the various factions. The Government's policy remains, as I already on more than one occasion have indicated, one of refusal of the terms unless they are altered to something very closely approaching the German counterproposals. Scheidemann, Dernburg, David, and Noske are firm on that point. They have, indeed, committed themselves so completely that they could not withdraw from their position.

There is some talk to the effect that the Government will leave the decision entirely to the National Assembly, but should that body forget the violent speeches it made when it met recently in Berlin and voted for signature, despite the absence of substantial and radical concessions, then the position of the non-signers in the Government would be impossible and the peace delegation would go into retirement with them.

Those in favor of signing are not strong in the Government ranks, but at the head of them is that political adventurer, he who was the author of the peace resolution of July, 1917, he who gave the dying empire of the Kaiser the hardest blows it sustained and who has played a notable rôle in the republic—Mathias Erzberger, chief of the Armistice Commission.

Strong Backing for Erzberger.

There are those here who believe in the possibility of something like an Erzberger coup. It is an open secret that some little time ago he changed his mind with regard to signing the treaty. He would appear to calculate on a number of things.

The people generally are confused and tired of it. All the news from Versailles, Geneva, Berne, and The Hague tend to make their mental confusion worse confounded. Erzberger can certainly count on the powerful Roman Catholic support on some backing even from the majority Socialists, and on help from the Democrats in such circumstances. It is quite probable that he may spring a surprise on the country.

Some reports have it that Erzberger has swung around on account of private negotiations with factors on the other side. With him the whole matter is one of tactics. He will get into any saddle which will carry him to his goal. He may have the support of the powerful Count Bernstorff.

The ever-optimistic Erzberger has succeeded in apparently desperate political adventures before. He may not be adverse to testing his fortune again. He doubtless hopes to swing the centre of political gravity more toward the Right, and relies most certainly on support from great capitalistic interests, which naturally are not all interested in seeing socialism firmly fixed in governmental seats. So he hopes to build a new Government eventually on the firm rock of the middle party and capitalistic elements.

Drifting from Socialism.

Perhaps he has been strengthened by the extremely poor showing made by majority socialism at the conference which has spread out its dismally dull proceedings over a week here. It was with no little difficulty that one could believe it was a Socialistic conference, and it has made an extremely bad impression on those who had looked for signs of real socialism from the majority party's representatives. It has been quite barren of initiative or inspiration, and nothing that the Government members said provided any evidence that it was very much in earnest about socialism.

Erzberger may think that the political stars in their courses are fighting for him.

the 4th and 5th behind them. On the morning of the advance, if it takes place, the doughboys will be loaded into trucks and rushed that same day to the objective line, which they will hold until the main forces arrive on the second day, with the movement to be completed on the third. The supply plans call for the use of both railroads and trucks. Our air forces will also be called into play. Our supplies and ammunition are up to full schedule.

Sniping Will Be Sternly Dealt With.

While no military resistance is expected, the movement would be made on a strict wartime basis, with the troops ready to meet and overcome resistance in any form. It is known that the German War Ministry has no plans for organized resistance, but it is realized that great numbers of volunteer military organizations might, under some call to shield the Fatherland, be so foolish as to offer resistance. All will be ready for that. A vast amount of German military material stored just ahead of the Allied lines since last December has been removed eastward, but it is not known exactly how far.

Civilians have been advised by the German authorities not to flee before the allied troops should they advance, but to remain in orderly fashion in their homes. All Germans of military age in the invaded district would be enrolled and compelled to report frequently, but if they made no trouble would probably not be interned. So far as the Americans are concerned there will be no shots of any kind fired unless the Germans start trouble. Any sniping or guerilla warfare will be dealt with summarily and severely.

With the approach of the time for decision interest grows tense among the American troops, who want to go home or do something. If they do something they will enjoy the honor of being at Marburg, the nearest of the allied forces to Berlin—that point being about one-third of the distance between Coblenz and the German capital.

Liggett Suspends All Leaves.

COBLENZ, June 17, (Associated Press.)—The concentration of troops preparatory to advancing farther into Germany if the Germans refuse to sign the terms of peace will begin on Wednesday throughout all the occupied area. Orders to this effect were received today from Marshal Foch, Commander in Chief of the allied armies, who sent similar orders to all the allied forces on German soil.

Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, commander of the American forces in the Coblenz area, said today after an inspection trip of the bridgehead outposts and the headquarters of divisions along the Rhine, that the American forces were all ready to move ahead at a moment's notice. All leaves to soldiers permitting them to visit recreation points within the American zone have been suspended until it is known whether the Germans will accept or reject the peace conditions.

If orders come to go ahead the Americans will advance in combat formation, prepared for any emergency, with the artillery and supply trains following close upon the heels of the infantry.

files of the Soviet Bureau, and translated an article which was received in evidence. The article—a dispatch to the Tageblatt from its correspondent at The Hague—read:

The Daily News announces that in New York and America exist a systematic Bolshevist agitation. The American industrials have already been warned and are handling the situation with the greatest care. They are even sending experts to Europe to study conditions there. The unrest that has seized American public affairs for the moment comes through the activities of the official representative of the Bolshevist Government, Mr. Martens, whose business quarters are in the vicinity of Wall Street. It deals with the American business world by offering gold credits, for which he has at his disposal in all about 40,000,000 pounds sterling, which is to be used for firms desiring to establish business relations with Russia. Martens is pictured as a quiet man, who is well aware of his responsibility. To welcome him a theatre was rented, in which 6,000 persons or more had congregated. A newspaper known as The Rebel Worker was sold and, as red flags are not allowed to be displayed in America, many women wore red dresses. At this meeting a Soviet America was demanded and the actual American Government was hissed. The revolution in Hungary was wildly agreed with.

The witness testified that his attention had been attracted to the copy of the Tageblatt because it bore a red stenciled mark, and being able to read German, he had translated the article.

Socialists Send Greetings.

The first document introduced was a letter from the Socialist organization of the Eighth Assembly District in Manhattan. It read:

April 21, 1919.

Greetings: The members of the Eighth Assembly District Local, New York Socialist Party of America, in regular meeting assembled, this third day of April, 1919, send greetings to you and pledge our cooperation in establishing the first representative of the workers' government of Russia in America. We also pledge ourselves to work unceasingly for the propagation of those principles, policies, and tactics that will tend directly to the establishment of a Socialist Federated Soviet Republic in America.

REBECCA BOUHAY, Secretary.

The seal of the Socialist Party appeared under the signature.

This answer, sent by Martens, which had been found in the files attached to the letter, was also read:

May 6, 1919.

Dear Comrade: I thank you in the name of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic for the greetings you sent me.

I trust that your devotion to the cause of the Russian Soviet Republic will serve the Russian proletariat as well as the proletariat of other countries as a support in their struggle for their final emancipation.

L. A. MARTENS,

Representative in the United States of the People's Commissariat of Foreign Affairs.

The next exhibit was a letter to the Bolshevist envoy from Manhattan Circle No. 6, Young People's Socialistic League, with headquarters at 1,538 Madison Avenue. The letter follows:

Comrade L. A. C. K. Martens:—We, the membership of Circle 6 of Manhattan of the Young People's Socialistic League, herewith extend our heartiest greetings to you and through you to our Rusians comrades across the sea. The spirit of brotherhood shall never be stamped out of the hearts of the young. We are ready to meet and battle for the future. There shall come a time when these United States of America will send a representative of their Soviet republic to Russia. Until then we are yours for the world revolution and brotherhood.

CIRCLE 6, MANHATTAN.
DAVID LEVISON, Organizer.

"I will state for the information of the committee," said Attorney General Newton after this letter had been read, "that there was an answer, substantially in the same language as the other which I will ask leave to offer in evidence a little later when it is handed to me."

Ignore War of the Reds.

A letter written in Russia, seized in the raid, was translated by George J. Starr. It had been sent to Mr. Martens by the Russian branch of the Socialist Party, the Ukrainian Federation of the Socialist Party and the Polish Socialist Party Organization, all of Passaic, New Jersey. At the moment the letter was written Bolshevist Russia had its Red Guard arrayed for battle on a Polish and a Ukrainian front in Europe. The letter follows:

Greetings to the representative of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic:

From the Russian, Polish, and Ukranian branches of the American Socialist Parties of the City of Passaic, N. J.

At a special business meeting of the three branches, which occurred on March 31 in the branches' club, 118 Third Street, it was resolved to send to you, as the representative of the Russian Republic in the United States, the following greeting:

We, the members of the three branches, in the presence of persons and members of the branches, warmly greet you, Comrade L. A. Martens, as the first representative of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic. We wish you a rapid success in your activities for the benefit of the Russian Republic.

We hope that your activities will become a strong impress for the benefit of the entire laboring proletariat of the whole world, and that by your activities there will be established a connection between the American proletariat and the Russian revolutionary proletariat Soviet Government.

We also protest and demand the immediate recall from the limits of the Russian Soviet Republic of the allied troops, and the opening by the Allies of the frontiers for the free passage of European citizens to their fatherland.

The letter was signed by the Secretaries of the three branches. Attorney General Newton announced that Martens had sent an answer and that he would produce it in evidence, presumably when Martens appears as a witness.

Archibald E. Stevenson, Secretary of the Union League Club and associate counsel of the Legislative Committee, was called to read the records seized which had a bearing on the anarchist and I. W. W. cases growing out of the May Day demonstration at Chester, in which Martens took such interest. Mr. Stevenson is credited with having arranged the raid and taking part in it.

The first document read by Mr. Stevenson was marked "Confidential Report" to the Russian Soviet Bureau and was signed by Charles Recht, of counsel for the Bolshevist Mission. In it he tells of going to Philadelphia to aid the Reds arrested in Chester. Recht reported that upon his arrival in Philadelphia he had conferred with a friend, "a District Attorney of the County of Philadelphia," who at his request had called an attorney in Chester named Albert Geary. According to the report, Mr. Geary said he represented the Eddystone Munitions Works and a number of other corporations and could not undertake the defense of the Reds. He finally consented to see Mr. Recht, who then called upon him in Chester.

"I was amazed at the temper with which he told me about the case," the report continued. "He boasted of the fact that there was no lawyer in Chester who would dare to defend these wretches. He said it was a good thing that those fellows did not get the protection of the law."

Favored Release of Debs.

It appeared from what followed of the report that a young woman had presided at the meeting and that the second speaker had advocated the release of all political prisoners, including Eugene V. Debs.

"The attorney," Recht reported, "said that Mr. Debs was a 'stinking, flea-bitten, rotten skunk.' That about expresses the temper with which he delivered himself. He insulted me right and left and demanded to know my own opinions, and when I told him that I believed that Mr. Debs should never have been sent to jail he told me he had my number."

Mr. Recht's report went on to say that Mr. Geary informed him that sixty-four of the men arrested had been fined $30 each, and that all but twenty had paid the fines. Four others had been held in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury. Together they looked up a Pennsylvania statute establishing "treason against the State" as an offense, and agreed that the prisoners could not be held under that statute. Then Recht asked the Chester lawyer if he did not think $5,000 was too high bail.

"He said," the report went on, "that the —— —— Poles and Russians had money to burn and that they were lying in jail merely to spite the Government. Before I left Chester Mr. Geary told me he thought we could get a lawyer in town, but that any lawyer who consented to act for these men would be in disgrace in the community and for such disgrace he thought that such a lawyer (whom he would recommend) ought to be given a fee of $1,000. I asked him whether he thought that was a reasonable fee for a misdemeanor charge. He then said the man might possibly do it for $500. I said that these men were not in a position to pay that. I told him that the information had been sent in by a Quaker and I then struck the wrong key. He called the Quakers all kinds of names, the main adjective being 'stinking.' He said he would not advise any lawyer in Chester to act if the Quakers were interested in it unless for $500 to say the least."

Recht finally got a lawyer in Philadelphia to sue out writs of habeas corpus, which were dismissed. Mr. Stevenson read a report from Recht to the Soviet envoy covering the court procedings. This report, which was introduced and received in evidence, bore a penciled line in the handwriting of Martens, reading: "Ask Comrade Recht to proceed with this case."

The argument on the habeas corpus proceedings, according to the second report, was heard before Judge Johnson, in Delaware County, Pennsylvania. He held all the defendants in $5,000 bail for the Grand Jury, after dismissing the writs.

"The result of the proceedings," Mr. Recht commented in his report, "discloses the typical frame of mind of officials of today and the deep-rooted prejudice prevailing today against Russians."

Speaks Slightingly of Judge.

Judge Johnson, according to Recht's report, went back to 1787 for a precedent under which the defendants could be held on the charges against them.

"The case, it developed, was the famous Liberty Pole case," said Mr. Recht in his confidential report. "The Judge said that at the time of the adoption of the Constitution there were some misguided individuals who, under the leadership of Thomas Jefferson, protested against the Constitution because it gave the Federal Government too much power. But the Judge mentioned that the fact that the Constitution was adopted afterward showed that these individuals were wrong and mistaken. During the protests raised they erected what were known then as liberty poles, and such a pole was erected about the year 1787 in the City of Philadelphia. A man was arrested for being present at such a pole raising, although he did not take part in erecting it. He was convicted by the local court in Philadelphia. The Judge concluded: 'That is the law in this State, and it is a good law, and I am going to hold these defendants for unlawful assembly under $5,000 bail for action by the Grand Jury.'"

The report was dated May 29 this year. Mr. Recht, commenting on the decision of Judge Johnson and the outlook for the defendants, said:

"From the legal point of view the case is interesting, as it illustrates the absurd ends to which the reactionaries will go in order to cater to public prejudice and patriotism. From the practical end the case is very sad, as the prospective jury knows all about the case and everybody in the little township knows that the Judge thought that these men were dangerous Bolsheviki, and the jury has to be drawn from that locality. There is nothing to be done but to work for the record, that is to say, to raise as many legal points as the stupidity of the Judge and his passion will allow. And I dare say that probably he will deliver a great many patriotic speeches during the trial. I am quite pessimistic about the result. There is no doubt the Grand Jury will indict these defendants for any offense the District Attorney might choose, even treason."

Another letter, seized in the raid on the Bolshevist bureau, was addressed to Santari Nuorteva, "Secretary of the Embassy." This was from A. Lossieff, of 758 East Fourth Street, Philadelphia. It read:

March 12, 1919.

Dear Comrade: My son, Vladimir Lossieff, one of the I. W. W. men who was convicted in the famous I. W. W. Chicago trial and got sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment at Leavenworth and is doing time since the end of last August, asked me, being his father, to try to get in touch with you and try to find out if there is a way how to send a wire or cable to the Soviet Government in Russia and get the Soviet Government to induce the United States Government to deport him and a few other Russian subjects at Leavenworth to Russia—Moscow.

If you think that it is in any way possible or advisable just drop me a line and I will come to New York to talk this matter over with you in person. Sincerely yours,

A. LOSSIEFF.

It was at this point that the name of Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, the I. W. W. agitator, appeared in the evidence. Among the seized documents was a letter from the law firm of Clare & Christensen of 19 South La Salle Street, Chicago, which bore a post office stamp showing that it had been mailed on April 17 to Miss Flynn. By her it had letter had been read by Mr. Stevenson, whose files it was discovered after the raid on the Soviet Bureau.

The letter informed Miss Flynn that Lossieff could be released and deported and that the bail had been fixed at $10,000. The letter was accompanied by forms of bail bonds and minute directions how to go about getting sureties.

"This was sent to Nuorteva by whom?" asked Senator Lusk, after the letter had been read by Mr. Stevensen.

"By Elizabeth Gurley Flynn," he replied.

"Who is Elizabeth Gurley Flynn?" the Senator asked.

"She is a well-known member of the I. W. W.—a radical agitator," said the lawyer. "Apparently, rather than stay in prison for twenty years, Lossieff would go back to Russia."

This concluded the work of the committee yesterday.

Raid Case Goes Over.

Continuing the action brought before Magistrate Alexander Brough on Tuesday for the return of the papers taken last Thursday in a raid on the offices of L. C. A. K. Martens, George Gordon Battle, counsel for the plaintiff, argued yesterday that the original search warrant should be vacated on the ground that it did not specify what was to be seized but left the choice to the police officer, whereas the law required that the magistrate be the judge. Magistrate Brough denied the motion, whereupon Mr. Battle moved that the warrant be vacated on the ground that it was illegally executed. Argument on this motion was postponed until next Tuesday at 3 P. M.

This and National Feeling, Outraged by Germany, Did It, Says Maurice.

LEAGUE PROBLEM REALIZED

East, He Says, Is Growing More and More to Favor Plan.

LONDON, June 18.—It is a truism to say that the forces which shape the foreign policy of the United States are idealism and intense national feeling.

This must be so for the country is so vast, so much of it is removed from direct contact with the outer world and has at hand so much to occupy its energies that only the broadest and simplest ideas, touching foreign relations, can make any general appeal.

Now that the national feeling of America has been aroused as a consequence of the war its strength must astonish any visitor and has amazed not a few Americans. We are rather too apt to regard community of language as implying community of blood and to call the Americans cousins.

A British visitor to New York, Boston, and Philadelphia may find little to shake any preconceived notions that he has formed in these matters, but let him travel far and wide through the States and he will soon learn that to the majority of Americans the Britisher is a foreigner, with whom he is more disposed to be friendly today than he has been for generations, but still a foreigner.

During the early years of the war the British were bitterly disappointed that there were so few signs that blood was thicker than water and that our cousins did not at once take up arms and come to our help. The plain fact is that today English blood has become so mingled with that of the other races which have poured into the United States that the call of kinship was not by itself strong enough to move the American people as a whole. Something more potent was needed and by the mercy of Providence the Germans supplied it.

Bernstorff has always been reputed to be astute, and how he can have allowed the German Government to be so crazily stupid in their dealings with America passes comprehension. That he should have lived as long as he did in the United States without knowing that a message, conveying permission to America to send one ship a week, colored in a particular way, at a fixed time, by a fixed route, to a British port, would set the whole country in a blaze from end to end, is one more proof of the strange mentality of the German Junker. America did not come into the war for the British beaux yeux, or even out of sympathy with France, though this made a much stronger appeal to her, but because her national pride was deeply touched.

Germany's audacity, and the President's call to the United States to make the world safe for democracy appealed to just those forces which alone could unite the whole people and gave them a cause for which they were ready to make any sacrifices.

Americans who came over immediately after the United States declared war told the British that their country was in the struggle with both feet, and she was. There were very few well-informed Englishmen, who in 1916 believed that it would be possible for America to carry through at once and without difficulty a measure of universal service, such as the British reached after many delays and troubles, or to apply compulsion to labor in a way which the British never dared to attempt.

The Americans were themselves astonished at their success, when they learned from the military census that more than one-sixth of their population could not read nor write English.

It was the enthusiasm of the American people for a cause in which they believed that made these things possible. Enthusiasm of much the same kind must exist if the United States is to accept the League of Nations and those two forces, national pride and love of the ideal which have carried America into and through the war are still at work on behalf of the League.

Americans realize very clearly that without them the League of Nations will fail. They are very well informed as to the state of Europe and have no intention of leaving the job, to which they have set their hands, half finished, provided that they are convinced that they really can help to finish it.

Englishmen are accustomed to consider themselves much better informed than Americans on European affairs and regard Great Britain as the traditional refuge of the oppressed of Europe. In fact in this latter respect America long ago superseded Great Britain. Representatives of all the new nations of middle eastern and southeastern Europe, which are today endeavoring to organize their Governments and establish their freedom, have become American citizens in great numbers.

America is much better organized than Great Britain for the spreading of information on questions of the day. Every town has one society or more, well equipped with funds for the arrangement of lectures; and the average American is of a much more inquiring turn of mind than the average Englishman. When he sees an announcement of a lecture, he is apt to say, "Hello, here is something I don't know about! I'll go and hear what the fellow has to say." The Englishman is much more inclined to say, "This is something I don't know about. It doesn't interest me."

I have listened to admirable addresses delivered in excellent English by an American Czech on the problems of Czechoslovakia in New York, by a Russian in Worcester, by an American Jugoslav in Detroit, by a Pole in Kansas City, by an Italian on the Fiume question in Chicago, and by a Chilean in Springfield, Ill., and I have heard of at least a dozen such talks which I was unfortunately unable to attend.

There is in America a widespread knowledge of the needs of the new republics, and a sympathy with their aspirations; and this knowledge and sympathy are accustoming the Americans daily more and more to concern themselves with the problems of the deal which called forth most of the support for the Fourteen Points; and from the first the conception of the League has changed and is changing, but it exists still, if in another form.

The great Middle West, with its immense resources and power of expansion, desiring only to be left in peace to develop the wealth at its doors, and peopled by many who had come from Europe or were descended from those who had come from Europe to escape conscription, welcomed at once the proposal which, as they thought, promised to abolish war and reduce armaments.

They expect too much from the League and have been disappointed. Recent developments have convinced them that the League must be a gradual development; that it cannot at once, or even for a long time to come, remove all danger of war, and that the armies and fleets will still be needed. They are disgusted with the bickerings over peace, and some among them have begun to ask themselves seriously whether, after all, it is likely to be worth while for America to mix herself up in these affairs and whether she can do any good if she does.

The intellectuals of the Democratic Party, who have been among President Wilson's most convinced and enthusiastic supporters, are frankly disgusted, some of them even going so far as to say that the President has betrayed them; and they are asking themselves whether they should support a League covenant which is to be a prop for what they hold to be a wrong.

In sizing up this defection among the supporters of the League it must be remembered that President Wilson has not yet been able to put his case, except that hurried visit to the States, and that he may and probably will be able to overcome a good many doubts and difficulties among his followers.

If support for the League has been wanting in one direction, it is steadily growing in another. The financial and industrial East was at first disposed to regard the League as washy idealism which could be of no practical good. It is today coming more and more to see that its authors are practical statesmen, who are aiming at something which is a perfectly realizable substitute for the outworn methods of diplomacy, a better and more direct means of communication between nations; and out of this great good may come.

The financiers and business men of the East realize that the war has involved them inextricably in Europe. They thoroughly understand that the financial balance of the world has swung westward, and that, with the exchanges heavily in favor of America, Europe will be unable to pay for all that America is ready and willing to supply unless Americans are prepared to redress the exchanges by exporting capital.

They are, therefore, endeavoring to interest both the American bankers and the American people in European investments. Thus the cry of non-intervention in Europe is losing its force, for the business men of the East are as used to the appeal of high ideals as the farmers of the West; and if they propose to intervene in Europe for their own purposes, they are quite prepared to accept the political obligations which this involves.

The action of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the United States, in passing their resolution in favor of the League, is clear proof of the strength of this movement.

Opponents of the League in Great Britain cheerfully assume that the undoubted growth in strength of the Republican Party means that the people of the United States share their views. I am convinced that this assumption is wholly unwarranted.

SMILING AT BRITISH TROUBLES IN EGYPT

French Think the Germans Scored in Their Reference to Self-Determination There.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—One of the things in the German counterproposals which may be described as clever is the complaint that Germany is called upon by the treaty to violate the principle of self-determination by recognising the British protectorate over Egypt. Perhaps the spectacled delegates at Versailles grinned when they wrote that. At any rate, the French Foreign Office grinned when it read it.

"I am not sure, but perhaps that sly dig at Egypt in the German proposals will reach the English sense of humor," said a member of the French Foreign Office today. "England is having her present troubles in Egypt because of her political blunder with Arabia. It was England who insisted on the recognition of the independent sovereignty of Arabia, and France erred in acquiescing. But the whole Peace Conference indicated its consent by receiving Prince Feisal as a plenipotentiary among the delegates.

"The English motive in this was to get indirect control of all the territory involved in the Sykes-Picot treaty of 1916 between France and England. That is Arabian territory now, and recognized as independent. It includes not only what was to have come to England by the terms of that treaty, but most of what was allotted to France. Now the Arabs will have it all as a sovereign nation, but they will be very grateful to England for insisting on their independence, and their gratitude will take tangible form when it is decided that, even though independent, Arabia is such a new State that she will have to have the administrative assistance of some such great and enlightened country as England.

"If was good politics so far as Arabia was concerned, but bad politics for Egypt, because it left out of account the effect that recognizing Arabia would have on Egypt. That was short-sighted. In her feeling of safe possession of Egypt and her eagerness for Arabia, England neglected to consider the effect on Egypt. Now the Egyptians are asking why England recognizes the independence of desert tribes like the Arabs and refuses to recognize a people of ancient culture, like the Egyptians, who have learned their civilization from the British themselves for the last forty years, and who have also learned from the British how to be independent. The inconsistency of this apparently appealed to Brockdorff-Rantzau and his friends at Versailles."

Dorten's Emissary on French Pass Stopped by Americans.

COBLENZ, June 17.—The American military authorities had considerable difficulty today in arriving at a conclusion as to what to do with Dr. Hellweg, the emissary of Dr. Dorten's "Rhineland republic," who was arrested here yesterday while distributing Rhineland republic propaganda without the permission of General Liggett.

It was decided to try him on a charge of violating the American regulations against printing or distributing any printed matter in the American occupied area without authorization from the commander of the American forces. Dorten's movement never had much success in the Coblenz bridgehead, where the American authorities had refused the French request that the "republic" be launched from Coblenz. Neither did the movement have good fortune in the British occupied territory, and despite General Mangin's supposed encouragement, it seemed to have died a natural death at Wiesbaden.

On a pass issued by the French, entitling him to ride down the Rhine, Hellweg came into the American territory in an automobile yesterday morning. He was distributing pamphlets in Ehrenbreitstein when arrested by an American Secret Service man.

Five thousand more of the pamphlets were in the bottom of his car. He had not, however, any authority from any one to engage in propaganda work.

He accordingly went into the American military prison, where he probably will spend some time. His pamphlet alleged that 65 per cent. of the Rhinelanders wanted Dorten's republic, but "that ulterior forces were at work against it.

FRENCH GRATEFUL, SAYS MISS WILSON

OVERCHARGING WAS RARE

Practically Confined to Paris—Distinguished Singer Tells Impressions Covering Seven Months.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Paris, June 18.—Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of President Wilson, has just completed a tour of seven months throughout all parts of France. She has been singing to the soldiers of the various armies and has had intimate and extensive contact, especially with the French. She has lived among the people of France and has learned their spirit. When I asked her to give me some of her impressions, she said she would be glad to testify to the feeling toward America which she found in the French provinces. "I'd like to do what I can to correct the impression that may prevail in some quarters to the effect that the presence in France of 2,000,000 American soldiers had failed to produce good feeling between the two countries," she said. "I am confident the precise opposite of this is true. It would be useless to deny that there are certain characteristics on both sides that are unfamiliar and that at first might cause misunderstandings.

"For example, the French are a thrifty people, who in the country districts have been obliged for centuries to economize and have formed habits in their commercial dealings that made a bad impression at first on the more open-handed nature of the men coming from the new country. This difference, however, is only one of custom. The French attitude toward money is rooted in conditions altogether natural and creditable. It is no sordid passion. They have glorified the idea of security in old age and security for their children. Their thrift is part of their family ideal.

"I have had the good fortune of seeing a great deal of inside French family life. I recall an instance, by no means out of the general run, but quite typical. I happened to stay in a house where there were three generations, including several in-laws, and from the grandfather down to the youngest child there was real courtesy and deference from young to old and a consideration from old to young that made me deeply feel the fine traditions of French family life. It seems that their respect for money is a means to the end of establishing and maintaining just this kind of happy condition and is therefore entirely innocent of anything ignoble. It is a mechanical thing and not in any way corrupting to the natural good-will that is so characteristic of the French people.

Sincere Gratitude.

"One hears much talk on the subject of French overcharging, as well as on the subject of lack of appreciation of the military help extended by America. I feel that all this talk rests on an extremely small basis. As a divisional general once said to me, 'Most of the criticism can be traced back to Paris, where conditions are naturally very different.'

"When one comes into direct contact with the people of France one meets with unmistakable evidence of sincere gratitude. The foundation has been laid, I hope and believe, for a mutual understanding that will insure friendship between the two peoples. This is the real basis of any formal arrangement that might be made and is indispensable to it."

Miss Wilson gave some instances to support her conclusions. She said:

"It's wonderful to see how our young men have made a place for themselves in the trust and affection of these country communities and how the people of these communities in turn have taken these young men from far away to their hearts. I have so often heard country women say with shining eyes: 'These poor little ones! They are so far from home!'

"One little story illustrative of this spirit was about a French child, with its nurse, walking along the street. They passed an American soldier, who picked the child up, threw it in the air, and caught it. The nurse exclaimed: 'Didn't he frighten you, my child?' Whereat the child replied: 'Frighten me? Why, no; that was an American.'

"Another story: An American soldier passed a group of French children playing, and he had some candy, which he gave them. They took it and ran away as fast as they could, and he was somewhat disappointed, thinking they didn't appreciate his act. Presently they all came running back, each with a flower, which they gave him. To the French child the giving of a flower is the most eloquent expression of gratitude.

"There are hundreds of such instances I've seen or heard of, which, with other testimony, makes me feel that our American young men, who are so full of real kindness, have left an impression on the young children in France that can never be effaced and that will ripen into future good-will. I am sure that, while many of our soldiers going home may have uppermost in their minds some incident on the unpleasant side, in time the things that will survive are the many kindly acts. They remember the children they adopted and petted, and the older women who mothered them, and all the hundreds of incidents which time doesn't efface from memory.

Almost Never Overcharged.

"My own personal experiences, of course, were invariably delightful. Except perhaps a few times in large cities at big hotels, I was never overcharged, and I can never forget the genuine kindness with which I was everywhere welcomed. I perhaps wouldn't be so assured in my convictions if they rested on my personal experiences solely, but in seven months I have had an opportunity to gather such convincing detailed testimony that I am strongly moved to use it to help show America what a friend we have in the French people.

"Let nobody be misled by comparatively isolated instances into misjudging what so deeply concerns the future relationship between these two great countries. In my experience going through France, the expressions of the people as to what America did in the war have been away beyond anything an American would claim. Often old women on the streets, who didn't know my name, would exclaim to me: 'You save us.' And when I would say: 'Remember, how long you held on,' they would answer: 'But we would have lost if the Americans hadn't come with their men and money.'

"This is the real sentiment of France, a sentiment of deep and undying gratitude. If the opposition of these two civilizations—one energetic beyond measure and the other Old World and gentle—had produced some friction it would not be wondered at, but I come back to my main point, and repeat that this great historic chapter has been closed without developing fundamental differences, and the friendship and esteem between the two democracies have been deepened and strengthened through personal acquaintance and companionship."

REPORTS DIFFERENCE OVER BLOCKADE

Washington Asks Facts About Alleged Order of Wilson to Ignore British Action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Unofficial advices reached here today that President Wilson had ordered American vessels unloading in German ports to disregard British instructions to cease discharging their cargoes and to disregard an alleged British order for the re-establishment of the blockade of Germany. The State Department late today cabled to Paris for information.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 18.—It was stated today in well-informed quarters that it seemed likely that Germany's attitude would compel the Allies to make a demonstration in force in order to obtain peace.

All necessary steps have been taken and there will be no difficulty from a military point of view in enlarging the area of occupation. Under the circumstances it is felt any measures to insure speedy signature by Germany will be justified.

Dover dispatches say that four large steamers sailing under the American flag and conveying food for Germans are held up in the Downs at Deal. The steamers have about 10,000 tons of flour, meat, and other foodstuffs for Danzig. They will not be allowed to proceed, however, until the Germans have signed the Peace Treaty. Other foodstuffs bound for the same destination which are daily expected will be similarly detained until the Germans have signed.

PARIS, June 18.—The Supreme Economic Council at a meeting today decided that the resumption of private trade relations with Germany during the blockade was a question for the competent authorities of each country to decide, but that each country must inform the others of what action it has taken. The Council also made further arrangements to finance food supplies for Austria until the harvest.

MEXICO WARNED ABOUT AMERICANS

Angeles foreseeing the inevitable clash with the United States and realising the necessity of obtaining the good-will of this country if the movement to overthrow Carranza was to be successful.

It is regarded as well within the probabilities that, should Villa return to the border and attempt a raid upon American territory or engage in reprisals against Americans in Northern Mexico, an American military expedition would be dispatched into Mexico for a second time, with instructions to get him, alive or dead.

Desperate efforts are being made by the anti-Carranzista junta throughout the United States to persuade Villa to reorganize his forces and continue his war upon Carranza without taking reprisals upon Americans below the border.

This action is the result of a conference between anti-Carranza leaders in Washington and New York and secret messages sent out by the juntas of both cities to corresponding bodies in various parts of the United States. Messengers have been dispatched from eight American cities with instructions to reach Villa personally as quickly as possible and convey to him the desire of his friends and countrymen in the United States. The messengers from the border juntas have already crossed the line and undoubtedly have communicated personally with Villa by this time.

Washington junta members admit they have little hope of getting Villa to see the situation from their viewpoint or of dissuading him from exacting reprisals. They say that if Villa is angry nothing can stop him.

For a Mexican Inquiry.

Investigation of the policy of the United States toward Mexico since 1910 was demanded in a joint resolution presented today by Representative Gould, Republican, of New York. Since the select committee which would conduct the inquiry would be named by the Republicans of the Senate and House, the Democrats brand the proposal a partisan move. The committee would comprise six men, three of whom would be Senators selected by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which now numbers ten Republicans to seven Democrats. The remaining three members would be picked by the House Foreign Affairs Committee now composed of thirteen Republicans and nine Democrats.

This accusation of partisanship was renewed with vigor when Mr. Gould, in introducing his resolution, charged that "during the past six years" the State Department had been "continuously and dominantly interfering" in Mexican affairs. The resolution asks for investigation of Mexican conditions during the last nine years, and this would carry the inquiry beyond the Madero revolution of 1911, which occurred during the Taft Administration. The "last six years," however, applies solely to the Wilson Administration, for President Wilson took office in March, 1913.

In his statement Mr. Gould declared that some day the American Government would be held responsible for "everything good or bad" that has happened in Mexico in the "past six years." He indicted the Carranza Government as "the militarized bandits" whom "this Government placed in power," and whom the United States "by its action at Juares last Monday evidently intends to hold in power indefinitely."

Whether or not the Gould resolution was put forward in a partisan spirit, another move in the Mexican situation, made today in the House by a Republican, was intended to uphold the recent course of the Administration toward Mexico. Representative Emerson, who is from Secretary of War Baker's home State of Ohio, introduced a resolution which provided:

"That Congress commend the action of the Hon. Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, in sending United States soldiers across the Mexican border for the purpose of protecting the lives and property of citizens of the United States."

The Gould resolution is understood to have been introduced after consultation with Republican leaders of both House and Senate. For some time rumors have been afloat that the House Steering Committee, a Republican organization, has contemplated an investigation of the State Department's policy toward Mexico.

WASHINGTON, June 18. (Associated Press.)—Under a resolution introduced today by Representative Fitzgerald, Democrat, of Massachusetts, Congress would "protest against any League of Nations mandate over Mexico being given to Great Britain and express the feeling that the United States is amply able to take care of any situation that may arise in the neighboring territory of Mexico." Representative Fitzgerald did not speak on his resolution, which was sent to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

CORDIALITY IS RESTORED.

Prompt Withdrawal of American Troops Approved on Border.

EL PASO, Tex., June 18.—The feeling of resentment which the Carranza officials and military officers in Juarez felt against the American troops at the time of the crossing is giving way to a more friendly feeling, in spite of pro-Villa propaganda being spread in Juarez by Villa sympathizers. The prompt assurances of General Cabell that the troops would be withdrawn as soon as Villa's men were driven away from the border and the equally prompt withdrawal caused a change in feeling among officials in Juarez and friendly relations are being restored.

The Americans on this border have also changed their attitude toward the military authorities because of the expedition. At first the military was severely criticised for crossing and causing the Americans in the interior to be in danger of Villa's wrath. When it became known that General Erwin had positive proof gathered by members of his staff that Villa men were deliberately shooting into El Paso the criticism changed to commendation, and many telegrams were sent to Washington praising the prompt action of the district commander. It also became known today that the order to cross was received from General Cabell on June 12, and was acted upon only after positive proof of sniping had been obtained personally by Colonel Francis Glover, chief of staff, who was fired upon by snipers while investigating on the river front.

JUAREZ, June 18.—Villa and his forces were in the Galiana district of Western Chihuahua late yesterday, according to reports received by military headquarters here today. General Pablo Quiroga, who was sent to the relief of Juares with a column of cavalry, is pursuing the Villa column.

FOUND 45 DEAD VILLISTAS.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—An official report to the War Department today from Major Gen. Cabell, commanding the Southern Department, said the Villistas attacked by American troops near Juares were known to have lost 45 men killed and 11 taken prisoner. Casualties of the American forces, as announced last night, were two killed, two severely wounded, and eight slightly wounded.

"Casualties Villistas forces engaged by United States troops not definitely known," said the message. "Thirty dead Villistas found in intrenchments near race track Juares after attack by 24th Infantry; 15 dead Villistas found in Villista camp about six miles north of Zaragoza, Mexico, after attack by reenforced cavalry brigade; 11 Villistas captured.

"Civilian casualties in El Paso during engagement between Mexican Federal troops and Villistas, Juarez, Mexico, June 15 to 16, are: Killed, Floyd Hinton, American, Mrs. Edviges Romirez; slightly wounded: Anastatio Madrid, Augustino Ochoa, Francisco Aguilar, Emma Parker."

Particulars of the action of the United States troops in crossing the border at Juares to protect the lives of American citizens were published yesterday in the Mexico City newspapers without editorial comment. A resolution to interrogate President Carranza on the action of the American forces was said to have received practically no support in the Chamber of Deputies.

A dispatch from Laredo said General Renaldo Garcia, commanding officer at Nuevo Laredo, and his staff, accompanied by General Gregorio Osuna, made an official call yesterday on Colonel Beaumont B. Buck, the new American commanding officer at Laredo. Colonel Buck and his staff will return the call, which was understood to have been made by direction of President Carranza.

His One Thought to Thank America for All She Has Done for Belgium.

FAVORS WORLD PROHIBITION

Says It Should Be Gradual, with Use of Alcohol Made Increasingly Difficult.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MALINES, June 18.—His Eminence Cardinel Mercier received THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in the Archiepiscopal Palace in this quaint little town of Malines and spoke of his coming trip to America. In a plainly furnished room of the palace, where there were two photographs, one of Brand Whitlock and one of King Albert, he said:

"The date is not definitely fixed, but I shall probably leave about the end of September in order to arrive in October. I shall put myself entirely in the hands of Cardinal Gibbons on my arrival, and he will arrange my program. I shall probably visit the universities, but I have but one thought, namely, to thank the big, wonderful America for all that she has done for Belgium and Christian civilization, and for the help she has given in food, clothes, &c.

"Every one knows that the final success was due to the intervention of the American Army. The rapid formation of a complete American Army has been a constant cause of admiration and wonder, but I have already said this to many Americans."

The Cardinal spoke of Brand Whitlock as a great and good friend, expressing admiration for all he had done for the Belgians during the war. "He at once grasped both the Belgian and German mentalities," he said.

"I am a great believer in the repression of all intoxicating drinks such as alcohol and absinthe. If general prohibition were introduced, more human lives would be saved than by general disarmament. Alcohol kills more men than war and kills them dishonorably. When man is killed by war, an existence is suppressed, whereas the evil survives after inebriates have had enough of existence. Complete prohibition cannot be introduced instantaneously, but gradually, step by step, taking circumstances into consideration. The use of alcohol should be made increasingly difficult and should not be made a provocation."

Questioned on the scheme of an international Memorial Day to be celebrated yearly, the Cardinal thought this was a beautiful idea, but stated that from the Catholic standpoint the enemy could not be excluded, "although we could pray especially for our friends." The Cardinal apparently thinks Germany should be admitted to the League of Nations, but added: "I prefer not to touch on political questions as it is not my sphere."

PRESIDENT TO SEE GAMES.

Will Attend Opening of Pershing Stadium—Program of Meet.

PARIS, Monday, June 16, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson, General John J. Pershing, President Poincaré and Premier Clemenceau will participate in the ceremonies incident to the opening of the Inter-Allied games in the Pershing Stadium on June 22. The program for the games shows that the athletic events will extend over two weeks.

The events to be held outside of the stadium are Rugby football games at Colombes Field, north of Paris; golf at Le Boutlle links, Versailles, and swimming in Lake St. James, Bois de Boulogne. There will be seven events in the swimming program. At his own request Lieutenant Norman Ross, who holds the world's championship at several distances, will be entered in all swimming events. This Pacific Coast swimmer has just arrived from America.

Petro Sonda, a 200-pound Rumanian wrestler, who is entered for the games, was taken prisoner by the Germans when Bucharest was captured. While he was in prison a match was arranged between him and the champion wrestler of the German forces in the East. Sonda threw his opponent so violently that the German's leg was broken. He received a severe reprimand from the German commander and was put in solitary confinement for a month.

M'CUMBER URGES LEAGUE TO END WAR

Address of North Dakota Republican Senator Aimed at Knox Resolution.

CALLS CRITICISM UNJUST

Admits Defects, but Points to Supreme Purpose to Prevent "World Murder."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Opposition to the Knox resolution asking the Peace Conference to write a clause into the treaty of peace with Germany providing that nations may join the League of Nations, if they wish, after the treaty is signed, was voiced in a two-hour speech today by Senator Porter J. McCumber, Republican of North Dakota, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator McCumber, an ardent advocate of the League of Nations, insisted that the League was necessary as a means of averting another world war. He challenged the assertion of Senator Knox that the interests of the United States are not amply protected in the League covenant.

Mr. McCumber made only slight allusion to the Knox resolution, although his speech was manifestly aimed against it. He went into an exhaustive analysis of the League of Nations covenant, pointing out what he characterized as its "manifest advantages" in uniting the nations into a pact which, he argued, meant world peace.

The North Dakotan assailed those attacking the League of Nations, saying they misrepresented the basic facts upon which the project is founded. He warned the Senate that, unless the United States should join the League, every nation would be compelled to devote itself to building up its fighting forces. He looked ahead to the day, in that event, when New York, London, Berlin, Paris, and other great cities might be destroyed "in a single night" through air attacks.

Resolution's Chances Poorer.

After Mr. McCumber's speech the Senate passed to consideration of appropriation bills, Senator Knox making no effort to bring his resolution to a vote. Later, asked when he expected to ask for a vote, Mr. Knox replied: "I am not sure when I shall do so. I intend to wait for the propitious time."

The impression at the Capitol is that the resolution will not be called up until Saturday. Several Senators who are counted upon to vote for it are away, including Senator Lodge, and will not return to the Capitol until Friday.

That the Knox resolution is doomed to defeat became more evident in the minds of Senate leaders today, when it became known that the ranks of its opponents had been swelled by the acquisition of Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin and Kellogg of Minnesota, both Republicans. Other Republicans who have announced themselves as intending to vote against it are Senator Spencer of Missouri, McCumber of North Dakota, and McNary of Oregon.

With these five Republican Senators aligning themselves with the opposition, Senator Knox would not be able to get a majority vote. To make up for the defections in the Republican ranks, he can count only upon Senator Reed of Missouri of the Democratic forces. Senator Gore, who is understood to favor the Knox resolution, is away.

With the five Republican Senators voting against the resolution, Mr. Knox would be able to command only 44 Republican votes if all the other Republican Senators stood with him. Two or three Republicans, aside from the five mentioned, are understood to be opposed to it. With Mr. Reed's vote, if Mr. Knox should obtain the support of 44 Republicans, the aggregate vote would be 45 in favor. As against this the opposition would have at least 50 votes.

Mr. Knox would not comment upon the contingency of defeat. His next move, he said, would be decided on if the resolution should be voted down.

Cost of European "Murder."

Senator McCumber began his speech by saying that opponents of the League of Nations—ultra opponents, he called them—were asserting that Europe's battles were no concern of America. He said the European war, which he called a "murder," had cost the United States the lives of more than 50,000 American soldiers, while the financial cost was approximately $40,000,000,000 to this time.

"Before we are through," he said, "$100,000,000,000 will have been paid out by the American people. Is a conflict in Europe, which involves such a sacrifice in life and outlay in money, one of no concern to us?"

Senator McCumber declared that to secure the support of America "special concessions" had been given to this country.

"Our Monroe Doctrine, which has never been acquiesced in by any European power," said the Senator, "is by this instrument given a world sanction."

Mr. McCumber would hesitate a long time, he said, before voting for any League of Nations which "would leave Germany outside its domain."

"If Germany shall sincerely relinquish her doctrine of world conquest and her pretended right to destroy her neighbor," he argued, "she should be made a partner in this contract. This covenant should not be so drawn as to compel other nations to unite outside of the League and thus divide the world into hostile camps. So, if Russia shall have the ability to emerge from her present chaos and take on the responsibilities of Government, she, too, should be invited into this bond of national fellowship."

Taking up Article X., touching upon the guarantee of territorial integrity of League members, Senator McCumber deprecated the insistence of opponents that this should be eliminated.

"It has been asserted in all the false attacks upon this instrument," the Senator proceeded, "that the United States would be compelled under Article X. to help Great Britain preserve her domains against internal revolutions and rebellions. Nothing could be more false. India, Canada, Australia, Ireland, and Scotland, or any other British possession or integral parts of the empire may assert and maintain independence, and we are in no way, under this instrument, compelled to come to the assistance of the mother country. It is only against external aggressions that the League assures its protection.

"There is no obligation under Article X. that the League must guarantee the boundaries of a nation changed by revolution, secession or internal dissension. This section simply covers international murder, international crime."

Decrease of Armaments.

Taking up the section of the League covenant dealing with decrease of national armaments to the "lowest point consistent with national safety," Senator McCumber argued that this alone would prevent any one nation, such as Germany, again plunging the world into war. It would also, he said, save all the nations from the heavy burden of maintaining great fighting establishments.

Senator McCumber insisted that the argument of League opponents was false that under Article XI. all matters of the United States involving purely national policies, such as immigration, would be thrown to the League for settlement.

"There is no foundation whatever for such an argument," he insisted. "It is true that the door is wide open for the presentation of any circumstances affecting international relations, however trivial or foolish; but this covenant guards and confines the questions which may be acted upon after being presented to the League. Domestic questions are not matters for the League to decide."

McCumber Scores Partisanship.

WASHINGTON, June 18. (Associated Press.)—In the debate today Senator McCumber replied to arguments of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania and other Republican leaders and declared he could not be influenced against the League of Nations plan by party consideration.

"Partisan that I am," he asserted, "I hope I shall never be so hidebound or so blinded by party exigency as to oppose a just position taken or a truth declared by a member of any opposition party. I could not cast my vote against any reasonable plan for the preservation of world peace without a conviction that would follow me to the grave, that I had committed an unpardonable offense against all future generations."

While the Senate was at work on appropriations some progress was made on plans to co-ordinate the speaking tours of Senators who will reply to President Wilson when he goes before the country early next month to appeal for support of the League. Although these plans have not reached a definite stage, Senator McCormick, Republican, of Illinois, has been given general charge of the co-ordination scheme for the present.

Those expected to make public speeches in reply to the President include Senators Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California, Harding of Ohio, and Watson of Indiana, all Republicans, and Reed of Missouri, Democrat. The opposition leaders also are counting on Senator Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, but it is understood he has given no definite assurances. Senator Knox, and Chairman Lodge of the Foreign Relations Committee may make some speeches, but probably neither will go on an extended trip.

A proposal that several of the opposition Senators follow Mr. Wilson on a special train has been considered, but so far there has been no effort to arrange for such a course.

DECLARES AGAINST KNOX RESOLUTION

Brooklyn League of Nations Committee Acts at Meeting—Anti-League Senators Excoriated.

The Brooklyn League of Nations Committee at a meeting held yesterday in the Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce passed a resolution protesting against adoption of the Knox resolution by the Senate and urging that the Senators from New York, James W. Wadsworth and William M. Calder, vote against the measure designed to separate the League of Nations covenant from the peace treaty.

Raymond V. Ingersoll, formerly Commissioner of Parks in the Borough of Brooklyn, who recently returned from France, attacked the Knox measure.

"At this moment," he said, "a situation exists which demands the attention of every American who values his citizenship. A powerful body of United States Senators have made a threat to satisfy their bitter hatred of the President at the expense of the peace and safety of the world.

And now what is the latest statesmanlike step? Just as the revised and improved treaty terms are being handed to the German delegates, and as those delegates are searching the international horizon, Senatorial notice is given to the world, in the Knox resolution, of a proposed repudiation of any idealistic purposes on the part of America in entering upon or prosecuting the war. It seems that our boys died for the one purpose of putting an end to the submarine attacks. Those attacks once ceased, what happens to civilization is no concern of ours! We must not be expected either on the one hand to lend our strength to backing up terms of peace, nor on the other hand to give the influence of our less agitated and embittered point of view in their interpretation and application. In this dangerous crisis—with all Europe literally trembling on the edge of ultimate ruin—a declaration is proposed that, while America helped mightily to win the war, she will feel no responsibility whatever if the peace should be a failure.

WAR TOLL IN ONE FAMILY, 19

Father, 2 Daughters, 13 Sons Killed, 3 Sons Maimed.

PARIS, June 10. (Associated Press.)—Thirteen sons killed on the field of battle, three discharged with grave injuries, one wounded four different times, the father and one daughter summarily shot by the Germans for going to Lille to celebrate the centennial anniversary of a relative, and another daughter killed by a German shell at Dunkirk, is the record of the family of M. Vanhee, a French farmer of Reminghe, near Ypres.

M. Vanhee had thirty-six children, twenty-two sons and fourteen daughters, all of whom were living when the war broke out. One of his sons was valet to Pope Pius X.; he returned to France to fight and was wounded in each of four different engagements. One of the sons lost both legs, another returned from the front blind and deaf, and another underwent the trepanning operation.

BRUSSELS CROWDS ACCLAIM WILSON

MADE TOUR OF RUINS THERE

Will Be Received by Parliament and Be Guest at Gala Dinner at Royal Palace.

BRUSSELS, June 18.—The train carrying President Wilson and King Albert and Queen Elizabeth arrived here at 9:15 o'clock to-night from Zeebrugge, where the party had ended an automobile tour of the ruins along the historic battle front in Flanders.

Tomorrow's program includes a morning visit to several devastated industrial districts, a lunch at the American Legation, and a reception by the American colony. At 2:30 o'clock there will be a reception for Mr. Wilson in the House of Parliament, where addresses will be made. Mr. Wilson's speech will be translated into French by Brand Whitlock, the American Minister.

From the Parliament building the party will return to the Royal Palace, where Mr. Wilson will receive the Diplomatic Corps. Then will follow visits to Louvain and Mechlin and the presentation of Cardinal Mercier. At 6 o'clock there will be a reception in the Brussels City Hall, followed by a gala dinner at the Royal Palace.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will return to Paris on Friday morning.

ADINKERKE, Belgium, June 18.—President and Mrs. Wilson and their party arrived here from Paris at 5:45 o'clock this morning. They were met by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, and at 8:30 o'clock left by motor for a trip of about 110 miles over the Belgian front.

Th local authorities were represented at the railroad station by the Burgomaster and the Commissary of the district. A company of the 6th Chasseurs, with band, was drawn up to salute the Presidential party, and a gathering of school children was noticeable.

Brand Whitlock, American Minister to Belgium, who came to greet the President, together with Major Hoffman, General Joostens, and Lieutenant Count Renesse, will accompany the President during his visit in Belgium. Among other notables who met the President and Mrs. Wilson were Baron Moncheur, the Belgian Minister to Great Britain; the Countess d'Oultremont, Lady of Honor to the Queen, and Colonel Tilkens.

The arrival of the Presidential train was the signal for the military guard to present arms while the band played the American National Anthem. Minister Whitlock remained on the station platform while the King and Queen were greeting the Presidential party on board the train. When the President emerged with his royal hosts he received a hearty cheer.

The party immediately entered motor cars for the trip through Furnes, Wulpen, East Dunkirk, Nieuport, Pervyse, Dixmude, Clercken, the Forest of Houthulst, Poelcapelle, Ypres, Menin, Roulers, Thourout, Ostend, and Zeebrugge.

GERMANS AT RIGA CRUEL AS BOLSHEVIKI

PARIS, June 17. (Associated Press.)—Additional light was thrown today on conditions in the Baltic provinces by Colonel A. J. Carlson of the Sanitary Corps of the United States Army, a professor in the University of Chicago, who arrived today in Paris from Riga.

Lieut. Col. Warwick Greene, chief of the American Military Mission to the Baltic States, also arrived here to discuss the Baltic situation with the Peace Conference, which is endeavoring to obtain a comprehension of the complex conditions caused by the presence of several opposing armies in Letvia and the general encouragement of unrest throughout the Baltic regions by German propagandists.

In the opinion of Colonel Carlson, the expulsion of the German Army from Letvia and Lithuania, recently ordered by the Council of Four, will cause the betterment of conditions, but he expressed the opinion that it would be necessary also to expel the volunteer German and German-Russian forces, created under German officers and operating around Riga under Major Fletcher, which are held responsible for the recent execution of 100 alleged Bolsheviki, including ten women, and the imprisonment of great numbers of persons under revolting conditions.

Colonel Carlson visited Riga on June 3 and 4 to investigate the sanitary conditions. He found the prisons overcrowded with starving men and women who, it was admitted by the German keepers, received only enough food to keep them alive, although the American Food Administration was supplying provisions. Young and attractive women, Colonel Carlson said, were at the mercy of officers in prison without matrons. Prisoners were being tortured and executed daily in a manner which he declared was equally as revolting as when the Red Terror prevailed.

The investigator reported the horrors to Major Fletcher, but the latter refused to do anything to alter the situation materially, declaring that any relaxation of severity would result in a recurrence of Bolshevism.

Even in Esthonia, which is now quiet, the land barons, who represent only a small percentage of the public, are trying to create the impression that all others than Esthonians are Bolsheviki and are endeavoring to involve Esthonia and Letvia in war, according to Colonel Carlson.

"Really," the Colonel continued, "there are very few Bolsheviists in Esthonia and Letvia, and after the German armies and other forces organized under German officers are expelled I believe the Esthonians and Letts will be able to protect themselves easily from Russian Bolshevist invasion, if the Allies will permit them to have limited amounts of arms and munitions. But the Allies cannot supply food to perpetuate such persecution as I saw in Letvia."

Recent reports received from Riga indicate that conditions have improved somewhat in the prisons, and women prisoners are segregated under matrons, but executions are continuing.

Herbert Hoover, head of the Inter-allied Relief Organization, has sent instructions to Colonel Greene, directing American food distribution, to make it clear to all officials in the Baltic States that supplies will not be continued unless humane treatment and honest trials are assured to all political prisoners.

PESSOA TRANSFERS TO TRANSPORT AT SEA

IS DUE HERE TOMORROW

After Official Ceremonies South American Executive Will Go to Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—President-elect Pessoa of Brazil and his party, who were en route to the United States from Portugal on the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc, were transferred to the American Army transport Imperator 1,300 miles at sea yesterday, after the cruiser's engines had been disabled. Dispatches to the Navy Department today said that the transfer was made in small boats without incident, and that the Imperator would arrive at New York tomorrow morning.

The Imperator is due at 7 A. M., and will be met outside New York Harbor by a division of torpedo boat destroyers and a division of seaplanes, which were assigned for this duty today by the Navy Department.

The Jeane d'Arc became disabled soon after she had passed the Imperator, from Brest for New York, with American troops, and a wireless message recalled the big transport. Later the transport Mongolia, bound from New York for France, arrived and took the cruiser in tow for the Azores, where repairs will be made. At last reports the Mongolia was making good speed with he. tow.

"Owing to the breakdown of the engine of the French cruiser on which I was traveling to New York she was unable to proceed on her voyage. The U. S. S. Imperator immediately came to our assistance and I am now on the way to the United States aboard her. I take great pleasure in thanking you for this generous example of American hospitality which, not content with keeping within the bounds of its great territory, now extends itself to the very ocean."

The first wireless message to the Navy Department was sent by Admiral Benson, who is returning home on the battleship Arkansas, with which ship the Imperator communicated.

An official announcement today by the State Department of plans for the entertainment of Dr. Pessoa in the United States said the Imperator would be met off New York tomorrow by an American naval craft, which would take Dr. Pessoa and his party to the Brazilian warship Sao Paulo at New York. They will be entertained at dinner on the warship, the Sao Paulo being Brazilian territory, and the President-elect being unable to accept American hospitality until he has paid his respects to the United States Government at Washington.

"After dinner aboard ship," said the announcement, "Dr. Pessoa will spend the night in New York, and will proceed to Washington by special train, arriving in Washington late Friday afternoon.

CUBA SEEKS U. S. TRADE.

President Invites American Merchants to Visit Island Republic.

At a luncheon given by the American Manufacturers' Export Association at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday Arthur Liebes, formerly of the staff of La Nacion, who has just returned from Cuba, presented a moving picture film entitled "A Commercial Travelogue of Cuba," in which a message from President Menocal of Cuba addressed to the manufacturers of the United States was reproduced, telling of the opportunities afforded by Cuba to American merchants and extending an invitation to merchants to visit the island republic.

The message reads: "It affords me genuine pleasure to accept this opportunity to tell the merchants of the United States of the wonderful opportunities Cuba affords. First, to invest their capital; second, to sell their wares, and third, but not least, of the desire of the Cuban people to do an ever increasing business with our good friend the United States, and further cement the friendly relations already existing between the two republics.

"Cuba, though occupying a small space geographically, and having less than 2,000,000 people, has shown itself capable of making tremendous purchases in the United States. We are now probably one of the best customers of your country, but there is still room for improvement. May I append, in conclusion, a hearty and sincere invitation to visit our prosperous republic, and the promise that you will receive at the hands of the Cuban people a hearty welcome?"

ASKS ARMY WELFARE FUND.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The maintenance of the present welfare and educational activities in the army was urged today before the Senate Military Committee by Assistant Secretary Keppel of the War Department, who recommended also army control of the work now being carried on by the Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, and similar organizations. He asked that the $8,000,000 appropriation originally recommended be restored by the Senate in the army bill.

"I think that the program makes for Americanization," Mr. Keppel said. "There is no question that it improves the quality of enlistments."

Major Herbert L. Buell of the Engineer Corps asked the committee to increase the House appropriation of $100,000 for post roads in Alaska, to $300,000. He estimated at $270,000 the amount that would be required for the maintenance of these roads, while the remainder would be used for the construction of additional roads in southeastern Alaska. If the Alaskan roads were not maintained, Major Buell said, the production of precious metals would decrease.

NORTHCLIFFE UNDER KNIFE.

His Condition Satisfactory After Operation on Neck.

LONDON, June 18.—Viscount Northcliffe, newspaper owner and former head of the British Mission to the United States, underwent an operation today. A bulletin issued by his physicians says that the Viscount's condition is satisfactory.

The operation was to remove a deep-seated adenoma (an increase of fibrous tissue) of the thyroid gland, which was causing considerable pressure.

Italian Ship Sinks; 23 Missing.

MESSINA, June 17.—Twenty-three persons, including Commander Brunelli, Superior Inspector of the Ministry of Post and Telegraph, are missing from the survivors of the Italian steamer Citta di Milano, which sank today on the rocks near the island of Filicudi, on the north coast of Sicily. The steamer was at work repairing cables.

PRINCE AAGE COMES HERE UNEXPECTEDLY

Prince Aage, a cousin of King Christian X., present ruler of Denmark, arrived here entirely unheralded yesterday on the transport America with 7,008 American soldiers. No word of the presence of royalty aboard the ship having been received by the military officials, there was not a little excitement when the Prince and his two aids, Captain N. Strymer and Lieutenant Christian Knudtzon, walked down the gangplank, followed by a Sergeant carrying his two swords resting on a broadcloth robe, which was trimmed with silver.

Those unfamiliar with royal etiquette were saved from any embarrassment by Prince Aage himself who was very democratic in manner. Wearing a steel gray uniform of an officer of the Danish Army, he talked in perfect English with officials at Hoboken and told them of his plans while in the United States. He said he left the royal palace at Copenhagen on April 25 and went to England at the invitation of King George, his first cousin. Prince Aage said he stayed at Buckingham Palace while in England and inspected a number of military institutions and organizations.

Leaving England, Prince Aage said he went to France and toured the battlefields as the guest of the French Government. He said his decision to visit the United States at this time was the result of conversations with several Americans he met while in Paris.

While in the United States Prince Aage said he expected to visit West Point, Annapolis, Mount Vernon, and several of the larger cities of the country. He expects his stay here to extend over two months. He said he would leave immediately for Washington.

SAYS CHINA NEEDS AMERICAN CAPITAL

Kungau Whang, M. P., Commissioner of the Chinese Republic for Investigating Economic Conditions in Europe and America, arrived in New York yesterday from San Francisco, where he landed on June 9, and after spending two weeks here and in Washington he will proceed to Europe. The primary purpose of his visit here is to present to American business the great undeveloped resources of China that only await the coming of American capital.

Mr. Whang declared that the Chinese have a higher regard for America than any other nation, because, he said, the American business men who have invested their money in China have been honest and straightforward in their business methods. Business men from some other nations, he said, have used underhand tactics.

"Investment of American capital in China has always proved very profitable in the past," said Mr. Whang, "and will do so in a much larger way in the future. Our resources in minerals alone are immense. These resources are at present practically undeveloped, owing to the lack of capital and also of experienced and trained men, such as engineers, &c., and the want of suitable machinery."

Mr. Whang said that he was particularly anxious to interest motor car manufacturers of America to export cars to China. "We need farming machinery," he added, "and this is an excellent opportunity for machinery manufacturers."

Mr. Whang pointed out that the agricultural development of China is very important just now because the supply of foodstuffs all over the world is very scarce and insufficient. "With proper machinery," he continued, "we Chinese alone could feed the world. The progress of our country would be astonishing. Banking, so flourishing in all our coast ports, (in Shanghai alone there are over twenty foreign banks, all doing a large business,) is practically unknown in the interior and is admittedly one of the greatest needs at this time. Here is another excellent opening for American capital to be invested in co-operation with Chinese bankers."

Negro Boy Sentenced to Die.

Theodore Dixon, a negro, 17 years old, of 20 West 137th Street, convicted of first degree murder a week ago in connection with the death of Margaret Morton, a 17-year-old negro girl, was sentenced yesterday to die at Sing Sing in the week of July 28 by Justice Richard H. Mitchell. A jury in the same court on Tuesday night disagreed in the case of Dixon's mother, Mrs. Hattie Dixon, who also was tried for murder in the first degree. The two Dixons, with Theodore Scott, a negro, 17 years old, of 664 Lenox Avenue, were indicted for the murder of the girl, an orphan, who had been making her home with them, and whose body was found in a vacant lot in the Bronx on Nov. 16, 1918. Scott turned State's evidence.

BOLSHEVIKI AIDED WINNIPEG STRIKERS

Funds Sent from Chicago to Help Establish Soviet Rule.

$25,000 PORMISED JUNE 18

Records Seized in Raid on Labor Temple Disclose Transactions Covering Three Months.

Special to The New York Times.

WINNIPEG, June 18.—Large sums of American currency were found in the vaults of the Labor Temple when they were opened by the police yesterday. Correspondence with R. B. Russell, one of the strike leaders arrested, shows that for three months he has been receiving funds from Chicago sources for the spread of Bolshevism and to establish Soviet rule throughout the Dominion.

Senator Robertson states the records give positive proof of Bolshevist money being sent from headquarters in the United States for three months to Russell. The correspondence acknowledges the receipt of Bolshevist money and that $25,000 was to have been received by special messenger from the United States on June 18.

Operation of the Winnipeg street railway was resumed on a limited scale this morning with thirteen cars. Electric power was shut off suddenly this forenoon for a short time, but was turned on again. Records seized yesterday indicate that a special committee was selected on June 10 to investigate and report on the possibility of cutting off electric power from the city.

MONTREAL, June 18.—Postponement of the nation-wide strike of railway shopmen was followed here today by the sending of a communication by the Executive Committee of the Railroad Shopmen's Union to the Canadian War Labor Board, in which the hope was expressed that negotiations might be reopened with a view to an early settlement of the wage and hour controversy.

Meanwhile, about 6,000 of the 15,000 workers in various trades and industries who have been on strike here have returned to work, and the prospects point to adjustments before the end of the week. Five packing concerns, the Canada Sugar Company, and the St. Lawrence Sugar Company signed new agreements with their workers. The sugar companies compromised on increases of from 2 to 5 cents an hour.

Settlement of the Canadian Vickers Company strike, so long a deadlock, is expected as the result of a conference between Directors of the company and representatives of the union.

CALGARY, Alb., June 18.—Railway shopment employed on the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern lines struck here today. Canadian Pacific shopmen here have been on strike nearly three weeks in sympathy with the workers in Winnipeg.

QUEBEC, June 18.—Charging failure on the part of the company to carry out an agreement to raise wages, made some time ago, a general strike was declared today at the Three Rivers shipyards here. The strikers spread a rope about three entrances to the yards to prevent any workers going in, but there was no trouble.

Church to Mark 100th Anniversary.

The Church of the Sea and Land at Market and Henry Streets, in the heart of the lower east side, will begin a celebration of its one hundredth anniversary tomorrow night, which will continue to Sunday, June 27. The church is the second oldest in the city, St. Paul's Chapel being the only one which antedates it. Among the persons who are expected to be present during the week are Governor Smith, R. E. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen; Dr. H. G. Mendenhall, Moderator of the Presbytery of New York; Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, President of Rutgers College; Dr. George Alexander, and Dr. A. H. McKinney. The church was built on a site presented by Colonel Henry Rutgers in 1819. Adjoining the property was an orchard in which the patriot Nathan Hale was hanged.

DESCRIBES FORD FLAG OF HUMANITY

WISE WOOD TESTIFIES

Declares That Ford Told Him All Flags Would Be Hauled Down After the War.

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., June 18.—A shadow of Henry Ford's "Flag of Humanity," was unfurled today in the course of the hearing on his libel suit against The Chicago Daily Tribune.

Mr. Ford had been quoted as opposing flags of nations as obsolete—"something to rally around," or as "the refuge of scoundrels," and as advocating a "flag of humanity," the creation of which he was said to have referred to in 1915.

Irving Bacon, an illustrator in the photographic and advertising departments of the Ford Motor Company, was called to the stand.

"It was quite a long time ago, and I do not recall clearly the incident," said the witness. "I think, however, that the idea of designing such a flag was put to me either by Dean Marquis, head of the educational department, or Mr. Brownell, the advertising manager. I made some sort of a sketch in water colors. I believe the field was purple, and the world was shown and symbols of universal brotherhood, fraternity, peace and industry—things like that."

Other witnesses were Henry A. Wise Wood of New York, who was a member of the Conference Committee on National Preparedness and the Navy Advisory Board; Willis J. Abbot, the writer, and Floyd Gibbons, Tribune correspondent.

Mr. Wood testified that he talked with Mr. Ford in Detroit in 1916 about preparedness. Mr. Ford, the witness said, remarked that "flags were something to rally round" and that after the world war they would all be hauled down. Mr. Ford told the witness his scale or profit-sharing plan was not a humanitarian but a profitable economic measure. It was good business, Mr. Ford said, as it increased the average output, minimized labor turnover and reduced the amount of plant expansion and capital requirements.

Mr. Abbot's testimony indicated that in 1915, when the Ford plant was largely given over to war work, Mr. Ford had become one of the most militant of the opponents of Germany. Mr. Abbot read a long magazine article to the jury and court which he wrote in 1915, based on a visit to the Ford plant, and two interviews with the manufacturer.

"I had not been two hours in Stockholm (on the peace ship trip in 1915) when I realized that German militarism must be crushed before universal peace could be considered," the witness quoted Mr. Ford as saying.

This testimony was introduced by the Tribune in contrast to the allegation that a year later (1916) Mr. Ford was actively opposing the use of force against Mexico and opposing war with Germany.

SUES BROKER E. H. CLARKE.

H. O. Gise Alleges Alienation of Former Wife's Affection.

Ernest H. Clarke, head of E. H. Clarke, Inc., a brokerage concern dealing in a Texas oil stock, has been sued in the Supreme Court for damages by Howard O. Gise for alienating the affections of the plaintiff's former wife, Mrs. Myrtle M. Gise of Baltimore. Clarke has filed a denial of the charges.

An order for the testimony of Mrs. Gise, signed yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Donnelly, directs her to tell of alleged meetings with Clarke, of an automobile trip with him from Philadelphia to Brooklyn, and of letters he sent her. In behalf of Clarke, Mrs. Gise is asked to say whether she has any affection for her former husband, whether he did not scold her and whether he did not against her wishes pay attention to a Baltimore woman.

LABOR DEMANDS BURLESON'S HEAD

RADICALS BADLY BEATEN

Convention Rejects Every Resolution Advanced by Them and Stands by Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—The American Federation of Labor, in convention, voted unanimously today to request President Wilson to remove Postmaster General Albert Sidney Burleson. Two resolutions to this effect were adopted amid applause.

Speaking for the resolutions Thomas Flaherty of the Federation of Postal Employes said:

"This man Burleson stands revealed in all his smallness, in all his pettiness and bigotry, and has shown himself unfit for office. The American Federation of Labor has frequently offered helpful counsel to President Wilson, but it is never more helpful than when it recommends the removal of this administrative misfit."

Edward Gainor of the National Association of Letter Carriers said Mr. Burleson acceded to the demand of the electrical workers for collective bargaining because he knew of their great power. One of the resolutions introduced by Delegate Sauter of Wilmington, Del., recited that the Postmaster General "believes in making slaves and serfs of the employes in his department." The other resolution was introduced by Delegate Gainor. It read:

Whereas, President Wilson, in his message to Congress made this declaration: "The question which stands at the front of all others in every country amidst the present great awakening is the question of labor. The object of all reforms in this essential matter must be the genuine democratization of industry based upon a full recognition of those who work, in whatever rank, to participation in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare or the part that they play in industry;" and

Whereas, Postmaster General Burleson has pursued a labor policy in direct conflict with this enunciation of principles, and in answer to President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor has characterized as "silly" the right of collective bargaining; and

Whereas, Mr. Burleson has ruthlessly invaded the rights of the employes and has interfered in defiance of law with the proper functioning of their organization, and has not only refused to recognize the accredited representatives, but has also sought to have repealed the employes' Constitutional right of direct petition to Congress; and

Whereas, This labor policy—a policy fastened upon every governmental agency under Burleson's supervision—is in utter defiance of the wishes of the people, and in complete opposition to the expressed word of President Wilson; and,

Whereas, Burleson's archaic and autocratic attitude has resulted in a demoralized service, discontented and resentful employes, confused and choked industrial processes, and a people wrathful in business at a long series of administrative blunders; therefore,

Be it resolved, That the American Federation of Labor in convention assembled, speaking directly for 4,000,000 organized wage earners, and firm in the belief that this reflects the sentiment of the vast majority of the American people, requests President Wilson to remove Postmaster General Burleson from office.

More spirited clashes came today between the radicals among the delegates and the supporters of the administration of President Gompers, and almost all the resolutions sponsored by the radicals were voted down.

The most exciting debate occurred on a resolution introduced by James A. Duncan of Seattle, Wash., calling on the Executive Council of the Federation to submit to all international unions a model initiative and referendum provision, which would make it possible to take a vote of the entire membership of the Federation simultaneously on any question. The Resolutions Committee recommended non-concurrence.

Duncan argued that it aimed to bring about "a government by the workers, of the workers, and for the workers."

Defending the committee, Chairman Frey said there was such a thing as "democracy run wild."

He attacked that part of the press outside the labor press which instilled such ideas into the minds of trade unionists, and said the American labor movement was much more solid in its program than the labor movement of any other country. The delegates defeated the resolution. Delegate Duncan asked for a rollcall, but his request was ignored.

On his resolution asking the convention to assist the Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines' Protective Association, Max Hayes of the Typographical Union said: "The Resolutions Committee seems determined to turn down everything constructive and progressive that is placed before it." The delegates voted against the resolution.

Speaking for a resolution denouncing the composition of the committees as not representative, and calling for proportionate representation, T. F. Burns of Tacoma, Wash., declared the organization of the Federation was undemocratic. He objected to "a state of affairs where criticism was regarded as treason." His resolution was defeated.

A resolution having for its aim the expiration of all contracts between employers and unions on May 1 was defeated.

C. A. Strickland, of Portland, Ore., introduced a resolution calling for the reorganization of the labor movement and a change from the craft-line plan of organization to one based on industries. He argued that this was in line with the new era in the labor movement. The resolution was defeated.

Gifts were presented to the fraternal delegates to the convention from Great Britain and Canada. Samuel Finney, of Great Britain, whose pocket was picked of $125, received a purse containing that amount.

COMPLAIN OF REDFIELD.

Labor Convention Says He Failed to Enforce Seamen's Act.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—The American Federation of Labor today adopted two resolutions having to do with the merchant marine. One asked the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries to investigate alleged failure by Secretary of Commerce Redfield to enforce Seamen's act provisions aimed against illiteracy among crews of vessels leaving American ports.

The other denounced bills introduced by United States Senator Calder and Representative Gould providing for the repeal of certain clauses in the Seamen's act relating to wages. The bills were declared to be hostile to the development of American sea power, and to serve the interests of European and Asiatic ship owners.

Among the resolutions adopted was one favoring the initiative and referendum on constitutional amendments; one supporting all the legislation suggested by President Wilson in his recent message to Congress; one favoring legislation to give labor officers in Government employment leaves of absence to attend to labor business without injury to their standing; one favoring a "living wage" for Government employes; one advocating an eight-hour day and $6 a day minimum wage for immigration and customs inspectors on the Canadian border, and one advocating the discontinuance of civil employment for men and women in the military service upon the signing of the Peace Treaty.

A proposal to favor a law to govern prices and profits on all commodities was rejected. A Federal budget system as a means of cutting down "needless and extravagant expenditures" by the Government was favored.

The convention directed the Executive Council of the Federation to investigate the alleged plight of Hindu revolutionists now under arrest in this country and held for deportation, which, it was asserted, would be equivalent to sentencing them to death.

A proposal that the Federation demand that workers in all industries should have the right to elect foremen was defeated.

Complaint was made during the session that many persons who were not delegates had been sitting as delegates and joining in the voting. After the recess delegates made sure none but their colleagues were at the tables.

President Gompers announced that his pocket had been picked.

NEW RIOT BY CANADIANS.

400 Soldiers at Epsom Wound Policeman, One Fatally.

LONDON, June 18.—Unrest among Canadian soldiers in England because of the continued postponement of homeward sailings culminated last night in an attack by 400 Canadians on the Epsom police station.

Several policemen were wounded, one so seriously that he died this morning. The purpose of the attack was to release a Canadian soldier who had been arrested.

To avoid further trouble the police released another Canadian, in whom the mob was not interested.

During the last few days there has been trouble in the Canadian camp at Whitley, where the soldiers burned huts and did other damage, according to reports.

There is much sympathy here for the Canadians, who repeatedly have been assigned for homeward sailings or given dates, only to be told that further postponement was necessary, owing to strikes of dockworkers at Liverpool and other ports or to lack of transports.

The unrest has not been confined to the Canadians. There have also been protests by Australians and New Zealanders.

Some Scottish units, composed of veterans, recently held a demonstration against being sent back to France while men who had not seen active service remained in England or were demobilized.

PLEADS FOR BARTENDERS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—Dr. L. Pierce Clark of New York City, in addressing the closing session of the American Neurological Association today, warned of dangers to the community in the passing of the bartender when prohibition abolishes saloons.

"Abolish the saloon if we must, but keep the bartender," he said. "He is an important factor in the social life of the community. He is the strongest reason for the power of the saloon in the community; he is generally a good fellow, much better educated than his patrons and he is a good man to talk to. When the saloon goes, the loss of a genial friend will be felt in the community."

Dr. Clark is a member of the New York City Board of Education. He argued for the gradual modification of the liquor traffic rather than sudden prohibition. He declared it an injustice to the working man.

FRENCH STRIKERS VOTE TO ARBITRATE

Northern Miners Ask Cabinet Ministers to Rule on Their Wage Demands.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special to The New York Times.

PARIS, June 17.—The decision reached by the northern miners in their meeting yesterday at Bethune was even more encouraging than the optimists had hoped for. By a majority of more than 4 to 1 the very men who had declared for a strike to a finish a few days ago now voted that Ministers Loucheur and Collard be asked to arbitrate their disputes over wages. They practically ignored the eight-hour question, which served as a pretext for the miners' strike in the rest of the country.

Confronted by what amounts to a serious breach in the ranks of labor, it is unlikely that the Big Eight, Cartel and the Executive Committee of the General Labor Federation will adopt at their meeting a defiant attitude. They held one council this morning, but apparently did not reach an agreement, as no statement was issued. They will meet again tonight, but it is not expected that their decision will be announced till very late.

Meanwhile, it is thought, that the Senate will decline to make a change in the Eight-Hour-Law bill, as the miners desire. If the Senators vote for the bill as it reaches them from the Chamber the Cartel will have to choose between fighting a weak cause with unwilling and divided forces and hostile public opinion or back down, at least for the time being, despite the blow to its own pride and the serious loss of prestige involved. The Cartel is expected to choose the latter course, trying at the same time to save its face by wordy condemnation of the Government's tactics and insistence upon its own patriotism in refusing to force a conflict at the present juncture.

So Big And Yet So Small!

We handle only about 22 per cent of the total output of the hundreds of packing plants under federal inspection, and only about 12 per cent of the total meat supply of the nation.

We handle only about 6 per cent of the total quantity of butter, eggs, and poultry sent to market in the United States.

Our tanneries handle less than 15 per cent of the hides made into leather in the United States.

This is done in keen and open competition with every concern handling these products, and at a profit of a fraction of a cent per pound.

In the meat packing industry there is noone dominant concern handling a large proportion of the output.

R-34 TO BE DELAYED UNTIL NEXT WEEK

CRAFT IS 640 FEET LONG

She Has a Maximum Diameter of 79 Feet and Carries Five Suspended Cars.

MINEOLA, N. Y., June 18.—The giant British dirigible R-34, which is coming to this country at the invitation of the United States navy, will arrive the latter part of next week, if weather conditions are favorable, instead of the coming Sunday, as originally scheduled, according to an announcement made today by Lieut. Colonel Frederick W. Lucas of the Royal Air Force, who is in charge of the arrangements for her arrival.

Colonel Lucas explained that arrangements for the aircraft's arrival on Roosevelt Field here will not be completed before Sunday and may take until Tuesday. As soon as they are ready a cablegram will be sent to the commander of the airship, which is stationed at East Fortune, near Edinburgh, Scotland, and the start will be made at the first favorable opportunity thereafter.

Colonel Lucas said the trip across would take between two and one-half and three days. It is estimated that adverse winds of an average velocity of sixteen miles an hour will be encountered, and that an average speed of thirty-eight miles an hour will be made against them. The airship is equipped with five Sunbeam motors, two of 250-horse power, and three of 350-horse power, capable of developing a maximum speed of 63.5 nautical miles an hour.

American naval officials began the construction of a radio station here today to keep in touch with the dirigible when it nears the coast. The radius of the set to be installed will be 250 miles.

Dimensions and specifications of the giant craft were made public today by Colonel Lucas. The length of the airship is 640 feet, or about the size of some of the largest trans-Atlantic liners, and its maximum diameter is 79 feet. The dirigible is 92 feet high. Five cars, each about 25 feet long, are suspended from the rigid frame, and a deck nearly 600 feet long connects them.

One of the engines is in the forward car and one each in the four side cars. It is intended to utilize only three engines on the way over, Colonel Lucas said, and to keep two in reserve in case unusually strong winds are encountered. Pusher type propellers are used on all engines. The airship will carry 16 tons of gasoline, which it is estimated will give a cruising radius of 4,900 nautical miles.

Thirty persons, including four passengers, will be carried. Major Herbert Scott of the Royal Air Force is in command of the craft, which is manned by four officers and twenty-two enlisted men. Brig. Gen. Edward M. Maitland will make the trip as a representative of the British Air Ministry. Lieutenant Zachary Lansdowne is coming on the craft as a representative of the American Navy.

A double crew will be used on the craft, sleeping accommodations being provided for half the members at the same time. An electric stove will be carried and meals for the passengers and crew will be cooked on board. Members of the crew will alternate on four-hour shifts.

PLEA FOR NAVAL AVIATION.

Capt. Craven Asks $20,000,000 More—Fears We Will Fall Behind.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—An increase of $20,000,000 in the $15,000,000 aviation appropriation carried in the 1920 Navy Appropriation bill as passed by the House was urged before the Senate Naval Committee today by Captain T. T. Craven, Chief of naval aviation, who declared that unless it was granted the United States would fall far behind other nations in the race for aircraft development.

Rear Admiral J. S. McKean, Acting Chief of Operations, and Captain R. H. Leigh, Acting Chief of Navigation, also asked the committee to authorize a larger naval force than the House plan for 241,000 men until Oct. 1; 191,000 until Jan. 1, and 171,000 thereafter. Both recommended that 250,000 men should be allowed until Oct. 1, and an average of 200,000 for the balance of the year.

Urging an increased appropriation for naval aviation, Captain Craven declared that England intended to spend $300,000,000 next year for the development of aviation and France $200,000,000.

Plans for the construction of rigid dirigibles would have to be abandoned entirely if the Senate did not increase the appropriation, Captain Craven said, and experimental work on heavier-than-air craft would have to be greatly curtailed.

The programme for dirigible construction, the Captain said, included the erection of two hangars at a cost of $2,000,000 each, the purchase of one of the latest models of British dirigibles for $2,500,000 and the construction of two more in this country at a cost of $2,000,000 each.

START FLIGHT TO CORNELL.

Five Army Officers from Mineola Reach Albany.

Five Cornell aviators started to fly from Roosevelt Field at Mineola to Ithaca yesterday to attend the semi-centennial. The weather, which had been doubtful, cleared, and the reports showed "good weather" along their line of flight.

A crowd of over one hundred persons was at the field to see the take-off of the airplanes painted in Cornell's colors, red and white. The C-4 from Rockaway, sister dirigible of the C-5, which was lost at Newfoundland, flew over the aerodrome with passengers to see the start.

One new name was added yesterday to those who started on the flight, that of Lieutenant Sherman Aldick, 1917. The others are Major Maurice Connelly, 1897; Lieutenant J. O. Greech, 1919; Lieutenant John D. Donaldson, 1918, and Lieutenant U. G. Jones, 1917. Lieutenants Donaldson and Greech wore the D. S. C., which they won during the war.

ALBANY, June 18.—Five army aviators, all former Cornell men, arrived here early tonight from Roosevelt Field, Mineola, on their way to Ithaca, where they will give exhibitions at the semi-centennial celebration of the university later in the week. The airmen were forced to make a landing at Poughkeepsie because of the fog, but later completed their first leg of their journey without incident. After an exhibition here tomorrow the aviators will start for Ithaca.

LIVE LOBSTERS BY AIRPLANE

BRUSSELS, June 18.—Regular transportation of merchandise by airplane between Brussels and Paris, established by companies in the two cities, has already resulted in some unusual cargoes being carried. For instance, a consignment of nearly 500 pounds of live lobsters, brought by one of the airplanes of the system, arrived at the aerodrome near here yesterday afternoon. The lobsters were in excellent condition.

LANE SEES BETTER MORALE.

Says the War Has Forced Unity of Purpose on the Nation.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., June 18.—War's great accomplishments are possible, Secretary Lane told the graduating class of the University of North Carolina today, because war forces unity of purpose on men and nations.

Its aftermath of revolutionary discontent, he said, comes because war's cessation leaves mankind without a common, definite purpose for which to strive. He suggested as a remedy the possibility of building out of the war spirit a renewed unity again, with the purpose this time of creating a better society.

"This is war's superior claim," he said, "not its blood-letting, but its definiteness. Men do as they have never done; they accept leadership gladly. Power comes to them that is abnormal. The force of the world is multiplied. War's objectives are gained by quick and sudden efforts; because it aims at destruction, and this misleads many who seek to use the powers it develops for the uplift of mankind, when peace comes.

"Ours in America is not a work of reconstruction. The morale of this nation is stronger, not weaker, for our adventure. We were walking in the right way before, and now we shall go faster. War has been an accelerator to an impulse that was expressing itself in business and politics, in our literature and all our life; an impulse to serve men."

Find Man's Body Hanging from Tree

CARMEL, N. Y., June 18.—Coroner Rush of Putnam County yesterday announced that the body of Horace P. Hunting, a civil engineer, who disappeared from W. J. Brown's physical culture farm in Garrison five weeks ago, had been found hanging from a tree half a mile from the Brown sanitarium. His shirt and sweater had been torn up to make a noose. Hunting's home was in Washington, D. C.

HANDLEY-PAGE NOW TO SEEK NEW RECORD

Needs Only Refueling Before Starting Across Atlantic to England.

NEW RADIATORS TESTED

Four-Engined Biplane Gives Entire Satisfaction in Hour's Trial Flight with Heavy Load.

Special to The New York Times.

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, June 18.—Save for some final adjustments to the direction-finding wireless system the Handley-Page machine tonight is all ready to be fueled for the Newfoundland-to-England journey which it will attempt in an effort to break the distance record established by the Vickers-Vimy in the pioneer transatlantic flight.

A test flight this afternoon lasting sixty-seven minutes demonstrated as perfectly satisfactory the efficiency of the new radiators tried in the air for the first time. It will be recalled that it was radiator trouble that prevented the Handley-Page from getting away on the same day as the Vickers-Vimy, and that had the new radiators, shipped from England and tried out today, not proved satisfactory there would have been many weeks of delay in the getaway.

Major H. G. Brackley took the biplane into the air and cruised about with all four engines opened full out during the entire trip, yet the power plant kept cool and the water temperature remained well within the safe limit, not coming anywhere near boiling. Members of the expedition are rejoicing tonight that the test proved so satisfactory and now are on tiptoes for the getaway.

The only depressing feature is the weather, which again is described as "dud" in midocean. The hope exists, however, that within two or three days it will clear up, so that Admiral Kerr the fliers found the greatest satisfaction in the agility with which the big machine got off the ground with the heaviest load it has yet been called upon to lift from this none too smooth aerodrome.

A fault found with the direction finding installation was due to the noises engendered by the many wires which go into the construction and equipment of the biplane. Though it was possible for Frederick Wyatt, the wireless operator aboard, to get signals from the Clifden, Ireland, station while the biplane was on the ground, these could not be heard in the air. It is possible that this station quit sending just as the machine rose, but this is believed improbable.

A corps of Marconi men at once got busy going over the system again and hoped to adjust it so that despite the inevitable noises during the flight signals can be used for determining the direction.

DELIVER ATLANTIC AIR MAIL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 17.—One thing which Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown have clung to tenaciously since they landed in Ireland was a small canvas bag marked "Mail From St. John's, Newfoundland, to London." Never letting it out of their possession, they brought it with them to London this evening. It was noticed that Alcock gripped it in his hand all through the reception at Euston Station and the journey to the Royal Aero Club, at times holding it aloft as an acknowledgment of the cheers which greeted him and his companion.

Some of the letters from this treasured mail bear a Newfoundland 15-cent stamp with the inscription, "Transatlantic Air Post, 1919." A letter with "One Dollar" printed in black on it was delivered to THE NEW YORK TIMES' London office tonight, three days after leaving St. John's. This letter conveys the greetings from "ONE NEW YORK TIMES Man to Another," and reads: "I know you will be glad to have one of a few letters carried in the first Transatlantic Air Post to go all the way across the Atlantic by airplane, so I am writing this with every confidence that the Vickers-Vimy is going to get there, and I'm sure when you have the pleasure of meeting Captain Alcock and Lieutenant Brown and of looking over their bus you will understand why I feel so sure of them and of it."

LAYS WIRE STRIKE BEFORE GOMPERS

POSTAL INVITES MEN BACK

Offers to Reinstate Strikers Without Prejudice Up to June 20—More Go Out in the West.

Percy Thomas, International Deputy President of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America and local strike leader, went to Atlantic City yesterday to lay the union's case before President Samuel Gompers and the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor. In his absence the strike situation remained the same, only there was an increased number of pickets, under Morris J. Lane, at the telegraph offices.

So far as the offices of the Western Union and the Postal were concerned, business was normal, and no evidence of a strike being in progress appeared.

Today the Eastern Brokers' Division of the telegraphers will report at 44 Broad Street the result of their request to the Boards of Governors of the New York Stock and Consolidated Exchanges. The exchange officials were asked to induce the companies to settle the strike. There seems to be small chance of a strike of the financial wiremen, no matter which way the report goes, it was said.

POSTAL ACTS TO END STRIKE.

Offers to Reinstate Men with Continuity of Service.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Postal Telegraph Company, in the hope of ending the telegraphers' strike, so far as that company is concerned, sent a notice throughout the country today that strikers would be permitted to return "with continuity of service" up to and including June 20.

The order was prepared by New York officials of the company and distributed over the signatures of district superintendents.

"We feel that many of the old employes merely have been misled and we want to treat them with the utmost fairness by permitting them to return and resume work with their former standings," said E. W. Collins, general superintendent of the company in Chicago. He added that many workers already had returned and that the company was operating on a normal basis.

What action the strikers will take depends largely on the decision of the American Federation of Labor Convention, which has before it resolutions dealing with the situation, it was said. Union men said reports from all sections "were more encouraging than at any time since the strike was called a week ago."

MAY CONTINUE NEW RATES.

House Accepts Six Months' Limit Amendment to Control Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Telegraph rates fixed by the Government under Federal control, would be extended for a "reasonable period not exceeding six months," under an amendment adopted tentatively tonight by the House during consideration of legislation to repeal the control act. The amendment offered by Representative Merritt, Republican, Connecticut, was adopted without a record vote.

More Men Out in the Far West.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 18.—Between 200 and 300 union electrical workers employed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company in Northern California and Nevada today joined the strike of the telephone workers begun on Monday in California.

RENO, Nev., June 18.—All Bell telephone lines in Nevada are tied up this morning, operators and linesmen going out on strike at 8 o'clock.

Linemen Return to Work.

NEW ORLEANS, June 18.—Postal Telegraph Company linemen who struck here a week ago returned to work today. Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company linemen, also out, will be allowed to return, but will lose their seniority, company officials informed a union delegation.

TO BUILD MEMORIAL HOTEL

Chicago Women Plan to Set Aside Rooms for Ex-Soldiers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 18.—A plan to build a $2,000,000 hotel here as a memorial to the Chicagoans who fought in the war was announced today by the Chicago Chapter of the War Mothers of 1917, an organization of women who had sons in the service.

The project is to construct a twenty-one story hotel on Michigan Avenue, with the first eighteen floors devoted to the public, and the three top floors set aside for the convenience of any former service men who may be in the city. Other novel features, such as memorial rooms named after dead heroes and battlefields, are proposed.

It is planned to accumulate a fund by popular subscription among the women of Chicago with which to erect the building.

PEACE CONFEREES SHOWN IN BRONZE

FINE LIKENESS OF WILSON

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 18.—It is no reflection on the art of Jo Davidson, the sculptor, to say that his exhibition of bronze busts of the world's peacemakers—especially the Americans—opened this afternoon in Paris, recalls to New Yorkers the old lamented Eden Musée. There is no reflection, because, of course, there is no comparison, only reminiscence, aroused by these figures in bronze in the Rue Caumartin, of those other figures before the World in Wax came to an end in West Twenty-third Street. And there is reminiscence only because the maker of the Eden Musée groups used to run to Presidents and big statesmen to try to show the great ones of his wax age all in one room, which is exactly what Davidson has succeeded in doing.

In some cases he shows something in his bronze which had not revealed itself to you in the originals, but you admit the truth of it the instant you see the bust. For example, General Tasker H. Bliss. You recognize at once the whimsical smile Davidson has put in the bronze, but realize for the first time that General Bliss has a strong Asiatic suggestion in his face. To a stranger his bust might easily pass for that of a Japanese delegate to the Peace Conference.

Woodrow Wilson, of course, has the place of honor, flanked by Foch, scowling, and Diaz of Italy, smiling. The bust of the President is a perfect likeness. Davidson has got all the firmness of the face, without any of that sourness by which some artists unconsciously and mistakenly make people think they would not care to know President Wilson personally. General Pershing faces Wilson from the other side of the room. Henry White, veteran diplomat, who knew old Paris as well as he knows the Peace Treaty, and loved it better, looks as if he had just relieved the tedium of the studio sitting by telling Davidson that the wine which used to go to his head when a youngster in France now seems to go to his big toe.

Colonel House and Lord Robert Cecil, the two chief enthusiasts for the League of Nations, are side by side. Almost any American, entering the gallery without the aid of a catalogue, would mistake the Cecil bust for the elder John D. Rockefeller, although it is an exact likeness of Cecil, too, and the skull of the Briton is larger than the oil man's. But Colonel House is Colonel House and nobody else. No one could take him for anybody else. And if the bronze could move, House's bust would undoubtedly escape from the publicity of the throngs of French and Americans pouring through the Davison show to gaze at it. Lansing is still in the plaster stage—the only exhibit not in bronze.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 18.—The body of Miss Florence W. Gay of Andover contained arsenic in all the organs, according to testimony today by Professor W. F. Whitney of Harvard University at the trial of Mrs. Bessie M. (Skeels) Lundgren, a nurse, for murder. The Government charges that Mrs. Skeels poisoned the patient in order to cover petty larcenies from the Gay home.

Professor Whitney said the body of the teacher, exhumed several months after her death in December, 1917, showed the presence of arsenic in the liver, brain, kidneys, heart, and other organs. In all, 3.36 grains of the poison was found of which 2.18 grains was in the liver, he said.

Answering a question of Attorney General Atwill, he declared death was due to "arsenical poisoning."

FIND BONDS IN CHIMNEY.

Detectives Unearth $28,000 Worth Stolen on May 27.

Detectives Grover Brown, August Meyer, and Jack O'Connell boosted Michael Londrigan up to the tip of the chimney at 104 Eighth Avenue just at sunset yesterday to see if this chimney, the last to be examined after an afternoon of chimney inspection, contained the bundle of $28,000 worth of stolen Liberty bonds they were seeking.

All of the sleuths, blackened and rather warm from hours on the roofs, were waiting for Londrigan to announce that there was nothing doing when, after a long look down the chimney, he said he saw an obstruction.

They went to work with bars and picks and made a hole in the side of the chimney and, sure enough, out came eight little packages of Liberty bonds, $28,000 worth of them, in $50, $100, and $500 ddenominations. Down at headquarters, the detectives counted them carefully and then the charge against Frank D. Coakley of 107 West 126th Street was changed to grand larceny.

The story of how the bonds came to be tucked away in one of the many pot-topped chimneys jutting up along Eighth Avenue, as told by the detectives, ran thus:

On May 27, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, Denis Forest of 304 West Fifty-fourth Street, a messenger employed at that time by Hartshorne & Battelle, brokers at 25 Broad Street, received the package of bonds and was told to go to a bank and exchange them for twenty-eight $1,000 certificates. Pretty soon Forest came back and reported that three strong men had robbed him. The police were told about it and they got hold of Denis and questioned him.

After a short time, said the detectives, Denis confessed that he had been a party to the disappearance of the bonds, and hints he dropped sent the police around to the Eighth Avenue address. They found Coakley, with his feet on the window ledge of his room, reading a newspaper. No, he said, he didn't know a thing about bonds. But they took him down to Headquarters just the same, because the satchel that had contained the bonds was in his room.

For days the detectives grilled Coakley in an effort to break down his denials, but they obtained nothing. Then the search began.

SAYS PORK IS HOARDED.

American Relief Administration Blames Price on Speculation.

The American Relief Administration issued a statement yesterday asserting that there were indications that the high price of pork was due to speculation and hoarding.

"We are convinced," the statement said, "that there is a great deal of vicious speculation in pork products; it is probably being done in hopes of possibilities of rising prices upon peace and enlarged demands from Central Europe. That such speculation is going on is indicated by the fact that the volume of pork products in stock in the United States is at the highest level ever before known at this period, Mr. ever before known at this period.

"There is in the last few days the very insistent demand for the resumption of consolidated buying by Governments which would be a practical dictation of prices in the United States.

"We are of course powerless to interfere in the matter, either to put down the present speculation or to prevent action of European Governments."

Suffrage Is Advanced in Bay State.

BOSTON, June 18.—The Committee on Federal Relations, of the Legislature, voted 9 to 1 today in favor of immediate ratification of the Woman Suffrage amendment. This action was taken after Governor Coolidge had let it be known that he would veto a different measure which he was informed the committee originally proposed to report. This measure would have provided for a referendum by all the people of the State, women as well as men.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Please Get Married" will end its engagement at the Fulton Theatre in another week.

"Radium," a play by Ernest Howard Culbertson, has been accepted by A. H. Woods.

The Theatre Guild will begin its second season at the Garrick Theatre in October, and will offer five bills during the year, as well as a special program for subscribers only.

THE SCREEN

"The Challenge of Chance," with Jess Willard and his wallop in the leading rôle, opened at the Park Theatre last night. Before the showing of the picture was begun a representative of the management announced that the film had arrived from the coast only a few hours previously and that the hurried efforts made to get it ready for exhibition might not prove altogether successful. They didn't.

The story followed a melodramatic, mock-heroic course through the adventures of Willard as popular ranch foreman, representative pro tem. of the S. P. C. A. and innocent buyer of horses for a crooked dealer in El Paso. In his brief term as the dealer's buyer he discovered that his employer was a man whom he had pummeled for beating a horse, and at about the same time he learned that the same man was planning to rob a beautiful maiden. So he gave up his job and took on that of protecting the girl.

This involved rescuing her Kentucky race horses from Juarez, where they were in danger of capture by Mexican bandits in the pay of the crooked dealer. The hero, with a few followers, made a dash for the international Bridge with the horses, hoping to beat the bandits over the border.

The race began. It soon became a running fight—and there the story got lost. Apparently the exhibitors had not been able to assemble the film properly, for after interminable scenes of the fighting, all jumbled together without coherence, there suddenly flashed on the screen a scene in which Willard was shown heroically giving up the girl to another man, whom, apparently, she loved.

Willard and his fists were much in the picture. Every time he got in a tight place he began to swing right and left, and his assailants, numbering more than a score in one instance, tumbled down like ten pins, hough "The Challenge of Chance" is principally concerned with Willard, it contains a number of scenes of riding horsemen and rolling country that are pictorially delightful. Harry Revier directed the production.

FULL PARDON FOR BRAM.

President Extends Clemency in Famous Triple Murder Case.

BOSTON, June 18.—Thomas M. Bram, mate of the barkentine Herbert Fuller, who was convicted of a triple murder on the high seas twenty years ago, has been granted a full pardon by the President. Bram was convicted of the killing of the Captain, the Captain's wife, and the second mate of the barkentine. Word of the pardon came from Bram in a message to his counsel, which said "the President has granted a full and unconditional pardon to your innocent client." Bram added: "This is the closing chapter in a wonderful case."

The murder was committed on the night of July 13, 1896. A sailor going below to rouse the Second Mate, August W. Blomberg, found that Blomberg, Captain Charles I. Nash, and the latter's wife, had been killed while they slept, apparently with an axe. It was Mate Bram's watch on deck.

Suspicion of the crew caused a seaman named Brown to be placed in irons and the ship was turned back to Halifax, Nova Scotia. There Brown asserted that while looking through a port hole he saw Bram attack the victims with an axe. Bram was then charged with the crime. He was twice tried in United States courts. The jury in the first trial ordered his execution, but a second jury found him guilty without capital punishment. He has been at liberty on parole for six years.

Applying Merchandising Principles to Real Estate

TWO men became retail merchants in a certain city at the same time. One sold clothing, let us assume, and the other sold meat. Both enterprises were blessed with initial success with the result that two bank accounts developed restive yearning for new worlds to conquer.

The clothier, blind to the opportunities in his own line, opened a garage and then a restaurant. For a time these prospered, but when competition became keen the divided attention of the owner was not sufficient to keep them from disaster. The clothing venture nearly suffered the same fate and is hanging on from day to day living on the crumbs dropped by those who grasped the opportunities it overlooked.

The butcher put his money back in his meat market; he enlarged his store and advertised. As customers kept coming and his profits increased, he improved his equipment and his service. Today he has the most successful retail meat market in the city, a constantly growing business.

Which of these examples are you, as a property owner, following? Are you investing the rent from your holdings in enterprises much less lucrative? Are you neglecting to make any improvements which will increase the real estate value of your property and the income it brings you?

Electric service is the greatest improvement. It makes a dwelling more comfortable, reduces maintenance cost and improves the tone of the building. And it has the very tangible effect of making it easier to rent.

A postal-card or telephone request (Stuyesant 4980) will bring our representative to you. He will tell you how inexpensively and easily your property can be electrified. And if the investment involves a greater immediate expenditure than is convenient, we may perhaps be able to arrange terms.

INDIANS MASSACRE INNOCENT YANKEES

Cleveland Batters Thump Huggins's Pitchers Relentlessly for Victory by 13 to 3.

IN TIE FOR FIRST PLACE

Thormahlen Suffers First Defeat of Season After Winning Six Games—Support Is Loose.

Alarming seismic vibrations shook the top of the American League standing all to pieces yesterday. The curtain-raiser of the crucial series up at the Polo Grounds between the galloping Yanks and Cleveland resulted in one of the worst spankings that has stung New York this season, the Indians prying off a 13 to 3 victory from the Huggins outfit. The White Sox were jolted by Washington, so if you cast a sly glance at the standing this fair June morning you will note that Cleveland and Chicago are tied for first place with the Yanks tumbled down to the third position.

The fall of the Yanks wasn't even dramatic. When the Cleveland earthquake started the Yanks momentarily braced to receive the shock. Then they staggered under the blow, rolled around groggy, then tumbled and lapsed into unconsciousness. The destruction of the Cleveland bats was so violent that Huggins's lads saw more stars than there are in the Milky Way. Herb Thormahlen, the young southpaw who hadn't been beaten before this season, was jarred right out of the game after winning six straight victories. Allan Russell and Lute Nelson, who tried to stem the tide of Indian savagery, were also slammed till the cows came home.

Indians Are Noisy.

The Redskins from Ohio had more pep than a box of paprika. They not only outplayed and outbatted the Yanks but they also outtalked them. Old Lee Fohl, the taciturn Cleveland leader, who used to be the quietest leader in the game, has become inoculated with the pennant virus and cut up all kinds of capers on the coaching lines. Cleveland is just now the noisiest troupe that ever invaded the Harlem meadow. If they can't win the pennant by playing they are going to talk their way to the top. Chet Thomas aided Fohl in coaching and Thomas didn't stop at talking, he hollered at the top of his voice for nine innings. He yelled so much that the fans in the stand were asking him what he was trying to sell.

The whole crew chattered like a cage of monkeys. At times the 10,000 fans tried to outyell the Cleveland bunch but they came out second best. The fans didn't have much to yell about, anyway. Cleveland did. The Yanks were at their worst and the Indians at their best. The Indians opened the bout with a rush such as Jack Dempsey expects to use against Willard in Toledo. It was just an off day for Huggins's men. It isn't to be supposed that they will behave so badly any more. They had stage fright and buck fever. Every turn of the game broke Cleveland's way and every swing of the Yankee bats at Jim Bagby's benders almost broke the Yankee's backs.

Sixteen hits bounded off the Cleveland bludgeons to all inhabited spots of the field. Steve O'Neill led the fusillade with four hits, two of them two baggers. Tris Speaker got three hits, one a double. Tris hasn't been hitting so very hard lately. He was saving up his hits till he came to the Polo Ground. Jack Graney was willing to hit but he didn't have to, as he walked four times without even saying "Thank you" to the big-hearted Yankee pitchers.

Huggins Calls Reserves.

In a brave attempt to stop the Indians Manager Huggins rushed in every man in his employ except the ground keeper and the bat boys. It was the first time this year that some of them have had to work. The only one of the whole lot of Yankees that took part in the disaster who didn't come out all bruised up was McGraw, the big raw-boned pitcher. He pitched the ninth inning and he made the three Indians who faced him roll over and play dead.

The cushions which adorn the corners of the diamond were all worn out from the traffic. There was hardly a moment during the afternoon when the pillows weren't crowded with Cleveland players. They threw the worn-out bags away last night and will have a new set of sacks for today's affair. The only thing that Cleveland needed yesterday to make their opening visit a regular parade was a brass band.

Thormahlen started out in the first inning in a most unselfish manner. He gave Graney a pass and Chapman sacrificed. Tris Speaker slapped the first ball pitched to right centre for a double and scored Graney. Joe Wood jammed a single to centre and scored Speaker. Thank goodness, Larry Gardner hit into a double play. Thormahlen felt like Santa Claus again in the second inning. He walked Wambsganss and Doc Johnston sacrificed. O'Neill got a scratch infield hit, and when Bagby rolled a bounder to third Baker missed tagging O'Neill and Wamby scored. Thormahlen walked Graney the second time and filled the bases.

Huggins wig-wagged frantically to the outfield for Russell. The pitcher came in with the most slippery moist ball seen this season. His aqueous toss didn't have as much control as a South Sea dancer. He was as wild as a whirling Dervish. Chapman rolled the ball to Peck, who made a perfect throw home to force O'Neill, when, wow! Hannah dropped the ball. The best thing about that inning was when Speaker forced Chapman for the third out.

Bases Filled Again.

The epidemic of infield hits continued in the third. Smith, who succeeded Wood in right against Russell's right-hand pitching, got a single to short and Gardner walked, Wamby got another infield tap and again jammed the bases. Johnston skied to Bodie and O'Neill flied to Pipp. Never was a pitcher more incorrigible than Russell at this moment. His moist heaves went every which way and Bagby got a pass, forcing Smith home with a run.

The fourth inning was one of the strangest in the world for Cleveland. They didn't get a run, not a single solitary run. Vick woke up the Yankee rooters in the Yank half of the fourth by jamming a three-bagger to left centre. The shock of this sudden turn of affairs was so great that Ray Chapman had to retire. They said that he was seized with a sudden attack of lumbago, but it was probably the effect of surprise which drove him from the pastime. Peck scored Vick with an infield hit and Baker forced Peck at second. Lewis was safe on Wambsganss's error, and Pipp's sacrifice fly scored Baker.

Nelson came in to pitch in the seventh and got a reception in his début under Coogan's Bluff that he will never forget. A tornado of six hits gave Cleveland five more runs. It was awful. The Yanks pulled themselves together in their portion of the eighth, and with three singles and an error they managed to get another run.

GIANTS BAFFLED BY DOAK'S CURVES

League Leaders Held to Five Hits and Lose First Game to Cardinals by 5 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, June 18.—Bill Doak was equal to the task of subduing the Giants today, and the Cardinals took the opening game of the series, 5 to 2. The light haired spit-baller held McGraw's men to five hits, three of which were made in the fifth inning, when the Giants did all their scoring. Rube Benton, who hurled seven innings, was hit somewhat hard in spots, and Ferdie Schupp, who pitched the eighth, was wild, and yielded the last two runs made by the Cardinals.

St. Louis took the lead in the third inning, employing a squeeze play to push a run over the plate. Snyder opened the inning with a single to left and Doak laid down a sacrifice bunt, which Benton threw to Fletcher too late to force Snyder at second. Smith moved the runners along with another sacrifice, and on the squeeze play, Miller was retired on a bunt which Benton fielded, Snyder crossing the plate.

The Giants had men on the bases in the second and third innings, but lightning double plays swept them off. They went out in regular order in the fourth, but Doyle, leading off in the fifth, drove the ball into the right field bleachers for a home run. Kauff poked a single to right and advanced on a sacrifice by Zimmerman. Chase beat out a slow roller down the third base line and Kauff moved along to third and Benny scored shortly thereafter while Levan was throwing out McCarty. Benton flied to McHenry and the Giant scoring machine was through for the afternoon.

Benton turned the Cardinals away from the plate in regular order in the fourth and fifth, but in the sixth the Cardinals bunched three hits and a sacrifice fly for two runs. After Smith had been retired Miller singled to left and Stock beat out a hard hit ball that glanced off Zimmerman's shins. Hornsby doubled to left center, scoring Miller and putting Stock on third, and Schultz, batting for Heathcote, drove a sacrifice fly to Kauff on which Stock scored.

Earl Smith batted for Benton in the eighth and Schupp went to the hill in the Cardinals' half of the inning. Smith drew a pass and took second on a passed ball. He remained at that bag while Fletcher was throwing out Miller, but a moment later Schupp pegged to Doyle in a vain attempt to catch Smith napping. Schupp allowed Doyle's return throw to get away from him and Smith raced to third. Stock hammered the ball to left for three bases, scoring Smith. Stock scored on a wild pitch.

PITTSBURGH, June 18.—After winning seven straight games, Pittsburgh was defeated to-day by a score of 6 to 5 in eleven innings by Boston. Thorpe's home run in the eighth inning tied the score for the visitors and his sacrifice fly brought Powell over with the winning run in the eleventh after the latter had tripled. ROBINS OPEN WITH VICTORY OVER CUBS

Batting Slump Ends and Jim Vaughan Is Pounded for Fourteen Safeties.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The Robins opened their series with the cubs this afternoon with a 3 to 1 victory. Jim Vaughan was found for fourteen safe hits by the visitors who before reaching the city were in a batting slump. Jeff Pfeffer pitched for the winners and held the champions to eight hits, three of which were bunched in the fourth inning for their only run. The Robins made five successive hits off Vaughan in the sixth inning, and although the last safe blow was a two bagger they only scored two runs.

Zack Wheat opened the session with a single to right. Koney and Magee both beat out infield hits, filling the bases. Schmandt also got an infield hit and Zack Wheat scored. Kreuger batted for Mack Wheat and doubled to centre. Koney scored on the hit, but Magee was caught at the plate.

The Robins scored their first run in the fourth inning, which was opened by Myers with a single. Z. Wheat forced him and went to second when Koney singled. Magee followed with a single which scored Wheat. The Cubs made their run in the same round. Flack and Pick, the first two batters, hit safely and the bases were filled when Mann got an infield hit. As Merkle was hitting into a double play Flack registered.

MACK'S LADS BEAT TIGERS.

Detroit Comes to Life Just Too Late to Save the Game.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Errors aided Philadelphia in defeating the Detroit Tigers by 6 to 5 today. Perry relieved Kinney in the eighth and stopped a rally.

In the ninth, with two out and two on bases, Perry made a wild pitch, Shorten scoring. Umpire Nallin called Bush out as he slid over the plate with the tieing run and the latter rushed at the official, pushing him back from the plate with both hands. Cobb was out of the game because of a boil on his leg.

MANY ENTRIES FOR JUNIOR.

Albert J. Dinn of Port Washington will carry the emblem of the New York A. C. in three individual title attempts at the annual Metropolitan A. A. U. junior track and field championships to be held at Stevens Tech Field, Hoboken, N. J., June 28. Dinn yesterday submitted his entry blank for the 12-pound shotput, in which he is capable of 40 feet; the running broad jump, in which he has leaped over 21 feet, and the running hop, step and jump, at which test Dinn has registered over 44 feet in previous trials.

An unprecedented demand is reported for entry blanks for the coming meet. The requests have been so large as to exhaust the original supply of 2,000 blanks. Entries have thus far been received from the majority of clubs in the district, together with some from Newark, N. J.; Geneva, N. Y.; Tuckahoe, Port Washington, and Mount Vernon.

Sixteen local clubs plan to nominate teams. The meet will witness the return of the New York A. C. to track and field championship competition. The Mercury Foot juniors are planning a stiff battle to annex the title won last year by the Paulist A. C. The latter club will again compete.

NEWARK WINS BOTH GAMES.

Bisons Are Easy Victims of Twirling of Rommel and Lyons.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, N. J., June 18.—Newark easily won both games from Buffalo here today, beating the Bisons 7 to 0 in the first game and 5 to 1 in the second. Ed Rommel, who went South with the Giants, hurled in the opening encounter, and although touched up for eight safe hits was an enigma in the pinches. Newark got eight hits also, but made them all count.

In the second game Alcer Jenson, who started for Newark, was taken out of the box in the third inning on account of his wildness. Paddy Lyons, who took up the pitching, allowed only three hits during the remainder of the game.

SKEETERS GET EVEN BREAK.

Yield to Rochester in First Game, but Capture Second.

An error by Sharp, the shortstop, in the opening game of yesterday's double header between Rochester and Jersey City, on the latter team's diamond, spoiled the Skeeters' prospects of capturing both ends of the two-ply bill and resulted in an even break. Irwin's men took the curtain raiser by a 2 to 1 score, and Donovan's athletes came back in the final half by a 4 to 2 tally.

With second and third bases occupied by Rochester players and one out in the second inning Mathews lined the ball to Sharp and in making the play at home to head See off, Sharp threw the ball over Catcher Hudgins's head, and See and Kelly rushed home with what proved the winning tallies.

In the closing contest Jersey City outhit Rochester and stowed the game away in the sixth inning with a base on balls and a trio of hits.

YALE NINE ON TOP WHEN DUST CLEARS

Defeats Harvard in a Weird Scramble of Booting and Batting and Wins Series.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 18.—Harvard and Yale played a weird game of baseball in connection with the Crimson's commencement festival, on Soldiers' Field today, Yale winning, 10 to 8, in a wild finish by scoring 6 runs in its ninth inning after Harvard, with a 7 run rally in the eighth, had jumped ahead, 8 to 4, and appeared a certain winner.

Yale had been leading almost from the start. Cone, the left hander, had not only held Harvard to few hits and one run, but with a home run blow had himself contributed half of the Yale runs. Late in the game, however, Harvard was batting Coxe hard and a right hander, Robinson, was substituted. Harvard got to him from the jump, pounding out five hits and scoring four runs on these and errors before Selleck, who pitched so well yesterday at New Haven, was brought into the game as a relief. Another hit and an error gave Harvard two more runs, and with a four run margin the Crimson was happy when the Elis went into their final session.

Yale's ninth was a spectacle. Babe Felton, who had relieved Hardell, against whom Yale had made its four earlier runs, was away off the mark, and after Selleck had opened with a hit and Prann had flied to Emmons, Felton filled the bases by passing both Boyd and the hard-hitting Holden.

At this juncture Faherty came across with a three base hit to right centre, putting Yale only a run behind, and immediately counted the tying run by beating Emmons's throw to the plate after the Harvard shortstop had taken a slow bounding ball from Diamond's bat. Felton then hit Murphy, which ended his régime, Bullard going to the points.

McLeod threw out Sawyer at first, and then the game went to the bowwows for Harvard. On a bounding hit by Sheehan to the short field, Emmons threw low and into the dirt in front of Bigelow at first base. The ball got away, and both Diamond and Murphy scored. Harvard's batters in the ninth were easy victims.

Yale looked the better all through the early part of the game. Coxe was unsteady at times, but Harvard seemed unable to hit the ball into safe regions. In the fourth inning the New Haven team broke the ice when Holden got two bases on a fly misjudged by Hallowell, and scored on Faherty's single. In the next inning Hardell passed Sheehan, and then Coxe drove out a home run to right centre. Harvard got one run in its half of this inning on passes to Perkins and King, and a hit by Emmons. In the seventh Yale got the point back when Murphy made the rounds on his free pass and Sheehan's triple.

Coxe was hit hard, although without scoring, in Harvard's seventh, and in the eighth Robinson went on the mound. Harvard went right after him, Meehan, Knowles, Frothingham, and Perkins making singles. There were two runs in and three men on bases when Murphy made a wild throw in trying for a force play on a drive from Bond. Bigelow's safe bunt on a squeeze then tied the score, after which Felton hit to Sawyer who got Bond at the plate.

Felton hit to Diamond, who threw into the dirt at the plate, Perkins scoring, and then Emmons hit to Sawyer, who nipped Bond at home. On this play Sheehan tried to get Emmons at first, throwing beyond Diamond, and two more Harvard men romped home. Then McLeod's triple scored Emmons, and Yale closed with a double play on Knowles's fly to Faherty after a ticket had been issued to Meehan.

Each team used three pitchers, but it was due to Felton's poor finish that Yale got the edge. Except in the eighth Yale played a great fielding game. The Yale nine, having won the Harvard series, will now meet Princeton at Brooklyn on Saturday.

CURVES AND BINGLES

If you've ever come down on an express elevator in the Woolworth Building, you know just how the Yanks felt yesterday.

Larry Gardner was chased from the Red Sox to the Athletics because he was all in. Connie Mack then chased him to Cleveland. Ohio air revived Larry, and now he is chasing every team in sight.

Lute Nelson rubbed the ball on his uniform to produce a "shine" ball, a la Eddie Cicotte. The Indians completed the polish act with their bats.

Ban Johnson must have lost all his railroad timetables. Red Owens and Chill are still in town umpiring. They have been here so much that they are as familiar as the signs on the fence.

When Peck slid into third in the eighth Chill called him safe. The whole Cleveland team surrounded Ollie and swore that Peck was out. The umpire was lost from view for several minutes, but he was found in the middle of the melee unharmed just when a searching posse was being organized to go out and help him.

Cleveland got a lot of freak infield hits, but all their runs were normal.

The most consistent hitting of the game was done by Duffy Lewis. In the fourth he made ten fouls in a row.

With first place within their grasp, the Yanks suffered from being too all-fired eager. The only suffering the Clevelands did was due to exhaustion in running the bases.

There's another fine party in store for the Yankees today. Stanley Coveleskie is due to pitch for the Indians.

Peck made a great play in the fifth when he took a relayed throw from the outfield at third base with one hand and tagged Bagby as he was sailing into the third pier.

Al Wickland batted for Hannah in the seventh, but he had struck out before the megaphone man had finished announcing him to the crowd.

The pinch hitting talent had a poor average yesterday. Wickland, Halas, Ward, and O'Doul all took a few swats at the ball, but O'Doul was the only one who knew what first base looked like. He beat out an infield tap toward first.

A more bountiful person than Russell never pitched. At one time yesterday it looked as if he was going to present Cleveland with the Polo Grounds.

If Cleveland wins many more games, Manager Lee Fohl will talk himself into the hospital with tonsilitis.

THREE NEW YORK TENNIS STARS SURVIVE IN WOMEN'S TITLE TOURNEY

MISS GOSS BEATEN BY MRS. WIGHTMAN

MATCH TAKES THREE SETS

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Mrs. George W. Wightman eliminated one of her most dangerous rivals in the women's national tennis championship at the Philadelphia Cricket Club today when she defeated Miss Eleanor Goss of New York in a thrilling three-set match, 6—3, 4—6, 6—4. The other players to enter the round before the semi-finals were Miss Molla Bjurstedt, Miss Clare Cassel, Miss Marion Zinderstein, Miss Marie Wagner, Mrs. Gilbert Harvey, and Miss Leslie Bancroft, with Miss Anne Townsend already in possession of the eighth bracket.

The third round battle of Miss Goss and Mrs. Wightman was staged in the late morning hours on the grand stand court, and in spite of the threatening weather a large crowd was in attendance. The hard rain which fell here last evening had slowed up the turf sufficiently to be of distinct advantage to the chop strokes of the Boston star, and the quickness with which the balls become darkened and heavy imposed an additional handicap on the fast driving stroke artist of the West Side Club. In spite of these disadvantages, however, the tennis was spectacular from the outset, both players giving a rare exhibition of speed, accuracy, and steadiness.

Mrs. Wightman Plays Fast Game.

Mrs. Wightman started in whirlwind style, forcing the openings and giving her tall opponent no chance to get close to the net for volleying. She looked like an easy winner after taking the first set with the loss of only three games. But Miss Goss was hitting harder as her confidence increased and she used good headwork in a successful effort to square the match.

Finding Mrs. Wightman's backhand chop more puzzling than her forehand strokes, Miss Goss persistently played to the forehand until the opportunity for a killing shot presented itself. Hammering away with undiminished vigor, the New York girl eventually placed the second set to her credit and after the usual seven minutes' rest the real struggle began.

Service won alternately up to 2-1, when Miss Goss, by a series of amazing drives to the corners, broke through her opponent's delivery for a lead of 3-1. Mrs. Wightman, however, immediately nullified this advantage by breaking through in turn, a very close "out" and a bad volley by Miss Goss accounting for the winning points. Mrs. Wightman then served the set square at 3 all and proceeded to take the lead, 4-3, when Miss Goss ran into a streak of erratic hitting. The New Yorker, however, came back with splendid courage and again tied the score at 4-all, a good overhead smash and some beautiful backhand drives playing an important part in her success.

Kismet Plays Its Role.

Then in the ninth game Fate decided the issue. Miss Goss lost a close decision on the line and immediately afterward saw a puny shot trickle over the net cord for an unearned but exceedingly important point. She still had a chance to pull out the game, an easy lob coming to her after a long session of fast driving. She failed, however, to make a complete kill, and when another lob came back she knocked it into the net. This shot virtually decided the match.

Mrs. Wightman went about the task of winning her final service game with merciless logic. Chopping her opponent out of position, she hurried to the net and smashed straight down the line as Miss Goss ran across to protect the huge opening on her right. For the match point the winner rushed in with her service and again smashed so hard and deep that a return was impossible. It was a sensational ending to one of the best matches ever played in a women's national tournament.

The other encounters in the singles were all one-sided affairs, the champion getting little opposition from Mrs. Clement Wainwright, while Miss Marion Zinderstein walked through a straight set victory over Miss Eleonora Sears by the surprisinug scores of 6-2, 6-1. The loser has been suffering from a sprained thumb since the metropolitan tournament and was unable to do herself justice, so that the younger Bostonian never had to extend herself, murdering the defensive chop strokes of Miss Sears as she pleased.

Miss Cassel Wins Handily.

Miss Zinderstein will make her fight for a semi-final bracket tomorrow against Miss Clare Cassel, who today won an impressive victory at 6—3, 6—1, against Miss Mary Thayer, one of the hardest hitters among the Philadelphia girls. Miss Cassel was again in rare form, missing very few shots and always using her head to circumvent the aggressive play of her young rival. It was pretty tennis, with steadiness and court experience proving clearly superior to a fine combination of pace and energy.

The girls' national championship reached the semi-final round this morning and offered a surprise in the defeat of last year's champion, Miss Katherine Porter, by Miss Adelaide Hooker of New York. The match went to three sets, 6—3, 2—6, 6—2, and was hard fought all the way. The loser seemed a bit shy of practice, but little Miss Hooker won on the merits of her game, hitting the ball hard and confidently, and going after everything with consistent determination.

The other semi-finalists are Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, who won a close three-set match from Miss Katherine Lauder; Miss Elizabeth Warren of Richmond, who defeated her fellow Southerner, Miss Penelope Anderson in straight sets, and Miss Katherine Gardner of New York.

With all the more important teams progressing without difficulty, two rounds were quickly cleared up in each doubles event. In the girls' doubles the Hoover sisters got revenge on the Bayards in straight sets for the defeat recently sustained by them in the Metropolitan Tournament.

With the return of sunshine in the early afternoon, a large gallery took possession of the grand stand and clubhouse porches to watch the doubles and mixed doubles.

KUMAGAE IN SEMI-FINAL.

Ichiya Kumagae, the prominent Japanese tennis player, advanced to the semi-final round in his quest for the Brooklyn singles championship as a result of the play in the continuation of the tournament on the courts of the Terrace Club, Flatbush, yesterday. The sturdy son of Nippon disposed of Fred Anderson, Jr., in his fifth round match in straight sets, at 6—0, 6—3. This gave Kumagae the distinction of being the first player to attain the semi-final round bracket.

The match was the principal one of the day and attracted the greatest interest. Kumagae, however, scored his victory with comparative ease, making a total of 55 points to his young rival's 28. The Oriental star was at the top of his form and was as steady as a rock. His placement shots were particularly accurate, and had Anderson in difficulties almost steadily throughout the match. Frequently, too, the Nipponese took the battle right up to the net, where his powerful lefthand drives overwhelmed the young Brooklyn player.

Kumagae made a walkaway of the first set, chalking up six successive games and taking the set by a point margin of 29 to 12. In the second set Anderson checked the onslaught of his prominent opponent with a brilliant service. Consistent play gave the young Brooklynite the opening game, his opponent being unable to score a point. The Jap returned to the attack, however, and took the succeeding two games. In the fourth game Anderson was successful, but the effort was only a flash in the pan, for Kumagae took the three succeeding games, in which Anderson registered but one point. The eighth game was captured by Anderson, but Kumagae clinched the match by taking the ninth game in an impressive closing display.

Kumagae advanced through the fourth round as a result of a conditional match held Tuesday, in which he vanquished D. A. L. Dionne without difficulty by scores of 6—0 and 6—3. This match was conducted when Dionne's scheduled opponent, A. Healey, failed to appear for the match. No default was recorded, but Kumagae and Dionne took the court for the Jap's fourth round match on the supposition that Dionne would be returned victor over Healey when the latter pair clashed. Dionne disposed of Healey in straight sets by scores of 6—2, 6—1. If the reverse result had been registered Kumagae would have been compelled to again play his fourth round match.

Young Anderson was forced through five hard sets to attain the fifth flight. He scored over H. Oakley after three stiffly contested sets in the third round by scores of 2—6, 6—4, and 6—2. In the fourth round Anderson drew A. Hammett as his rival and was fully extended before being returned the victor by 7—5, 6—4.

In the play for the juniors' title Cecil Donaldson reached the final round through a victory over Stephen Schlessinger in the semi-final round play. The scores were 0—6, 6—1, 6—4. In this match Schlessinger surprised his rival with a display of brilliant form in the opening set. The effort affected Schlessinger's play in the following set, which Donaldson took by 6—1, and in the deciding clash Donaldson insured his position in the final round by 6—4.

The boys' title will be decided this afternoon, when M. Bernstein, a De Witt Clinton High School student, opposes Thomas Van Kuyck, a protege of the Terrace Club. Bernstein defeated Jerry Lang of Morris High School in his semi-final round match, after a spirited session. Lang took the first set by 13—11, but was beaten in the next two, 6—4, 6—4.

TRIO OF WINNERS RIDDEN BY LOFTUS

Johnny Loftus returned to the saddle at Jamaica yesterday, after a day's vacation, with such good effect that he eclipsed all his previous performances this season, and in the vernacular of the baseball world batted 1,000. Loftus had three mounts for as many different owners and scored with all of them in the easiest manner possible. The prestige of the leading jockey caused all his mounts to be made favorites, but even money could be obtained against the Brighton Stable's Lady Brummel, which won the first race, and also against J. W. May's Head Over Heels, whose victory ended a perfect day for the Loftus clan.

Though Loftus was a little more in the limelight than is usual and was heartily cheered when he returned to weigh in after his third straight success, there have been many occasions this season when his riding has been more worthy of comment. His easiest victory was gained in the Olympic Selling Stakes at six furlongs, in which he had the mount on S. C. Hildreth's Out the Way, a son of Peter Pan that has demonstrated himself a sprinter of the first rank. Out the Way dropped in with only 118 pounds to carry, and with Loftus supplanting Lyke, the Hildreth jockey since Taplin courted suspension, the event was looked upon as a certainty.

Out the Way was not called on for his real speed in the early stages of the race, but Loftus was content to keep him just far enough in advance of Vague to avoid interference in the back stretch. Youneed was rushed up into third place near the far turn and threatened the leaders for a few strides. Then Loftus let Out the Way down for a short spin, and he quickly shot into a lead of three lengths.

Vague faded away on reaching the stretch, and the Cleveland Stable's Whimsy rushed by Younced to take up the chase of Out the Way. The latter never was in danger, and Loftus was easing him all through the last sixteenth, so that the margin of victory was reduced to a length and a half. Whimsy beat Younced by two lengths for the place.

The most artistic horsemanship of Loftus was displayed in the first race for two-year-olds, which attracted a good field of youngsters. Lady Brummel had shown skittishness in her previous races, but under the skillful guidance of the crack jockey she ran with grace and ease throughout. Loftus placed her second to Eddie Rickenbacker at the start of the five and a half furlongs and rated her along confidently while the aviator was cutting out a lead of two lengths.

It was not until the stretch turn that Loftus began to move up with Lady Brummel, and even then he did not resort to the whip. Under a smooth hand ride Lady Brummel swept by Eddie Rickenbacker and was eased at the finish to win by a length. Lovely, the rank outsider, had kept pace with Lady Brummel to the stretch and Wells kept her going to take third place, a length behind Eddie Rickenbacker.

There was a rousing finish in the second race at a mile and a sixteenth, with three immature jockeys guiding the placed horses. After Poacher had set the pace to the far turn the Cleveland Stable's Matinee Idol was rushed to the front and held command into the stretch, where Wessler brought up G. W. Foreman's Queen of the Sea. These were having a rare battle when Daddy's Choice, which had been kept far out of the running by Wida, made a belated effort and swooped down on the pair with a run which if started earlier would have assured victory. As it was, Wessler was the most proficient in a driving finish and Queen of the Sea gained the verdict by a nose from Matinee Idol, with Daddy's Choice only a neck back.

There was an upset in the third at six furlongs when the Curb Stable's Peasant ran over Apple Jack II. in the stretch and won by a length and a half. Alors, the favorite, swerved when in a contending position near the finish and had to be content with third place, a length behind Apple Jack II.

LADY BETTY GAINS HORSE SHOW PRIZE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 18.—With indications pointing to the shattering of the records of its predecessors in the number of entries and the quality of the contesting animals, the twenty-sixth annual Westchester County horse show opened today at Gedney Farms. It will continue until Saturday night.

The coach Meteor with C. Davies Tainter as whip and P. Donnelly as guard, drove from the Orawaupam Hotel in White Plains to Gedney Farms. The guests on the Meteor were: Mrs. George W. Pell, Miss A. M. Wall, Mrs. Ferdinand Wall, C. Tainter, Miss Alice B. Tainter, C. G. Tainter, Mrs. Audrey H. Tainter, Mrs. Otis Luke, Miss Luke, Mrs. W. A. Burke, and E. R. Graves.

Thomas Crowley, despite the fact that he was twice the victim of falls, escaped unhurt and won the approbation of the crowd by refusing to release his horse's reins when peril threatened. In trying to take Liberty Bell over the hurdles Crowley was thrown by the animal, who refused the jump. He landed clear and the horse bolted. The dismounted rider held to the bridle and stopped the horse.

Shortly after this incident the same rider was mounted on Carlisle, and in attempting to take a hedge was again thrown. He was not injured, but the horse got away.

The judges for the events are: Saddle horses and ponies, Joseph Laroque and James C. Marshall of New York; polo mounts, Charles Pfizer of Bernardsville, N. J.; hunters and jumpers, Henry L. Bell of Bayside, N. Y., and Charles Pfizer; Veterinary Inspector—Dr. F. O. Wright of White Plains.

CALDER WINS GOLF FINAL.

Contestants in eight flights took part in match play in the Spring tournament of the New York Paper Trade Golf Association, which ended at the Arcola Country Club yesterday. The championship of the association was won by Alec Calder of Cherry Valley. Calder, who led the field in the qualifying round on Tuesday, defeated C. R. McMillen of Essex County in the decisive tilt by 2 up and 1 to play.

The Luke trophy, offered for the two best complete rounds of eighteen holes from both days' play, was won by D. L. Luke, Jr., with 173-36-137. Luke's name will be engraved on the cup, donated by his father, and it will remain in his possession until the next Spring tournament.

S. I. Brower won the McMillen trophy, offered for the best thirty-six-hole handicap score yesterday. Brower had 185-20-165. W. C. Ridgway, one of the committeemen, got his reward by winning the Flint trophy, conditions calling for the best selected score for the four rounds, half the usual handicap being allowed. Ridgway who represents Knickerbocker, had 72-5-67.

Championship Eight.—Final Round—Alec Calder, Cherry Valley, beat C. R. McMillen, Essex County, 2 up and 1 to play.

MRS. HERZOG LEADS FIELD.

Fairview Player Has Card of 89 on Baltusrol Links.

Finishing with a card of 89, 2—87, Mrs. S. A. Herzog of Fairview easily led the field for both the gross and net awards in the one-day tournament under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association at Baltusrol yesterday. The entertaining club provided a gross prize, which Mrs. Herzog took. This left Mrs. T. C. Schreiver of Baltusrol to take the net trophy presented by the association. The last-named player had 96, 6—90, while Mrs. J. C. Barclay of Hackensack had one of the lowest scores of her career—94, 3—91.

Mrs. A. Shoaf of Englewood and Mrs. H. J. Blumenthal of Fairview finished with 96, 6—92 and 97, 5—92, respectively.

After reaching the turn in 43, aided by a "bird" 4 at the long first hole and a 2 at the third green, where she ran down a fairly long putt, Mrs. Herzog came home in 46. This included 7s at the fourteenth and sixteenth.

The scores:

Mrs. S. A. Herzog, Fairview, 89, 2—87; Mrs. T. C. Schreiver, Baltusrol, 96, 6—90; Mrs. J. C. Barclay, Hackensack, 94, 3—91; Mrs. A. Shoaf, Englewood, 98, 6—92; Mrs. H. J. Blumenthal, Fairview, 97, 5—92; Mrs. Stephen Nash, Baltusrol, 100, 6—94; Mrs. W. B. Cass, Glen Ridge, 114, 18—96.

WILLARD TO WEIGH 245.

Champion Abandons Road Runs in Training.

TOLEDO, June 18.—Jess Willard announced tonight that he expected to weigh between 245 and 248 pounds for his heavyweight championship contest with Jack Dempsey here July 4, and because of the satisfactory progress he has made in reducing his weight has decided to eliminate long runs over the roads from his daily training grind.

Lighter work than has been the rule for several days prevailed in the champion's training at his Maumee Bay camp this afternoon. Willard cut down his boxing to eight rounds after his strenuous work-out yesterday when he boxed eleven rounds and wound up with four more of shadow boxing. The champion's performance was witnessed by 2,500 persons comprising the largest weekday crowd that has packed the tented enclosure. Between 600 and 700 women were sprinkled through the gathering.

Dempsey also had a light day, but Manager Kearns announced that the challenger would resume boxing Sunday. The cut over his eye is healing rapidly and will permit him to engage in glove work. Dempsey also has eliminated road-work from his daily grind. He shadow-boxed and punched the bag for the edification of the big crowd, which continues to visit the challenger's camp whether he boxes or not.

WOLFF IS WINNER AGAIN.

Eight Matches Are Played for Western Golf Title.

ST. LOUIS, June 18.—Under a scorching sun that heated the humid atmosphere to such a degree that Donald Edwards, of Chicago, suffered heat prostration at the twenty-third hole and had to default to Richard Bockenkamp, of St. Louis, the eight matches of the second round of match play for the Western Amateur Golf Cup were decided today on the Sunset Hill Links.

As a result of this and other contests, Clarence Wolff of St. Louis, who today defeated Nelson Whitney of New Orleans, 5 and 4, will meet J. S. Thompson of St. Paul, conqueror of Chris Kenny of St. Louis by 4 and 3, in the semi-finals tomorrow; Harry G. Legg, Minneapolis, who won over T. B. Griffith of Wichita by 11 and 10, will play with O. G. Waldo of Detroit, victor over Frank Lynch of St. Louis by 6 and 5; J. D. Stanish, Detroit, who defeated A. N. Loeb of Chicago 2 and 1, will contest with Bockenkamp, and R. E. Knepper of Sioux City, who overcame Sam Reynolds of Omaha by 2 up today, will be matched with L. D. Brunfield of Denver, winner over J. E. Nugent of Kansas City by 11 and 10.

YALE CREW PRIMED FOR HARVARD RACE

Coach Abbott Says Rhythm of Stroke Will Develop with Finishing Touches.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 18.—Yale and Harvard's rowing squads were given their usual morning and evening practice today, the work being confined to the upper half of the four-mile course.

"The Yale 'Varsity crew has been criticised for the lack of rhythm by some of the newspaper men," said Coach Abbott, "but I have not attempted to put on the finishing touches until this week. Every man in the boat is in fine condition, and I hope they will remain that way until the race is all over."

Coach Haines also reports all his Harvard squad in the pink of condition, and, while not so optimistic outwardly of his crews as is Professor Abbott, he believes he has an even chance of winning out on Friday. "I have seen better Harvard 'Varsity crews than this year's, remarked Haines, yet the eight now at Red Top is not a slow one by any means."

Yale unexpectedly formed a graduate or "gentleman's" eight this afternoon and Harvard has sent Captain Harry A. Murray of the 1915 crew scouting for former Crimson oarsmen to meet the Yale old timers in a half-mile race tomorrow afternoon. Yale's grads donned rowing togs late this afternoon, borrowed a shell and oars and pulled a mile down the course for practice. The veterans' watermanship was a little rocky at first, but all hands soon settled down to business and made a fair showing. The crew was boated as follows: Stroke, A. R. Hyatt; seven, Seth Low 3d; six, John Fitzpatrick; five, Warren Oakes; four, James S. Sheldon; three, Cord Meyer; two, Leroy Whitney; bow, W. Averill Harriman; coxswain, Bennett Oliver.

There has been considerable discussion over the changing of the finish flag near the railroad drawbridge. Regatta Chairman F. Valentine Chappell, in explaining the change, said: "There seems to be an opinion among many people that in bringing the finish line of the 'Varsity race just above the bridge, where people on the New Haven observation train will be able to see the crews as they cross the finish line, we have shortened the four-mile course. This is not so. The crews will row the usual four miles. We have accomplished this by making a change in the course at Cowpoint, one and one-half miles from the start, moving the flags toward the west bank. By doing this we avoid the dangerous eel grass on the east side of the river at Cowpoint. Thus we get the needed four miles. This arrangement will also give the spectators on observation trains an opportunity to see the finish of the race. They would lose it completely if it was below the bridge."

Referee W. A. Meikleham, accompanied by Captain Meade of Yale and Captain Whitman of Harvard, and W. Averill Harriman, John Goetchius, F. Valentine Chappell, Payne Whitney, and F. L. Higginson of the rowing committees, went over the course in a launch this afternoon.

NEWTON PLAYS PAR GOLF.

Beats Sharwood in Final Match on Huntingdon Valley Links.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Frank C. Newton of Brookline won the golf tournament for the Lunnewood Hall Cup at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club today by defeating Sidney E. Sharwood, Philadelphia, 3 up and 2 to play in the final round.

Going out Newton played every hole in par except the second, on which he had a bird, and the ninth, where he was one over. He made a remarkable shot of the brook on the tenth and missed a half by inches. On the fifteenth hole Sharwood negotiated a stymie for a bird three. The match ended on the sixteenth when Newton dropped a mashie shot from off the green into the cup for par figures.

In the semi-final, Newton eliminated W. H. Gardner of Buffalo, while Sharwood defeated George W. Heffner of Bala.

Germs breed in the kitchen sink

Small particles of dish-pan refuse will gather in kitchen sinks or out of sight in the drain. These particles putrefy rapidly. They cause germs to breed and menace the entire household.

The sides and bottoms of sinks—especially if they are not enamel—should be scrubbed often with Lysol solution, which should also be poured into the drain.

Lysol Disinfectant

annihilates all germ life instantly. It is the standard disinfectant in all big hospitals. Hundreds of thousands of families depend upon it to keep disease from their homes.

Use Lysol systematically in sinks, drains, toilets, garbage cans, cuspidors and in dark, damp, sunless corners. You will then make a better fight against disease than it can possibly make against you.

Lysol is very inexpensive. A 50c bottle makes 5 gallons of powerful disinfectant; enough to last for months. A 25c bottle makes 2 gallons.

Lysol is also invaluable for personal hygiene.

Lysol Toilet Soap

Contains Lysol, and therefore protects the skin from germ infection. It is refreshingly soothing and healing and helpful for improving the skin. Ask your dealer. If he hasn't it, ask him to order it for you.

Lysol Shaving Cream

Contains Lysol, and kills germs on razor and shaving-brush (where germs abound), guards the tiny cuts from infection, and gives the antiseptic shave. If your dealer hasn't it, ask him to order a supply for you.

MR. KNOX'S DEMANDS.

Time, protests Senator KNOX, "time "and the opportunity to discuss the "covenant of the League of Na-"tions" must be allowed to the Senate before it can safely assent to the ratification of the Treaty and the covenant. That, he declares, is the crux of his resolution, it is to that end that he demands the separation of the covenant from the Treaty before its submission to the Senate for its advice and action. How much time does Senator KNOX require to acquaint himself with the provisions of the covenant? He has had more than four months. Does he want four years? How much time did the States of the Union take to decide whether the Federal Constitution should be ratified? The Constitution was more important to the people of the thirteen States of that day than is the League of Nations to the forty-eight States of the Union as at present constituted. It affected them more intimately in their daily lives, in their relations to one another. To borrow an illustration from the circle of family interest, the comparison is as a contract of marriage to an agreement to settle a boundary dispute or to sell a wood lot.

The Constitution was unanimously agreed to in the Convention on the 17th day of September, 1787. Delaware ratified on Dec. 7, in less than three months. Senator KNOX's own State of Pennsylvania ratified the Constitution on Dec. 12, also in less than three months. New Jersey required but one day more than three months; other States followed with their ratifications in January, February, April, and May, until on June 21 ratification by New Hampshire, the ninth State, carried the Constitution into effect. That was eight months after the instrument was completed by the Convention. The covenant of the League of Nations was read to the Peace Conference and given out for publication on Feb. 14. It was published in this country in all the newspapers on Feb. 15. That was four months and three days before Mr. KNOX made his plea for more time. But in view of the immeasurably superior means of communication, these four months have given the people of the country a vastly better opportunity to become acquainted with the provisions of the League covenant than their forefathers had in eight months to learn what was in the Constitution they were asked to ratify.

In that distant time the journey from Philadelphia to New England was a matter of weeks. The League covenant, given out in Paris on Feb. 14, was, the following morning, in the hands of practically the entire population of the country. No Senator, no man concerned with public affairs, had to wait a single day for his copy. During this whole period of more than four months the covenant has been minutely studied, it has been under intensive discussion. Senator KNOX, like a trained lawyer, submitted it to a laborious and attentive examination, and, as the fruit thereof, presented to the world an elaborate discourse which showed that no part of it had escaped his diligent consideration. In public debate in Boston and on many other occasions, Senator LODGE has made it clear that he knows all about the League of Nations. Senator BORAH and Senator JOHNSON have interminably discussed it. In public assemblies all over the country it has been made the subject of explanatory utterance. It is perfectly safe to say that in all our history no public document has ever been so persistently and thoroughly hammered into the comprehension of the people.

Then why is it that Senator KNOX demands more time? Time does not serve him. His speech in the Senate on Tuesday shows that he has profited little, if at all, by the time that has elapsed since his earlier attack upon the League. He uses the old arguments, he directs his criticism at the very provisions which came under his earlier condemnation, even though they have been amended to remove the grounds of objection advanced by him and others like him who promptly made it evident, and have now made it unmistakable, that they are resolved to oppose the League covenant, no matter what it contains.

Yet he demands more time, and he demands it at a moment when the Treaty in its final form is in the hands of the Germans for their signature or rejection. Were he not altogether impenitent, he might say, varying materially the words of WOLSEY, "had I but served my country "with half the zeal I served my "party, I should not now stand here "clamoring for a prolongation of the "war." Beyond all dispute, that is Mr. KNOX's attitude. He is obstructing peace, he does insist that the war shall be prolonged.

The dreadful responsibility of that attitude he seeks to escape by the flimsiest of pretexts. He says that all his resolution asks is that the League covenant be detached from the Treaty in order that, a prompt conclusion of peace being thus made possible, more time may be had for consideration of the covenant. He knows that this is impossible. He knows that the covenant is the soul of the Treaty, that the terms of peace are based upon its principles, that the Treaty and the covenant are inseparable parts of an organic whole. The Treaty without the League would in many of its provisions be unintelligible, unworkable. Mr. KNOX cannot be a friend of the Treaty, that is, one desiring an early peace, and at the same time be an enemy of the League covenant. He has placed himself in open hostility to the work of the Peace Conference. That responsibility, which is one no prudent man will wish to bear, he cannot escape.

A false and hollow appeal is made to the Democrats not to make the League a partisan question. In heaven's name, who has made it a partisan question but the Republicans? If the Democrats in the Senate, putting aside all considerations of humanity and of the public good, were really bent upon deriving partisan advantage from this controversy, they would conspire to let the Republican Senators commit themselves at once to the support of Senator KNOX's resolution. From the ignoble, partisan point of view, nothing could better serve the interests of the Democrats than to let the Republican Party put itself on record as opposing the prompt conclusion of a peace that is so ardently desired, so necessary to the public welfare and tranquillity.

THE JUAREZ INCIDENT.

"Devote yourself to terminating this affair," telegraphs President CARRANZA, approving the statement about the Juarez incident made in Washington by his son-in-law, General CANDIDO AGUILAR, "Confidential Ambassador." Although General AGUILAR protests that a "violation of Mexican sovereignty" occurred when American troops crossed the border to drive away Villistas who had fired shots into El Paso, he protests with as much tact as spirit, and hopes that "the situation created by the latest "occurrences in Juarez will be satis-"factorily adjusted between the two "countries." It is evident that the Carranza Government desires adjustment, provided the right to proclaim its sovereignty in invaded Juarez be allowed for the sake of a clean record. The American position is that there was no invasion. Invasion implies military operations against a friendly Government when a large force of troops is sent into its territory, but nothing of the kind was planned or intended in this case. The American soldiers were withdrawn as soon as the Villistas had been ousted from their trenches and chased beyond rifle range, and pains were taken to avoid a collision with the Federals or Constitutionalists—in fact, they retired from the firing zone, giving the Americans elbow room for their punitive undertaking. In the light of that acquiescence the protest of General AGUILAR should be read.

The Confidential Ambassador is doubtless well informed when he says that "the Mexican Government has "not asked, nor will it ask, the aid "of American troops to fight VILLA "or any other bandit," and that "General FRANCISCO GONZALES did "not ask for the assistance of the "United States soldiers who entered "Ciudad Juarez." Nevertheless, American troops did cross the border and engage and disperse the rebels who were fighting with the command of General GONZALES; it seems to have been hard pressed at the time. But not to aid him or to take sides against the rebels did an American force enter Mexico. "General ERWIN," says his superior, General CABELL, "was not "concerned in the outcome of the "fighting in Mexico. He decided, to "the best of his ability, that shots "from the Villistas were being fired "into El Paso. He sent his troops "over and dispersed the Villistas." A "closed incident," says General CABELL, and it appears that President CARRANZA takes the same view of the "invasion," or desires that there be no controversy about the matter. He must feel relieved that the Villistas, whom he terms bandits, failed to take Juarez, but he understands that there must be no firing into El Paso, either by rebels or Federals, or the American uniform will be seen on Mexican soil again for extra police duty. So the work of pacifying the country must be resumed with greater vigor by the Mexican Government. That is the lesson of the Juarez incident for President CARRANZA and his Generals.

THE TURKS IN PARIS.

For the third time a group of blameless delegates, representing a people spotlessly innocent, has appeared before the Peace Conference to explain that wicked and unscrupulous persons pushed them into the war when they were looking the other way. After the Germans and Austrians the Turks; when Magyars and Bulgars have been added to the list we shall have before us an unparalleled exhibition of pure innocence and freedom from guile. It seems that neither the Sultan nor his people had anything to do with going to war; it was all due to a secret agreement between the Kaiser and the Committee of Union and Progress, supported by the naval guns of Admiral VON SOUCHON. So the present Grand Vizier submits that it would be only fair to allow the Turkish Empire to remain intact—above all, to let the Sultan keep Constantinople, since "Asia Minor has been reduced to a desert by the war."

Who reduced Asia Minor to a desert? The Russians got into one corner of it; a few French and British troops camped for a few weeks on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles; otherwise, no troops have been in Asia Minor but Germans and Turks. The Turkish delegates do not explain who reduced Armenia to a desert; who massacred thousands of Greeks and deported hundreds of thousands more; nor, as yet, have they offered any plausible reason why the Turks did not awake to the enormity of the conspiracy between their leaders and the Germans until ALLENBY had annihilated their armies, and Germany was plainly failing to ruin. That Turkey's entry into the war was due to a conspiracy between ENVER and his group and the Germans is true enough, but the conscience of the Turk does not seem to have been affronted by the plot; it gave him a chance to indulge in the national sport of killing Christians.

"The Entente attitude to Turkey," says a dispatch, "still remains a mystery." Why it is a mystery is a greater mystery. The best opportunity of two centuries lies before the Peace Conference. The Turks have good qualities, but they are politically impotent and economically destructive; they have no place in Europe, in Armenia, in Syria, in the Greek coast lands of Asia Minor. Never have the jealousies of European Powers, which prevented the expulsion of the Turk from Europe long ago, been so amenable to sound political reasoning as at present; it can be done now if at all—now, when Turkey has at last been overthrown by the Power which so long held her up. To yield to the Turk would be as bad as to yield to the German, and only a shade less disastrous.

WHERE LABOR STANDS.

The American Federation of Labor's action on the four "Red" resolutions reported for its action justifies its name. It acted in an American way. By votes ranging up to twenty to one it rejected proposals to recognize the Bolshevist Soviet Government, to substitute the foreign Socialist May Day holiday for our September Labor Day, to adopt an organization assimilating the Federation to "One Big Union," like the I. W. W., and to call a general strike in behalf of MOONEY. It is hypercriticism to object that none of these things is directly connected with trade unionism or conditions of labor. The Federation now numbers more than three million Americans, and they have a right to opinions on public affairs as citizens as well as unionists. It is more important that the Federation should be sound rather than silent on these questions, and it hardly could be expected that so many Americans could be gathered without traces of heretical opinions on subjects dividing sentiment the world over. It is better that the "Red" resolutions should have been offered and rejected than that expression should have been refused to the few who supported them.

To appreciate how truly American the Federation is, two comparisons are useful. In Canada, while the Federation was sitting, the authorities were raiding labor headquarters, and employers were resolving that, if organized labor is to retain the confidence of fellow-citizens, it must denounce unionists "who hold and preach sedi-"tious sentiments repugnant to the "common sense of Canadians." The action of the Federation will be more significant in England than in Canada. How socialistic the British labor movement is appears from what happened when Mr. GOMPERS presented his credentials for admission to the Interallied Labor Conference in London. The officials asked him and his associates to sign cards declaring them to be delegates to the "Interallied Socialist Conference," and the Americans declined. The matter was arranged with an apology to the effect that the form was an old one, that the British thought it all right. In American opinion it was all wrong.

Within the week the cable has reported the resignation of the British Trades Union Secretary, whose views on labor affairs resemble those of Mr. GOMPERS. Mr. APPLETON "predicts "disaster for his country as a result "of the promises which labor poli-"ticians are making to the workers," and it is thought that his retirement strengthens the element of British labor which differed from Mr. GOMPERS when recently in England. Among them is Mr. HENDERSON, who has been reported as arranging a missionary trip to this country, in his view so misled by Mr. GOMPERS on labor affairs. In the words of Mr. DUNCAN, Vice President of the Federation, "he "comes as a politician rather than as "a trade unionist. We would not "butt into British affairs. If we did, "HENDERSON and his people very "properly would tell us to mind our "own business. By the same token "it would be presumptuous for HEN-"DERSON to come here and try to tell "us our business."

It is important that the point should be understood as well outside the Federation as within it. There is now forming a new American labor party in opposition to the Federation, and sympathetic with the British movement as led by HENDERSON, SMILLIE, and THOMAS. Their objective is not merely betterment of the conditions of work, but the establishment of a "new social order," based on the nationalization of mines and similar extreme forms of Government ownership and operation of public utilities, with a view to the absorption of surplus earnings for general division. That is a Marxian base with a Bolshevist superstructure, and contains the threat of a multiplication of the burdens which Government operation of the railways has put upon our taxpayers. The railways, which used to give better satisfaction to those who used them, and earn a profit, too, now fail to earn their upkeep. Americans have no liking for further adventures of that sort, and they have cause for rejoicing that the Federation is thoroughly American.

THE VISIT OF DR. PESSOA.

President-elect PESSOA of Brazil, who is due in New York today on the American transport Imperator, will be a guest of the United States, and a fitting return can be made to Brazil for its generous hospitality to ex-President ROOSEVELT and to ex-Secretary ELIHU ROOT on the occasion of their visits to that country. It will be a great pleasure to honor Dr. EPITACIO M. PESSOA, not only because Brazil has shown uniform friendship for the United States, but because the President-elect is one of the most distinguished statesmen of that country and representative of the ideals and progressive spirit of South America. In the prime of life and of a most engaging personality, he has risen rapidly by his talents until today he is the foremost figure in the public life of Brazil. As a very young man he was Professor of Law in the Faculty of the University of Pernambuco, and at 26 he was elected Deputy in the National Congress, soon becoming the leader of his party. Minister of Justice a few years later in the Cabinet of President CAMPOS SALLES, Dr. PESSOA made a brilliant record in that office. Afterward Attorney General and Judge in the Supreme Court, he was Senator from the State of Parahyba when Brazil made him President of its mission to the Peace Conference at Paris. In April of this year Dr. PESSOA was elected President of the Republic, Brazil delighting to honor him during his absence from the country.

A man so distinguished among his own countrymen should need no introduction to the American people. His remarkable career proves him to be one of the greatest South Americans of his time. Dr. PESSOA's coming affords the United States an opportunity to reciprocate so many kindnesses shown to representative Americans in Brazil that there can be nothing too good for its President-elect in the way of hospitality and appreciation. The Pan-American sentiment can be strengthened by the welcome and reception given him, and it needs fortifying against the pernicious anti-American propaganda that has been carried on in Brazil of late and in other South American countries.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Protests Easily Explained. In certain quarters, and several of them, it seems, protests are making because our Board of Education has attempted to discover, by means of questioning the pupils in the public schools, what they know about Bolshevism, what they think of it, and from whom they have received such information as they possess on that decidedly important subject.

To the ordinary American, ordinarily inclined to consider the American form of government a fairly good one and worth preserving for a while longer, the questions propounded by the board will be regarded as entirely innocent and the inquiry commendable. Americans not ordinary, and some other people of whom it only can be said that they are residents of America—for other reasons, evidently, than because they like it as it is—are protesting that the board had no right to undertake such an investigation, that it was "inquisitorial," and that it would lead to a lot of lying by boys and girls afraid to reveal their real sentiments, political and economic.

Is it not possible—is it not even probable—that these protests are really based on apprehensions that from the replies to the board's questionnaire there might be learned just what teachers, in and out of the public schools, have been engaged in the task of proclaiming to our rising generation the beauties of Soviet rule and the virtues of Messrs. LENIN and TROTZKY? This is a plausible suspicion; indeed, it is little less than an inevitable conclusion from the facts in the case, for no other conclusion is even imaginable.

Apparently the Schools Are Immune. In so little danger is the Board of Education from the critics of its questioning about Bolshevism that it safely can ignore them and calmly devote itself to the very well worth while toil of carefully studying the "papers" which its Socratic experiment has produced. This work has already proceeded far enough to show either that but few of the would-be revolutionizers of society have turned, as yet, their attention to the children in the public schools, or that the propaganda there has been next to a complete failure.

A great majority of the answers turned in show a most reassuring soundness of opinion among the pupils questioned. This is true in all parts of the city, including those where the Bolsheviki are supposed most to abound and to be most active as preachers. It may be, of course, that there are in the public schools more young Reds than the replies disclosed, but anybody who has talked with a few specimens of that class knows that at any age the impulse to speak out and the joy of it are simply irresistible to them. What they say is usually false, but it is not the falsity that takes the form of concealing personal opinions and delusions.

Proclaiming Good Intentions. Highly pleasing is it to learn from the large advertisement prepared in defense of the country's foreign-language papers that the first and most eagerly sought object of a majority of them is to hasten the complete Americanization of their readers. It is a worthy ambition, and success in the effort will fully justify the existence of the press in question.

For the newly arrived immigrant, a newspaper printed in his own language could be of real value and assistance if it urged and helped him to learn English, and in several other practicable ways prepared him for taking his place among his neighbors. It is a sad fact, however, that the paper following this admirable policy will lose its older subscribers at a rate likely to annoy and alarm its business office, and it will be obliged to depend for support on readers who have not yet had time to profit by its nobly disinterested and unselfish teachings.

It would be a great pleasure to believe that a majority of the foreign-language papers are thus above consideration of the main chance; it is something, and not a little, to be told that they are so, for the telling shows a warm appreciation on the part of the advertisers of what they must be and do to earn the kindly tolerance they hitherto have enjoyed. That tolerance in some cases has been, and still is, shamefully and criminally abused.

The first task of the well-intentioned editors of foreign-language papers should be to assist in the suppression of all the vicious and treasonable sheets that use a foreign language to hide their attacks on American institutions.

Majority Rule in Ireland.

I noted with interest a letter appearing in your paper of June 8, from a gentleman who signed himself "An Irishman." He went on to draw attention to the fact that there are in Ireland some people who do not wish self-determination for that great and mighty little nation, and complained of the world at times overlooking the fact that a few of such people do live in the Erin Isle.

I would like to say to that gentleman that in Ireland, as in our own great country, the majority must and should always rule. That is the only means of ever arriving at any workable conclusion in politics and in any form of life.

No thinking person feels for an instant that everybody in any country is at one with one another, but it is worth while saying that there exists in Ireland a greater unanimity than there exists in our own country, which is split by several partisan factions, each at loggerheads with the other. However, in Ireland the overwhelming majority of the people, those of the East, the West, the North, the South, the Catholics, and the non-Catholics, are all desirous of self-determination, freedom to express themselves as a nation, as a great people.

Hence I would remind your correspondent that while not every individual person in the Emerald Isle is for development in the only way in which they can fully develop, yet that which counts in such matters—the majority—is solidly and positively for liberty. The only way in which they can secure this much desired and deserved right is by having absolute freedom from the present rule, which has ground them down for ages under its despotic and despicable foot.

Evander Childs Reunion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the Fall of this year the new building of the Evander Childs High School will be formally dedicated. The noble service rendered by Evander Childs will live in the memory of his pupils, the boys of old P. S. 51, Manhattan, and the boys and girls of old P. S. 61 in Morrisania, and P. S. 90, afterward known as P. S. 10, the Bronx. It is to these pupils that I address myself through the medium of your valued journal.

It is desired by our committee that all pupils of Evander Childs send their addresses to our Secretary, Miss Mary C. Huntington, 421 East 140th Street, Borough of the Bronx, in order that we may arrange for a grand reunion of those who sat under our great teacher and loyal friend.

JOHN LIEBERMAN,
Chairman of Pupils' Committee,
Evander Childs Memorial Association.

TO A STRAW HAT, CRUSHED IN ACTION.

A sudden whim,
And off you strayed
Like any im-
Pulse-harried maid.
And now I sing
You, crushed and flat;
You've had your fling,
My willful hat.

For wheels may come
And wheels may go,
But let me strum
It, so you'll know:
No wheel can hop
Across a straw
It tries to stop;
That's nature's law.

There is no use
To moralize
In terms abstruse.
You were not wise!
For had you been,
You'd be alive,
And I'd be in
Two twenty-five.

THE JUGOSLAV CAUSE.

Italian Ideas of Its Support by "Influential Americans."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. D. M. Pavlovich, who wrote the letter which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES on June 14, has certainly been denied the honor of fighting for his country, otherwise he would have recalled Serbia's tragedy, which is among the most terrible known to history; he would have recalled that his heroic Serbian brothers, soldiers and refugees, flying before Mackensen's armies, torn by hunger and cholera, were saved by the Italians. If he had been one of those 300,000 valiant brothers and sisters of his who preferred death rather than surrender, and were revived by Italy's fraternal help, Mr. Pavlovich, instead of writing in abusive terms of Italy's "tremendous disaster," would have recalled what Colonel Mitrovitch, commandant of the Serbian General Staff, said on board the cruiser Città di Catania, viz.: "The Serbian Army thoroughly understood and appreciated your noble work. Now and forever the gratitude and the vows of all Serbia will be yours." Or Mr. Pachitch's speech: "I am not anxious about our army and our people, who are in danger at sea, for the Italian Navy is carrying them and protecting them." Or Mr. Balfour's words: "* * * and last but not least, the transportation of the Serbian Army from Albania has been a result chiefly due to the energy and ability displayed by the Italian fleet."

If he had been in Serbia at that time, when speaking of Italy's "tremendous disaster," Mr. Pavlovich would have acknowledged that the Italians made good on the Piave the disaster of Caporetto, seven months later defeated the Austrians, Hungarians, and Croatians on the Piave, and exactly one year later crushed forever Austrian autocracy, thus giving the Jugoslavs their only chance to become a free State.

Mr. Pavlovich, not having been among the Serbians who were struggling for the redemption of their country, does not know all these things, and having retained his energy and his fighting spirit he enters the field, like a Don Quixote, to fight windmills. No one, as far as I know, ever said that the funds collected for charities by the Serbian National League were misappropriated. But that is not the point. The Epoca spoke of Jugoslav propaganda financed by funds collected here by different influential Americans, as Mr. Pavlovich said in his letter to THE NEW YORK TIMES, and Jugoslav propaganda, to my mind, is not a charity. What has any National Investigation Bureau to say if some influential American, especially if highly influential, gives, for instance, $100,000 to Jugoslav propaganda, if another gives a million or a million and a half, because, for one unselfish reason or another, they would rather see the Italian city of Fiume under Croatian rule than united to Italy? The donators would probably answer that they are doing their regular business or spending as they please the money intrusted to them. But this does not mean that money has not been given liberally to Jugoslav propaganda by somebody who is not a Jugoslav. Otherwise from where would the Jugoslavs have secured the money? Not from their treasury vaults, which are empty; and we refuse to think that they obtained it from Emperor Charles I.

Mr. Pavlovich, before ending his letter, tries to insinuate that Italy disregards what the Americans have done for civilization, while "regarding the Fiume controversy, Serbia is doing nothing but humbly asking that this controversy be decided by America's delegates."

Well, Serbia, who was forced to fight, may ask humbly as much as she wants, but Italy, who entered the war on the side of the Allies of her own choice and will, and paid her full share, wants to sit at the peace table as an equal among equals, and asks proudly what she believes she is entitled to.

To those misrepresenting Italy's sentiments toward America and speaking of Italy's "audacity and presumption" in this moment, the writer could say much more, but what is the use? S. A. C.

Slavs Trust to Liberal Opinion.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to reply to a letter in THE TIMES of even date which asks: "Did the Croatian soldiers fight this war to win or lose?"

The Croatian soldiers fought under Austrian compulsion, just as the Italians, Rumanians, and other Austrian nationalities did, and it is a known fact that many thousands of them surrendered voluntarily to Russians and Serbians, re-enlisting then as volunteers to fight Austria.

Does the writer of that letter know that 20,000 Jugoslav prisoners who surrendered, mostly voluntarily, on the Italian front, had their repeated requests to fight as volunteers against Austria ignored by the Italian authorities, in spite of all the efforts made in their behalf by the allied powers, and that all this was deliberately done in order that the Italians might more easily appropriate their lands?

Yet, fortunately, a new order is at hand, and the world's liberal opinion will not permit a new oppression of peoples, but self-determination as conditioned by President Wilson's Fourteen Points and accepted by all the Allies will have a fair test, and the only fair test is a plebiscite conducted under occupation and supervision of the allied armies. This has been granted even to Germany in Silesia, and for what reason under the sun can it be denied to Jugoslavs, Greeks, Albanians, Tyrolese, &c.?

Then all those advocating an imperialistic policy of oppression and enslavement of peoples will find out to their great deception that not only Mr. Wilson knows history and is correctly informed as to the real situation, but they will also see that his points previously accepted by all belligerent powers can be carried into effect.

The "Outis" Letter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under the caption "A Poe Riddle" your correspondent, T. H. Whitty, writes from Richmond, Va., to ask who wrote the "Outis" letter printed in The New York Mirror in 1845, during the Poe-Longfellow war. Mr. Whitty winds up his letter by saying, "It is my opinion, however, that eventually this mystery will be unraveled."

Permit me to complete his prophecy, and unravel his mystery, not eventually, but tout de suite.

"Outis" was the late Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

An application filed yesterday in the Surrogates' Court for a judicial accounting in the estate of Andrew H. Green, "father of Greater New York," who was shot and killed in 1903, shows that the total value of the estate was $2,492,124. The bulk of the estate consisted of 167 mortgages aggregating $1,715,000 and the remainder of the estate was in stocks and bonds. The estate went to two brothers and their children.

OPPOSE B. R. T. NOTE ISSUE.

Creditors and Corporation Counsel Appeal from Court's Order.

The United States Circuit Court heard argument yesterday on the appeal of the Central Union Trust Company from the order of Federal Judge Mayer authorizing Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, to issue receiver's certificates to the amount of $20,000,000, about three-quarters of the amount to be used in completing the rapid transit lines, and the rest for improving the surface lines of the system. Creditors of the company opposed the order because it made the proposed issue a prior lien over all of the other debts, and Corporation Counsel Burr, on behalf of the city, opposed it for the reason that the order did not provide that the spending of the money should be controlled by the Public Service Commission.

One of the chief reasons for the appeal was the desire of the creditors to have the matter thrashed out before the highest court in this jurisdiction so that in the future there would arise no legal questions as to the authority of the receiver to issue and sell the notes. Receiver Garrison and his counsel, Carl M. Owen, told the court that if the B. R. T. Company was not in need of money it would not have passed into the hands of a receiver, that the company's treasury was depleted, and that the need for large sums of money was pressing.

From the standpoint of the public, they said, the loss in values, the confusion and inconvenience which would be produced by the failure of the company to complete its dual system contract with the city would be extreme. Decision was reserved.

PLANS TUBERCULOSIS FUND.

Association Will Conduct Christmas Sale to Raise $6,000,000.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 18.—The National Tuberculosis Association, in convention here, today announced plans for a whirlwind Red Cross Christmas serial sale in December for the purpose of raising $6,000,000. The money will be used in 1920 to carry on an intensive fight for the prevention and control of the disease, the great increase of which in the United States was startlingly revealed first by the draft examinations of millions of men and later by the strain of the war. Delegates here representing 1,500 State and local anti-tuberculosis associations pledged themselves to the work.

The drive will open the first week of December and will last until the first of the year. In addition to efforts to raise the funds necessary, it will afford an opportunity for a great educational campaign to arouse the people of America to recognition of the economic menace of tuberculosis and stir them to united effort for its eradication.

FRENCH IMPORT BAN LIFTED.

A Few Exceptions Relate to Luxuries and Textile Manufactures.

PARIS, June 17.—The Official Journal to be issued tomorrow will print two decrees affecting importations to France. The first will remove the ban from most of the imports, the few exceptions being luxuries, miscellaneous articles forming the subject matter of interallied agreements, and textile manufactures, the principal producing centres of which are in devastated regions and consequently require special protection.

The second decree will place extra customs duties on imports, these being calculated on an ad valorem basis, existing dues failing, by reason of increased prices, to accomplish the object of affording protection to home industries. These duties, however, will not be imposed upon foodstuffs or articles indispensable to manufacturers.

HONOR DEAD OF PARIS BAR.

Mme. Poincare Attends Memorial Service for Lawyers at Notre Dame.

PARIS, June 18.—A solemn service in memory of the attorneys, members of the Paris bar, who fell in battle during the war, was held today in the Cathedral of Notre Dame. Cardinal Amette presided over the ceremonies, while Father Sertillanges pronounced the funeral oration. He paid eloquent tribute to the sacrifice of those who had died in the cause of right.

Mme. Poincaré, wife of the President, was present at the ceremony, as also were numerous prominent persons of Paris and vicinity.

ALTMAN SCHOOL ENDS YEAR.

Closing exercises of the Continuation School of the Altman Foundation were held last night at the B. Altman & Co. store, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth street. Colonel M. Friedsam, president of B. Altman & Co., awarded diplomas to seventy-one pupils. Honor pins were awarded to the twenty-two pupils who stood highest in their studies. Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education, delivered an address. The orchestra of B. Altman & Co. furnished music.

The Altman Continuation School was founded in 1914. For three years it has been under the direct supervision of the Altman Foundation. The teaching force includes an educational director and three assistants. Classes are held daily.

The purpose of the school is to supplement the education of employes who quit school before completing their courses.

COLLEGE ALUMNAE MEET.

Plan International Federation for Benefit of Women Students.

A meeting was held yesterday at the Woman's University Club under the auspices of the Committee on International Relations of the Association of College Alumnae, which was attended by the representatives of various alumnae and college clubs. It was decided to co-operate with the Federation of University Women of Great Britain in creating an international organization of university women. Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College, who is Chairman of the committee, will sail on June 28 for Great Britain, where she will further the plan. President M. Carey Palmer and Dean Helen Taft of Bryn Mawr will also attend conferences in London as representatives of the Association of College Alumnae.

The purpose of the federation is to facilitate the exchange of women students and women professors and instructors between this and other countries, and to establish in each of the co-operating countries headquarters for the dissemination of educational information affecting women, and for social purposes. There is to be established at once by the Association of College Alumnae a national clubhouse and headquarters at Washington as the centre of this movement. It is expected that the central headquarters for the international organization will be located at the seat of the League of Nations.

Don Jose Florit Lectures Today.

An unusual opportunity is offered to art lovers in New York to hear Don José Florit, Director of the Royal Museum of Madrid, who is at present visiting this country by invitation of the Hispanic Society of America and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. This lecture will be open to the public and will be held in Spanish at the Metropolitan Museum of Art this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Don José Florit has a beautiful collection of lantern slides illustrating the Madrid Armory. He visits New York to examine the European armor at the Metropolitan Museum of Art and to help the authorities of the museum to trace the pedigree of some of the most important objects in the collection.

RUSSIAN PRELATE HERE AFTER FLIGHT

WAS THOUGHT TO BE DEAD

Welcomed in Church Where Parishioners Had Held Memorial Service for Him.

Former Archbishop Platon Rozdevensky, Metropolitan of the Greek Church in Russia, was one of thirty Russian refugees who arrived here yesterday on the Vladimir from Novorossisk on the Black Sea. Two months ago, when reports of his death at the hands of the Bolsheviki were received in this city, a memorial service was held in the Russian Cathedral of St. Nicholas, 15 East Ninety-seventh Street, of which he had been pastor from 1907 to 1914. Last night a thanksgiving service was held in the same church and hundreds of his former parishioners who mourned his death crowded around to kiss the Metropolitan's hand and bid him welcome.

Lack of a visé from the American Consul at Constantinople held up the landing of the Metropolitan when the Vladimir arrived in port. After an exchange of telegrams with the immigration authorities in Washington permission was finally granted for him to leave the steamer and he was taken ashore in a tug chartered by officials of the Russian Volunteer Fleet. He was met at the pier by Archbishop Alexander Nemolovsky, head of the Russian Greek Church in this country, and a delegation of church officials and laymen.

Speaking of his experiences, the Metropolitan said he had been forced to leave Odessa by the French two days before the Bolsheviki took the city, as threats had been made against his life by the Reds. Accompanied by a guard of forty French soldiers, he said, he was taken aboard a French vessel bound for Constantinople. From there he went to Novorussisk and took passage on the Vladimir.

In an interview, the Metropolitan said: "The Bolshevik power is on the wane. They cannot have a future, for Bolshevism is an illness, and like an illness will pass. In the meantime they plunge more deeply into the practices of their doctrines which before they only preached. They realize their time is short.

"They throttle every one who is not one of them. I had no personal experience with them, but even before they came to Odessa they announced that I had been condemned to death. I know of many cases where they have brutally and wantonly slaughtered priests and bishops of the Church with fiendish cruelty. As for the Bourgeoisie, they kill men, women, and children, irrespective of age.

"There is the case of Bishop Andronikus of Perm. A mob set upon him. First they pulled out half his beard; next they gouged out his eyes; then they strangled him and threw his body into the river. Bishop Ambrosius of Tcheboksary on the Volga suffered even more. They tied him to a horse's tail and then frightened the animal into galloping madly about the streets. When he died of this they hacked him to pieces."

The prelate said that the Jewish population in Russia would probably suffer through Bolshevist excesses. He declared that while the intelligent classes and church authorities would exert every effort to avoid a repetition of the pogroms, the masses would not stop to reason.

On the question of the future of the Russian Government, the prelate said, in part:

"Just what form the Russian Government is to take I do not know. It can never be a return to the old autocracy; no more can it be the Soviet Commune. I think that the real Government of Russia will probably be modeled along the lines of your own United States—a republic made up of a federation of States.

"I know Admiral Kolchak personally and he is a man of the highest ideals, and I feel certain that with the organization of the Constituent Assembly he and those associated with him will immediately step aside."

He said his visit to the United States was made to expose the fallacy of Bolshevism and to arouse the people here to the need of taking action in Russia to end the present régime.

ATTACKS MEDICAL BODY.

Detroit Physician Urges Union Against American Association.

Physicians who are not members of the American Medical Association were appealed to yesterday by Dr. Ignatz Mayer of Detroit, newly-elected President of the Allied Medical Associations, in convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania, to join the latter association, and thus to help create a strong organization which could exercise power in the shaping of legislation.

Dr. Mayer said that the Allied Medical Associations included practitioners who were not recognized by the American Medical Association, and that such men were in constant danger from legislation supported by the latter organization. He attacked the American Medical Association, asserting that it was attempting to establish arbitrary standards which would benefit its members and injure medical men outside its membership.

"You will find," he said, "that a continuous effort is being made to deprive you of your liberty and freedom to practice medicine or surgery according to your own practical experiences or discoveries which have proved successful in your hands, unless you belong to that autocratic association, which must first sanction and approve your method."

Dr. Dinshah P. Ghadiali, who is a Major in the Police Reserves, made an address on "Scientific Misconceptions of Oriental Occultism." He predicted that medical systems used for thousands of years in India, and barred here by the American Medical Association, eventually would win recognition in this country.

RAILWAY SHOPMEN MEET.

Merger of Master Builders and Mechanics Being Considered.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 18.—The joint annual convention of the Master Car Builders' Association and the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association opened here today with an address by Edmund H. Walker, head of the Supply Men's Association. Mr. Walker urged co-operation in solving the problems which have developed as a result of the dislocation of plants to meet Government demands to "win the war" and the readjustment of wages, which have taken an upward trend.

The most important matter to come before the convention is the proposal to merge the two organizations. They have been meeting at the same time and place for years. The merger, when effected, will bring the two organizations together to transact business and hold discussions dealing with railway construction and administration.

Nearly 7,000 delegates have registered. There are 310 exhibits occupying [illegible] square feet of space.

MORE DEGREES GIVEN BY N. Y. UNIVERSITY

209 RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

Chancellor Brown Says Gifts to Institution Last Year Were Greater Than for Past Six Years.

New York University held the second part of its commencement exercises yesterday afternoon in the auditorium on the Heights, when 209 young men and women received diplomas from the Colleges of Arts and Pure Science, the School of Applied Science, Washington Square College, the School of Pedagogy, and the Graduate School. The honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick, Minister of the First Presbyterian Church in this city, and William Grosvenor Bissell, Chief of the Bureau of Laboratories of the Buffalo Department of Health, was awarded the degree of Doctor of Public Health. Addresses were delivered by Maurice Francis Egan, formerly United States Minister to Denmark, and Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown.

In the address of Chancellor Brown he announced that the gifts and bequests to the university last year amounted to more than those received for the six years preceding. Two of the gifts which had been received lately were $4,000 annually for five years from an anonymous donor through the efforts of Dr. George T. Stewart, and the other was a $50,000 gift from the daughters of the late Frederick W. De Voe in memory of their father, who had been a member of the University Council. The anonymous donation is to be used for the department of surgery in the medical college, and the De Voe gift will be utilized for university purposes.

Chancellor Brown also praised the war spirit of the institution, stating that 1,318 members of the Faculty and student body had left for war service, of whom 730 were officers. Thirty-six, he said, had paid the supreme sacrifice.

Dr. Archibald Lewis Bouton, Dean of the College of Arts and Pure Science, awarded the following prizes to the members of his institution: The A. Ogden Butler Classical Fellowship to Joseph Moses Roth, the James Gordon Bennett Prize to Salvatore Traina; the Frederick Seward Gibson Prize to Elliot Kadison; the Class of 1907 Debating Medals to Lawrence Fertig, Donald Brown, and Samuel B. Lesser; and the Class of 1907 Debating Bar to Arthur Schwarts.

The prizes for the School of Applied Science were announced by Dean Charles Snow, and were as follows: The William A. Hoe Junior Sanitary Engineering Prize was awarded to Walter John Clark; the Walter H. Inman Fellowship in Science to Harry Andrew Mulder; the Samuel B. Duryea Fellowship to Alfred Soman, Jr., and the Sherbourne Vernon Damerel Prize to Floyd Joseph Egan.

The Alumni Gold Medal for the most proficient student in the Washington Square College was won by May Winter. This announcement was made by Dean John Roscoe.
